Data from Tufts Doctor Who Was Told Facts by Former Aid of Wilson.

BRECKINRIDGE IS MAN.

Somerville, Mass., Oct. 28.—The assertion that President Wilson at the time the second Lusitania note was sent to Germany wrote—and afterward withdrew—a postscript informing the German government that the contents of his previous note were not to be interpreted too seriously, was reiterated by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in a political address here tonight.

The senator added to his statement the announcement that information on the subject had come to him in a letter from Dr. Charles H. Bailey of the Tufts Medical school, in which Henry Breckinridge, formerly assistant secretary of war, was quoted as authority for the story of the alleged postscript. The senator's first charge to this effect, made a few days ago, has been denied by Secretary Lane.

REASON BRYAN QUIT.

Senator Lodge tonight reviewed the sending of the Lusitania notes and the resignation of Secretary of State Bryan. He continued:

"There was one feature about which there was much speculation at the time, and that was why Mr. Bryan allowed his name to be appended to a very strong note couched in the most extreme language possible to diplomacy, and yet resigned so that he need not affix his signature to the very mild note of June 9, a note which even a man of very strong pacificist tendencies could not have objected to.

GETS "P. S." INFORMATION.

"It was currently reported at the time that the reason for this apparently inexplicable action on Mr. Bryan's part was the fact that the first note as finally sent was not the note to which he had appended his signature. Within a few days there has come into my possession direct information upon this subject, contained in the appended letter, which was addressed to Grafton Cushing, who forwarded it to me.

"This writer, Dr. Charles H. Bailey, professor in the Tufts Medical school, is a gentleman of high standing and undoubted veracity."

GIVES NAME OF INFORMANT.

Senator Lodge then read the letter of Dr. Bailey, dated Oct. 24, as follows:

"'Dear Sir: As you requested, I am submitting to you herewith in writing a report of a conversation between ex-Assistant Secretary of War Breckinridge and myself. Leaving San Francisco on July 15, 1916, I rode from that city as far as Omaha, Neb., with Mr. Breckinridge. During the trip I asked Mr. Breckinridge if he would be willing to answer certain questions with regard to the conduct of our national affairs during his connection with the present administration.

DUMBA GIVEN DATA.

"'Receiving an affirmative reply, I asked him among other things as to the truth of the published report that following the so-called "strict accountability" note, Secretary Bryan had informed Ambassador Dumba that the central powers need not take the note too seriously, as it was written for political effect and home consumption only.

"'He said that in all essential details I had stated the matter correctly, which led him of his own accord to tell me the following—this is not, of course, a verbatim report, but simply a brief outline of the story as told me by Mr. Breckinridge.

BRYAN AWARE OF POSTSCRIPT.

"'He stated that following the completion of the "omit no word or no act" note to the satisfaction of the cabinet, Mr. Wilson, without the knowledge of any member of the cabinet, except Secretary Bryan himself, wrote a postscript, which he sent with the note to the state department for codification.

"'Mr. Breckinridge stated that both Mr. Garrison and he had seen this postscript and he told me what he claimed

Australian Vote Indicates Defeat of Drafting Plan

Referendum Returns Running Against Compulsory Army Service.

PREMIER IS SHOT AT

LONDON, Oct. 28.—First returns in the balloting in Australia on the question of compulsory military service, according to Reuter's Melbourne correspondent, showed a considerable majority opposed to conscription. The incomplete vote was: Yes, 637,000; no, 723,000.

Affirmative majorities were counted in Victoria, West Australia and Tasmania; negative majorities in New South Wales and Queensland. The attitude of South Australia has not yet been determined.

The three members of the Australian ministry who have just resigned did so, according to a Reuter dispatch from Melbourne today, because the remainder of the cabinet approved of regulations empowering the presiding officers at polling places during the day's referendum on conscription to ask voters who were apparently between 21 and 35 years of age whether they were single and, if so, whether they had reported in accordance with the defense act proclamation.

Premier Escapes Assassination.

MELBOURNE, Oct. 28.—An attempt was made early today to assassinate Prime Minister Hughes at his home in Kew, Victoria.

A man forced a window in the prime minister's home and fired a revolver at Hughes. The shot missed the premier. The man leaped to the ground and fled.

Premier Hughes, by his advocacy of the conscription measure, drew the bitter fire of a faction of the Australian Labor party, of which he himself is a member.

Recently Back from England.

Premier Hughes only recently returned from England, where he created a tremendous impression, being hailed by the London press as the greatest colonial imperialist who had ever visited London. He persistently urged greater recognition of the colonies in the council of the empire after the war and was the first to suggest the idea of a trade war against Germany.

MOTHER FINDS HUSBAND DEAD; KILLS BABIES

TRAGEDY IN BERWYN.

Out of the bruised memories of childhood, a mother's love yesterday rejected for her offspring a home in the cold, whispering house of charity, where nobody's children live.

In a room across the hallway from where she found her husband dead, Mrs. Anna Brettschneider turned the gas on her sleeping son and daughter. She waited until they were dead, and then returning, stretched beside her husband's body with the gas flowing from a wide open jet.

A milkman discovered the tragedy in the home at 2244 Winfield avenue, Berwyn. Mrs. Brettschneider, whose death watch on her children delayed her effort to end her own life, was still breathing feebly.

CHILDREN DEAD FOR HOURS.

The children, George, aged 7, and Angelina, 5, had been dead for hours. They were found together in the big bed, just as they had fallen to sleep.

Mrs. Brettschneider was rushed to the West Suburban hospital and an oxygen machine was employed, but physicians say there is scant hope to save her.

Joseph Brettschneider, the husband and father, it is believed, died a natural death. He had been ill for several years. He was employed as a typesetter by a Bohemian newspaper, but his poor health allowed him to work only intermittently, and he was frequently confined to bed for long spells.

LETTERS BARE SUFFERING.

In several letters which she wrote while waiting for her children to die, Mrs. Brettschneider opened the seal of her past, and revealed the source of the bitter, hopeless philosophy that moved her hand to crime in love's name. The letters were in Bohemian.

She wrote that she herself had been an orphan, and lived in an orphan home. She explained that she could not leave her children to the loveless fate of her own youth, and therefore intended they should follow their father before she, like a good wife seeing the household to bed, joined the family in the last sleep.

It is improbable the children knew of their father's death. He had been sick in bed for several days. From Mrs. Brettschneider's letters the Berwyn police reconstruct the tragedy on these simple lines:

POLICE VIEW OF TRAGEDY.

The woman after attending to her domestic duties downstairs went up to retire. The children were already asleep. She looked in to speak to her husband and see if he required anything. She discovered he was dead. She was the only person awake in the house.

With the family finances at low ebb and a mortgage of $1,300 on the house, she decided to join her husband with the children, rather than continue the struggle against evil fortune.

She accordingly turned the gas on the children, and after waiting to make certain of their death, lay down beside him to die.

HER "LAST WILL."

One note, which the woman called "My Last Will," read:

"Because I am nervous and in hard luck I have decided to take my life. I will take my two children with me. I was an orphan and know how they are treated. My father died when I was 6 years old and I have suffered all my life, even in my married life.

"I am insured for $300 in the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, and I wish we should be cremated and buried together. The expense of the funeral will be $400 and it will cost $100 for cremation. My husband also is insured for $500 in the Garfield Lodge No. 90, C. S. P. S., but as he has not been a member long enough he will receive only $200.

"Our house has a mortgage of $1,300, but this will be covered. All dishes, furniture, everything in the house I leave to Paula Kubricht, my husband's sister. I hope my will is fulfilled."

Chief Frank Pomey of the Berwyn police said that charges of murder will be placed against Mrs. Brettschneider if she recovers.

Malcolm McNeil, 84, Weds as Son's Wife Asks Decree

BRIDE'S AGE SECRET

And while the organ was playing, his son, Charles Higgins McNeil, was in a divorce court at the summons of Mrs. Charles Higgins McNeil No. 2.

It was the third of its kind for the father.

It was the second of its kind for the son.

Hale in health, distinguished in his age, and with exquisite courtesy, Mr. McNeil, the elder, received congratulations last night following his marriage to Miss Alice Dunlap.

Heart Still Boyish.

"Age is nothing to one whose heart is young," said he, as he smiled the jocund happiness of youth. Nor would he permit the unpleasantness in which his son finds himself to retard the joviality of his wedding day.

"Mrs. McNeil's age?" he echoed, with the rising inflection of coy astonishment. "She is at least 18. And I am her husband—and a true knight, I hope. Isn't that sufficient? I have known her for forty-five years."

A perusal of the marriage license records in the afternoon disclosed the following bland statistics:

"Malcolm McNeil, over 21, 1832 North La Salle street; Alice S. Dunlap, over 18."

Friends See Wedding.

The pleasant wedding took place in the afternoon amid the gentle smiles of a few friends in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Percy V. Castle, 314 North Waller avenue. Mrs. Castle is a sister of the bride. The Rev. Robert H. Beattie of the Austin Prebyterian church officiated.

The new Mrs. McNeil senior is not unknown in Chicago, although for many years she has been living with her sister in Santa Cruz, Cal. She is a daughter of the late George Dunlap, who was in the state legislature.

Mr. McNeil has been a widower for a little more than a year. His second wife, Orel Martin McNeil, died a year ago last August at the McNeil summer home, Glenora Springs, near Elgin. His first wife, Catherine Dempster McNeil of Dundee, died in 1870. In 1872 he established the firm of McNeil & Higgins.

Court Scene Different.

In the divorce court before Judge Gridley there seemed lacking the punctilious courtesy of the father in the things charged to the son. Mrs. Charles Higgins McNeil, who three years ago was Miss Bessie Glasscock, testified that her husband often slapped her, absented himself from home, and drank much.

Young McNeil was first married to Miss Myrtle Brown, daughter of Dr. Helman H. Brown, in 1907. She filed a suit for divorce shortly after McNeil went into bankruptcy with a showing of taxicab bills and $5 in cash. Soon after he married Miss Glasscock.

Out Late at Night.

"He would remain away most of the night," said Mrs. McNeil before Judge Gridley, who indicated that he would grant a decree. "One Sunday morning in August I insisted on my husband taking me out, and he wouldn't do it. I was sitting in front of the dressing table and he walked over and slapped me in the face. Then he walked out of the room.

"He was drinking and wanted to drive the machine and I wouldn't let him. He said he would and he struck me," testified Mrs. McNeil, speaking of another episode.

Mrs. McNeil said that while she lived with her husband he gave her an allowance of $5,000 yearly. The McNeils have been living at 759 Junior terrace.

LEADS WILSON IN ANALYSIS OF ELECTORAL VOTE

Summary of Conditions Indicates 193 for G.O.P. —Democrats, 136.

MANY STATES IN DOUBT

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

With the presidential election only ten days away, the Hughes campaign management presents figures by states on which to base its confidence in the defeat of President Wilson.

Democratic managers are not absolutely certain of any state outside of the south, although they have high hopes of several.

Republican managers, on the other hand, lay claim to enough electoral votes to place Mr. Hughes within striking distance of the White House.

ANALYSIS OF CLAIMS.

THE TRIBUNE, realizing that there is a great independent vote that is responsive to the arguments pro and con, presents herewith an analysis based on the claims of the contending factions.

It may be said that the Democrats, for publication, do not concede anything, not even Pennsylvania, and they do not give up, for publication, a solitary commonwealth west of the Mississippi, not even Iowa.

G. O. P. OUTLOOK BRIGHT.

At the same time, the more the conflicting reports and newspaper diagnoses are considered the brighter become the surface prospects for a Republican victory on Nov. 7.

Barring the possibility of a landslide, it is difficult to get any figures out of the available information that tend to indicate at this time a probable chance for President Wilson's reëlection.

Reports that come to THE TRIBUNE, when analyzed in comparison with the inside figures of the Republican and the Democratic national headquarters, lead to the conclusion that 193 electoral votes may be counted as sure for Hughes, and he needs 266 to win. In the 193 are not included the states of Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Indiana, Ohio, or Wisconsin.

HOW THEY STAND NOW.

Upon the basis of these reports, made up to Friday night, an approximation of the situation, reduced to figures, is as follows:

Republican, sure	193
Democratic, sure	136
Doubtful, probably Republican	123
Doubtful, probably Democratic	38
Doubtful, no advantage now	41
Total	531

In the last classification Wisconsin and Ohio are included.

HOW STATES LINE UP.

New York, according to latest reports, is believed to be sure for Hughes. But it is placed in the "doubtful, probably Republican," column in the above list. So is Indiana, in leaders' judgment.

So is New Jersey, which Democrats privately give up, and so is Connecticut, which the Democrats insist they will get, but which shows Republican symptoms.

Illinois is placed in the Republican column on the basis of reports both from Chicago and the downstate districts. The Hughes tendencies downstate have been most pronounced within the last ten days. Politicians are now inclined to judge the woman's vote in this state as half Hughes and half Wilson.

SUMMARY BY SECTIONS.

Summarized by groups of states, with the election ten days away, the latest reports indicate the following distribution of the electoral vote:

KAISER EATS CABBAGE STEW IN BERLIN SOUP KITCHEN

With Empress, He Tests Food Which Is Served to People of the German Capital.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—Kaiser Wilhelm and the kaiserin today visited a city soup kitchen in the central market hall and ate heartily of the cabbage and meat stew served out.

Mayor Von Wermuth, Frau Hedwig Heyl, and other prominent persons interested in the problem of feeding the city's population, greeted the kaiser.

A small boy elbowed his way through the crowd, and thanked the kaiser for seeing to it that he had a summer vacation at Ahlbeck. His majesty shook hands with the little fellow.

Bomb Peril to Kaiser.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—A bomb dropped by an allied aviator has killed the engineer driving the train of Emperor William of Germany, according to information received at Zurich, Switzerland.

EVANSTON GIRL TO JAPAN TO WED OLD SCHOOLMATE.

San Francisco, Oct. 28.—Miss Marie P. Cox of Evanston, Ill., sailed today on the Pacific mail liner, Venezuela, to be the bride, she says, of Dr. Tuyo Yamada, a dentist in Osaka, Japan, whom she met while both were students at Northwestern university, a year and a half ago. Miss Cox, who is 21 years old, arrived here several days ago with Mrs. Misaki Shimadzu, wife of the secretary of the Chicago Japanese Y. M. C. A., who will be her traveling companion.

Women "Spoof" Brother Bryan by Motor Trick

It was with an expansive grin that Mrs. J. A. H. Hopkins and Mrs. W. D. Ascough burst into the headquarters of the National Woman's party at 73 East Washington street last evening.

"We have had just the jolliest adventure with Mr. Bryan," exclaimed Mrs. Hopkins.

Mrs. Hopkins is chairman of the New Jersey branch of the Congressional union and Mrs. Ascough of the Connecticut branch. They have spent two days on a heckling expedition, in which William Jennings Bryan, one time secretary of state under President Wilson, has been the objective.

Calls It Gorgeous.

"It was perfectly gorgeous," said Mrs. Hopkins. "Mr. Bryan spoke in the arsenal at Springfield, and we held a meeting in our automobile on the outside. Our machine was covered with signs reading, 'Don't Vote for Wilson,' and the Springfield Democrats tried to get him into his machine without facing our signs.

"They moved his car from the front door to the side door, to the back door, and back to the front, with our car following. Then we got Mr. Bryan's car into a jam and it stuck there until he came out. His chauffeur tried to smoke us out with gasoline fumes, but we refused to move. When he came out we followed directly behind him to the station. The Democrats had to get in line behind our machine, so that he really was escorted to his train by the woman's party automobile. And nobody tore off our signs.

"After we had waved him off we went back to the crowds of Democrats about the arsenal and distributed our anti-Wilson literature."

St. Louis "Riot" Cited.

In East St. Louis Friday night the banners of the women were torn from their hands when they essayed a meeting to rival Mr. Bryan's speech. Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the Congressional union, issued an indignant statement over the affair.

"One of the most amazing features of the election campaign," she said, "is the astonishing lengths to which Democrats are ready to go in order to suppress the record of the Democratic hostility to the national enfranchisement of women."

HUGHES FAVORITE, 10 TO 9; PICK WILSON TO WIN OHIO

Two Wagers of $10,000 to $9,000 on G. O. P. Leader in New York City—Many Small Bets Placed.

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Two wagers of $10,000 to $9,000, with Hughes the favorite, were made at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight. These were the only large bets recorded there. At other hotels it was possible to obtain 10 to 9 for small amounts of from $100 to $500, but Tex Richard said he had not been able to place any big Wilson money at better than evens.

"As for Ohio," he said, "I have unlimited money to bet even Wilson carries the state, but the best I can get is 8 to 10, and little of that. Ten days ago Hughes was the favorite in Ohio, the odds being 10 to 7. My commissions come from Ohioans on the ground and familiar with the situation. Some of them are Republicans.

"I have still a lot of money to bet on Wilson at 10 to 9, but tonight I could only place $7,000 at evens."

ANALYSIS OF GROUPS.

Conditions within each of these groups are reported approximately as follows:

NEW ENGLAND STATES.

The Maine election, the only positive advance figures that anybody possesses on next week's results, settled the case in New England. Democrats insist the president is stronger in Maine than was the Democratic state ticket in September, but they lay no particular claim to Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, or Rhode Island.

Republicans have consistently claimed each and all of these and have added Connecticut to their sure column. That part of Connecticut directly tributary to Greater New York has caused the state to be classed as doubtful. If Connecticut is doubtful, the chances are altogether with the Republicans. The summary is: Republican—Maine, 6 New Hampshire, 4; Vermont, 4; Massachusetts, 18; Rhode Island, 5; total, 37. Doubtful, probably Republican, Connecticut, 7.

NEW YORK.

It will take a Wilson maelstrom in Greater New York, the solid and enthusiastic support of Tammany for the president, and reduced Republican pluralities in the upstate counties to carry New York for Wilson. This is the consensus of all political experts on the New York newspapers. The latest reports are that twenty-two Tammany leaders are working for Hughes, but preserving the face of Tammany hall by a certain degree of loyalty to the Democratic national ticket, with an eye on the main chance, which is the mayoralty election next year.

The registration upstate is absolutely favorable to the Republicans. The confidential poll of the state made by Republicans gives a minimum Republican plurality of 100,000 in the entire state. If the greater city gives more than 75,000 lead to Wilson it will surprise Democratic as well as Republican leaders who are on the inside. However New York is listed as doubtful, probably Republican, 45.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC STATES.

No ground has been found by Republicans for Democratic Chairman Vance McCormick's claim that his home state of Pennsylvania may go Democratic. The best information from Philadelphia and Pittsburgh is that an old time Republican majority may be expected.

President Wilson is in dire straits in his home state. New Jersey is conceded to the Republicans by all except the president's intimate friends. Lack of Democratic organization and genuine anti-Wilson sentiment among Democrats, combined with a hard working Republican committee. The commuters' votes, across from New York, is figured as pro-Hughes.

Delaware may be Republican because of the Du Pont factional fight, where brother is arrayed against brother. This row has imperiled the Hughes electors.

Maryland, for reasons of its own, may go to Hughes, and the chances at this moment are in favor of the Republicans. Baltimore, more than any other city, it is claimed, knows of the facts about conditions in Mexico, and is prepared to resent the outrages on some of its own citizens. Summary—Republican: Pennsylvania, 38. Doubtful, probably Republican: New Jersey, 14; Delaware, 3; Maryland, 8; total, 25.

HOW TO "DOPE" THE ELECTION

Use These Figures of 1908 and 1912 and Go Right Along with Your Guesses for Nov. 7.

THE following table shows the electoral vote of the states in 1908 when William J. Bryan was the Democratic nominee for president against William Howard Taft; the electoral vote in 1912 when President Taft was the Republican nominee for re-election, Theodore Roosevelt was the Progressive nominee, and Woodrow Wilson was the Democratic candidate; and the popular vote by states at the same election—1912.

THE SOLID SOUTH.

Twelve southern states are already counted for Wilson. Another may not be for Wilson, but it will not be for Hughes. This is Oklahoma, where reports alarming to the Democrats arise that the Socialist nominee may get ten electoral votes.

The flat claim is made by the Socialist national committee that Oklahoma farmers will vote in great numbers for Benson, and they insist that the first electoral votes ever cast for a Socialist candidate for president will come from this state. For the present, however, Oklahoma is counted for Wilson. Summary — Democratic: Virginia, 12 North Carolina, 12; South Carolina, 9; Georgia, 14; Florida, 6; Alabama, 12; Mississippi, 10; Louisiana, 10; Tennessee, 12; Arkansas, 9; Texas, 20; Oklahoma, 10; total, 136.

THE BORDER STATES.

These are West Virginia, Kentucky, and Missouri. West Virginia has been in a political turmoil, largely over state affairs, heightened by the contest for the senatorship. Republicans claim the ascendancy for Hughes. Democrats are certain it is Wilson's.

Kentucky is in a most interesting situation. Alvin T. Hert, the western Republican manager, who lives at Louisville, is thoroughly confident the state will be for Hughes. Mr. Hughes and Col. Roosevelt each have made spectacular forays into the mountain districts, where the population is overwhelmingly Republican, but where the voters never go to the polls at national elections.

This time Kentucky votes for no state or local offices. Federal laws govern the voting and there will be little or no stealing of the returns. The wet and dry issue is in the campaign. The registration in Louisville shows a net Republican gain of 2,200. If Louisville goes Republican, as it is insisted it will, the state will give its electoral vote to Hughes.

Missouri went Republican in 1904 and in 1908. Conditions are said to be ripe for another Republican victory. Democrats, however, have strengthened their lines and do not fear the result.

Should St. Louis deliver a 25,000 Hughes majority, claimed by Republicans and ridiculed by Democrats, Hughes might get the state. The Champ Clark Democrats have little use for Wilson.

The Republicans have a stemwinder of a senatorial candidate in Walter S. Dickey, who is after Senator Reed's scalp, and a state-wide vote on prohibition will bring out every German vote in the cities, which doesn't look good for the Democrats. Summary: Doubtful, probably Republican—West Virginia, 8; Kentucky, 13. Doubtful, probably Democratic—Missouri, 18.

THE MIDDLE WEST.

Ohio within the last forty-eight hours has indicated a switch of sentiment that has braced Republican hopes. There is no question about the doubtful condition of the state, but it cannot be said the odds are in favor of the Democrats. At the present time Ohio is a tossup.

Indiana, with the best state Republican organization it ever had, is claimed absolutely by Republican national headquarters. Everything from there indicates a Republican victory, but Indiana always is listed as doubtful until the votes are counted. In view of the strenuous character of the Democratic claims the state is put down as doubtful, but with the Republicans having much the best of the prospect.

Illinois in Hughes Column.

Illinois is now considered as removed from the doubtful column and placed in the list of sure Republican states. This is due entirely to the remarkable change in downstate sentiment, spurred on by a Republican organization that didn't get any action until about two weeks ago.

When the fear of a Wilson victory in the state shot the juice into the Republicans they got busy, shook off their lethargy, organized the women, who are voting for the first time for president, regained a substantial percentage of an organized labor vote that had been almost abandoned, and are ready now to turn in the regulation Republican majority.

Chicago shows evidences of going Republican, in spite of repeated Democratic claims that there is to be a Democratic landslide in the city. It will need about a 125,000 Wilson cleanup in Chicago to offset the Hughes majority downstate.

The latest reports from Illinois women tend to indicate that they will divide practically evenly as between Hughes and Wilson.

Michigan Republican.

Michigan is sure Republican "in spite of the campaign committees," the reports from there say. Henry Ford's propaganda is likely to carry Detroit for Wilson by a substantial plurality and the northern peninsula is not entirely satisfactory to the Republicans, but the state is surely for Hughes.

Wisconsin, with its local and state politics and its heavy German-American vote, is a puzzler to the national management. THE TRIBUNE's reports are favorable for Hughes. A fair estimate would place the state at this time in the doubtful list, without giving either party the advantage. THE TRIBUNE's advices are that by election day conditions will become such as to assure the state to Hughes.

Summary: Republican—Illinois, 29; Michigan, 15. Doubtful, probably Republican—Indiana, 15. Doubtful, no advantage to either side—Ohio, 24; Wisconsin, 13.

TRANSMISSISSIPPI STATES.

The Democrats claim everything west of the Mississippi, except Iowa and Kansas. THE TRIBUNE finds no substantial basis for this claim, but, on the contrary, the balance of the figures from Senator Walsh's headquarters and from Mr. Hert's office, diluted with THE TRIBUNE's own information, is that the prospects are much better for Mr. Hughes in the west than for President Wilson.

Minnesota, it is believed, is certain for Hughes, though claimed positively for Wilson. North and South Dakota are nailed down by the Democratic claims, but the best judgment obtainable on these states is that they are certain to be for Hughes.

Democrats make no pretensions in Iowa, although it is the home of the national treasurer, Wilbur W. Marsh. Kansas, with practically the solid Progressive vote behind Hughes, is abandoned by the Democrats.

Nebraska is doubtful and likely to go Democratic. This is due in chief to the Bryan influence and a tight state fight, in which the senatorship is a dominant factor.

Summary—Republican: Minnesota, 12; North Dakota, 5; South Dakota, 5; Iowa, 13; Kansas, 10. Doubtful, probably Democratic, Nebraska, 8.

THE MOUNTAIN STATES.

Both sides are fighting bitterly in Montana. The Democrats claim it, so do the Republicans. It is a 50-50 bet. Democrats claim Utah and Wyoming because of Republican factional differences. Republicans say these have been allayed and that both states are certain, and this is probably true.

Idaho is considered certainly Republican by Senator Borah. Colorado is put down as doubtful and likely to land in the Wilson list. President Wilson undoubtedly is feeling the effect of the opposition of the Woman's party in all these states, where the women have full suffrage.

Summary—Republican: Wyoming, 3; Utah, 4; Idaho, 4. Doubtful, probably Democratic: Colorado, 6; doubtful, no advantage to either side: Montana, 4.

ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

California, Washington, and Oregon have felt none of the prosperity that has been fed to the east and middle west by the war orders, because its factories couldn't make the stuff and ship it to Europe.

This is the thing that sticks out in discussing Pacific coast conditions. They are for a protective tariff, and all three are certain to go Republican, it is believed, for this single reason.

A local row in Washington, however, in which Senator Poindexter figures, reopened the Republican-Progressive wounds, and Democrats think they can capture the state. They also profess belief that Wilson will carry California while Hiram Johnson is getting elected to the senate as a Republican.

Summary—Republican: California, 13; Oregon, 5. Doubtful, probably Republican: Washington, 7.

THE SOUTHWEST BORDER.

Arizona and New Mexico present a peculiar condition. Ordinarily they would be conceded to the Democrats. They are right across the street from Mexico, however, and they know what has been in progress for two years.

Both states are doubtful, with the chances favoring the Republicans in New Mexico and favoring the Democrats in Arizona.

Nevada is doubtful, but likely to go to the Democrats in spite of the activities of the women against Senator Key Pittman.

2,000,000 BENSON VOTES, SOCIALIST CHIEFS CLAIM.

Party Secretary's Appeal for Funds Predicts Election of Four Congressmen and One Senator.

More than 2,000,000 votes for Allan L. Benson and George R. Kirkpatrick, heads of the Socialist party presidential ticket, was the prediction last night of Adolph Germer, national secretary, in a final appeal to the rank and file of the party for campaign funds amounting to $10,000 to be raised immediately. Mr. Germer also predicted the election of at least four Socialist congressmen and one United States senator.

CHICAGO HOLDS KEY TO ILLINOIS ON PRESIDENCY

Only Huge Landslide in City Can Put State in the Wilson Column.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Only a Wilson landslide in Chicago—a whirlwind sweep of the city for the president that would give him a lead of 100,000 or 125,000—can hold away from Hughes and Fairbanks the twenty-nine electoral votes of Illinois.

Such a landslide is nowhere in sight. Democratic county organization leaders insist the Democratic lead in Cook county will go to 150,000. They know this is improbable and they will be more than satisfied if they land the bulk of their county ticket. The Republican county managers are positive the Republican ticket will win in Cook county, from top to bottom.

Downstate for Hughes.

The downstate region, casting approximately two-thirds of the total vote of Illinois, is now considered safe for Hughes. That he will come to the Cook county line with a plurality of not less than 100,000 over the president is as well settled as anything can be ten days ahead of a national election.

Republican state leaders place the downstate Hughes margin at 175,000 or better. The 100,000 figure is conservative. Both the men's and women's votes are considered in all of the foregoing calculations.

The Democratic state committee, of course, admits nothing of the sort. While issuing nothing outside of a general claim that the Democrats will carry the counties outside of Cook, they do insist they will poll the full labor vote and 65 per cent of the woman's vote for Wilson. Upon this contention they see a chance to overturn the normal 200,000 male Republican majority in the entire state.

Lowden Seems Sure.

Col. Frank O. Lowden, for governor, will lead the Republican electors by something like 50,000 in the men's vote, most authorities agree. His election is considered by the Republican management and by his own personal lieutenants as unqualifiedly certain. One of them made a wager yesterday of $1,000 even money that Col. Lowden's plurality will be not less than 100,000.

The rest of the state ticket, it is expected by the Republican chiefs, will run right along with the twenty-nine electors. But a rousing Democratic plurality in Chicago would seriously imperil some of the Republican state candidates.

Conditions downstate have improved remarkably for the Republicans within two weeks. A fortnight ago the state was placed in the doubtful class by reason of threatening circumstances that apparently have been cleared away in large degree by Republican activity.

The Woman Vote.

Neglected at first by the men's county committees, the downstate Republican women were unorganized and leaderless. This has been changed radically through a definite, well-directed campaign, and in 95 out of 191 counties, the Republican women are now fully organized.

"He kept us out of war" issue has been battled to a standstill by the Republican campaigners and the Democrats have been unable to offset the facts and figures of the high cost of living that have proved to be effective arguments with housewives. Three weeks since the Democrats stood to hold 65 per cent of the total woman's vote, estimated downstate to be about 300,000 or 400,000. At this moment, all reports indicate the woman's vote is about evenly split, but swinging to Hughes at a ratio that indicates a 60 per cent Republican vote next week, which would mean a woman's Hughes plurality downstate of 60,000 or more.

The Labor Vote.

If the extent of the Republican defection to Wilson because of the Adamson law could be correctly gauged, there would be no difficulty in making an accurate forecast on the Illinois result.

The Democrats claim the labor voters will go in a solid block to Wilson. They have Samuel Gompers here now to attend to the delivery. The official heads of organized labor in the state and in Chicago are working to this end.

But the Republican advices from downstate are that the Republican campaign of education as to the true effect of the Adamson law, which didn't get into full swing until ten days ago, is getting concrete results in the industrial centers. In seventy of the downstate counties there is no "labor vote" as such and the Adamson law has hurt rather than helped Wilson in these purely agricultural and small town districts.

The outside estimate that Republicans will concede of the number of labor votes that can be switched from the Republican lines to the president is 100,000. Should this be true, the Republican electoral ticket still would be more than safe.

Wilson Slipping Back.

For popular consumption the Democratic claim is 150,000 lead for Wilson in Cook county. The Republican official claim is 100,000 for Hughes. Cold figures, percentages and ratios give to the Republicans a slight edge, barring always the Wilson landslide, that was more formidable the day the president was here week before last than it was yesterday.

SOCIAL WORKER COMES OUT FOR WILSON ON HIS RECORD.

Head of Henry Booth Settlement House Praises Work of President in Foreign Affairs Crisis.

Mrs. Alice Dow Allinson, head of Henry Booth settlement house, 701 West Fourteenth place, a former Progressive, has announced that she will support President Wilson for reëlection.

"I have decided to support and vote for President Wilson on his record in international as well as national affairs," she said.

"In foreign affairs President Wilson has so conducted the government of this country that, in a world aflame with war, we are at peace. I do not agree with those who question the agency of the president in keeping this country out of war. I believe that the people of this country are directly indebted to the wise leadership and far seeing statesmanship of the president for the peace we enjoy.

"I look about this city as I go my rounds, and I see little unemployment. The poor have work, and I am told this condition obtains all over the country."

HUGHES TO WIN, IS PREDICTION OF COL. HARVEY

Analyzes Electoral Votes by States—Previous Guesses Close to Results.

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Four years ago Col. George Harvey guessed wrong as to only one state in his election forecast. In 1908 he was only seventeen electoral votes out of the way, and in 1904 only twenty-two. The question now is whether his forecasting system is still good.

In April of the present year, before a single state had indicated a preference for the nominee, he closed an analysis of the political situation, under the heading "Nobody for Hughes but the People."

In the North American Review to be published tomorrow Col. Harvey predicts the election of Hughes as certain. It details as follows:

WILSON BRANDS HIS G. O. P. FOES 'UNSCRUPULOUS'

'Stop at Nothing to Gain Ends' and 'Have No Definite Policy,' He Declares.

Long Branch, N. J., Oct. 28.—"Unscrupulous," "braggarts," "without patriotism," "without definite policy"—these are some of the brands of fire hurled at the Republican party by President Wilson today at Shadow Lawn.

The occasion was "Wilson day." The address, which was manufactured from some of the strongest language the president has used during the campaign, was delivered before delegations that poured into Long Branch by special trains.

Included in the throng were several trainloads from Tammany Hall and deputations of working women from New York and surrounding cities.

Campaign Is Confused.

Mr. Wilson departed from his prepared speech, using some of the ideas but little of the language.

"The campaign that we are now engaged in has reached a point of culmination where perhaps it is possible and permissible to view the field and characterize the results," President Wilson said. "The field has been a very confused one because the forces of the opposition are confused.

"It has been a confusing campaign because the public mind has never been permitted to center upon any single issue that they cared to stand for. Most of the issues proposed at the outset have so utterly disappeared that it is doubtful if they ever existed, and that because of an inevitable division of counsels.

Says G. O. P. Has No Policy.

"They possess no stamp of definite action. They suggest no line of definte acton. On the other hand, the vocal element says that we have accomplished the purpose that they did have in mind; that they desire peace, but they do not like the way in which peace was accomplished.

"They prefer a peace that is produced by the methods of those who defy, of those who brag, of those who threaten. In order to establish their prowess they have forgotten their manners.

"They want a peace, indeed, but they do not want a peace obtained as gentlemen obtain it, but only as braggarts obtain it.

"We have peace. We have a peace founded upon the definite understanding that the United States, because it is powerful, is self-possessed; because it has definite objects, does not need to make a noise about them; because it knows that it can vindicate its right at any time, does not have to proclaim its right in terms of violent exaggeration. We have determined, whether we get the respect of the rest of the world or not, that we will deserve it by the way in which we act.

Without Patriotism.

"In order to reunite the Republican party by giving dominance to that section of it which has been rejected by that party itself, a time of world crisis is to be used in which it is absolutely necessary that the counsels of this nation should be united and unmistakable.

"What are we to say of the patriotism of men who take advantage of a crisis of the world, when the fortunes of men hang in uncertain balance, when the peace of this great nation can be maintained only by the most thoughtful and considerate means, in order to settle a question of power among themselves."

Policy of Democrats.

The president then outlined what he characterized as the definite policy of the Democrats.

"If a man believes that men ought to work only eight hours, he is expected to say so, and if he is asked whether he means everybody he ought to answer, 'Yes, everybody for whom it is possible.' There are some occupations in which you cannot divide the day up into eight hour periods, for the simple reason that you have got to do what nature determines.

"Have you noticed the interesting gyrations of the opposition with regard to the protective tariff? You know for a long time they said this ought not to be a matter of partisan politics We ought to have a tariff commission. Very well. We gave them the tariff commission.

"These gentlemen make predictions about what is going to happen after the war which are absolutely incredible. I wonder that they can make them with straight faces. They say that these nations with 25,000,000 men devoted to destruction, their own destruction included, constituting more than 50 per cent of the skilled mechanical force of these nations, are nevertheless secretly engaged in manufacturing a great body of products which are going to be dumped on us after the war when they are struggling for their breath in the titanic struggle for their life.

Future Is a Conundrum.

"If they can get anybody but themselves to believe this, why then perhaps we ought to make ready for it, but they don't know what is going to happen after the war. I don't know what is going to happen after the war and you don't. The only thing that we can do is to prepare the impartial eyes and methods of inquiries which will find out for us what is happening as fast as it happens and then deal with the facts as they arise."

ATHLETE IN WHITE HOUSE?

It May Come to Pass, for the Daughter of Nominee Hughes Has Proved Her Prowess in College.

Miss Catherine Hughes
EDMONDSON PHOTO

Newark, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, wife of the Republican presidential candidate, was delighted to learn today that her daughter, Miss Catherine Hughes, has "made" the freshman crew at Wellesley college. Mrs. Hughes formerly was a student at Wellesley and she spent Thursday there visiting her daughter.

'RED FIRE' TO END COUNTY FIGHT

G. O. P. to Close with 'Rally, Boys, Rally,' Cries, Oratory, Music, Parades.

Augmented by national and state campaign orators, the Republicans of Chicago and Cook county will make their final drive this week. From ten to fifteen meetings will be held every night under the auspices of the Cook County Republican committee, of which Homer K. Galpin is chairman. It is planned to make the county a glare of red fire during the entire week.

Noon meetings in loop theaters will be held every day. County candidates will make from five to ten meetings every night. vaudeville "stunts" will be introduced to hold the crowds pending the arrival of speakers, and voters will be regaled all week with political oratory.

Headliners in Oratory.

Col. Frank O. Lowden, E. J. Brundage, W. E. Mason, Medill McCormick, Morton D. Hull, C. S. Deneen, and Republicans of all factions will join in the final burst of speed.

The high cost of living as the answer to war prosperity is to be pressed as the issue at every meeting. The increased cost in prices of all commodities will be placed before the people in nearly every picture theater in Chicago and plastered on billboards.

Galpin Sees Success.

Mr. Galpin issued the following statement concerning the outlook in Cook county:

"There has been a remarkable change in sentiment in Chicago and Cook county during the last ten days and we believe confidently the county will go for Hughes, Lowden, and the entire Republican ticket.

"The man who today pays $8 for shoes that formerly cost him $4 and $5 and who pays 6 cents a loaf for bread that formerly sold for 5 cents is beginning to think.

"We are showing the people that Democratic rule has increased taxes from 25 to 50 per cent during the last four years.

"The prosperity argument being waged by the Democratic orators has proved a boomerang, for the people are beginning to realize that the so-called prosperity is temporary and is offset by the high cost of living.

"They admit the cost of living has increased because of the war and at the same time urge an alleged prosperity caused by the same war as reasons the Democratic ticket should be supported."

NORTH DAKOTA SAFE IN HUGHES COLUMN—BRITTEN.

Congressman, Back from Speaking Tour of State, Says It Will Give G. O. P. 25,000 Plurality.

Congressman Fred A. Britten, who has just returned from a stumping trip in North Dakota for Hughes and Senator Porter J. McCumber, made this prediction last night:

"It will be Hughes and McCumber in North Dakota by from 25,000 to 30,000.

"I base this prediction on the sentiment I observed at the meetings. I was told the crowds to which I spoke were much larger than those at John Burke's meetings in the same towns. Mr. Burke, who is United States treasurer and a former governor of North Dakota, is a candidate for senator, and supposed to be highly popular.

"North Dakotans are against Wilson first because of his foreign policies. There is a large percentage of foreign born in North Dakota. I found that even Canadians there accuse Wilson of being vacillating in his foreign policy.

"The second big reason for being against Wilson is the Underwood tariff. The North Dakota people have felt the effect of the tariff on such things as cattle and hides."

NEW YORK DEMOCRAT FOR HUGHES AND TELLS WHY.

H. A. Metz, Former Controller, "Regular" on State and Local Tickets, but Not on National.

A telegram received at western Republican headquarters yesterday from the New York headquarters said that when Herman A. Metz, former controller of the city of New York, was asked if he intended to vote for Charles E. Hughes, he made the following statement:

"I am a lifelong Democrat and as such I support the state and local Democratic tickets, which is the test of regularity. But I am first of all an American, then a New Yorker, and then a Democrat, and I feel that the national election will affect so vitally the honor and prosperity of the country that it is the duty of every good citizen to be governed solely in his vote for president by his unbiased judgment.

"As an American I feel that the present administration has failed to protect adequately American rights and American interests. As a New Yorker I have pride and confidence in the integrity, sagacity, and executive ability of former Gov. Hughes."

HUGHES LEADS POLL IN EAST

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Hughes has a real advantage over Wilson in the east on the basis of the poll of opinion among readers of the Odd Lot Review now being conducted. Of the total New York and north Atlantic states vote cast to date 62 per cent is for Hughes and 38 per cent for Wilson. Of the total New England vote cast 89 per cent is for Hughes and 11 per cent for Wilson. Of the middle western vote cast to date a majority is in favor of Hughes

HUGHES ASSERTS HE WILL PROTECT AMERICAN HONOR

Says That Nation Must Guard Rights of Citizens on Land or on the Ocean.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Charles E. Hughes told an audience here tonight that if he were elected president he would protect American rights on land and sea.

"There must be with us, as with our fathers," he added, "a willingness to sacrifice for the country that we love.

"It is love of country, not love of dollars, that will make America great," he said. "We want material advancement. We want to have the greatest prosperity we can achieve, but it is a mistake to suppose that with nations, as with men, great development and success can be attained if it is their low and unworthy ideals which dominate action. It is the lofty patriotic ideal that must beckon us on, and to which we must be faithful.

"If I am elected, we shall have an American administration with no deflection to serve any interests and with no deflection for the purpose of bending to the policy of any foreign power. What we hope is to have an American administration foursquare to the world, maintaining American rights on land and sea with respect to life, property, and commerce.

Decadent People Failure.

"There is no hope for a decadent people You may pass laws you please. You may have what party in power you please; but unless you have that love of country which preserved us in the awful struggle fifty years ago, unless you have that patriotism which will make you have some of the ideals of our institutions, of the liberties which we have gained here, it is idle to talk about the future of the United States.

"I do not want to be president of a people that are not ready to give their all for their liberties, their land, their country that they love.

"Now arises some one to say, 'There have been those going through the land who have said a vote for me is a vote for war.' I repudiate that statement as an unworthy and preposterous suggestion. I am devoted to the interests of peace. I have spent all my life in connection with the institution of peace.

Duty of Executive.

"We must take a view of the primary duty of the executive. It is not his function to barter. It is not his function to grant or withhold privileges of citizenship. He is the executive of the people. He is intrusted with the business management of the great affairs of the nation. And his first duty is to give a first class, efficient, business administration of the government of this country.

"At the outset of this administration there were called to the high positions of secretary of state and secretary of the navy—positions closely related to our interests—men of amiable qualities, men of excellent character, but men very clearly unequal to the high duties of those positions. We cannot attend to American business in that way.

"And recently we have found our secretary of war so busy explaining his unfortunate utterances that it seems he could hardly have time to attend to the necessary duties of his office. It is of little importance that we should have vast appropriations for preparedness unles we have the most competent administration in the spending of public money."

Honor Needed for Peace.

After asserting that he "was a man of peace," Mr. Hughes continued:

"All my training has been in the school for the peaceful settlement of controversies. I desire to see a world at peace. When this great war ends nothing will be more important than to secure in the most practical way international coöperation and organization through world courts, tribunals of conciliation and frequent conferences that will cement and make permanent the world peace.

"We are devoted to the ideals of peace. We have no aggressive policies We do not covet anything. We do not want to exploit anybody. We want peace.

"A vote for me is a vote for peace. but is a vote for the maintenance of American rights and peace with honor and lasting peace. What a mistake it is to suppose you can conserve your peace and forfeit your self-respect. You live in a world where friendship, our friendship, is desired by all. We desire the friendship of every nation. We have certain rights. Our citizens have certain rights. If we want peace we must have the confidence and esteem of other nations. They must respect us. We shall forfeit our reputation for competency and understanding of our position if we are not firm in the maintenance of known rights."

Close to an Accident.

Mr. Hughes was nearly run down by his own special train at Oswego. A nervous chauffeur drove the automobile containing the nominee past the landing at the railway station, directly across the tracks in front of the slowly approaching train. A sharp curve and a cut hid the train from view, and the blaring of a brass band drowned the noise of its approach. Hundreds of persons were massed about the car.

When the engine came into view it was less than thirty feet from the nominee's automobile. The chauffeur backed into the car behind, and the engineer jammed on the emergency brakes. The combination prevented an accident. There was a scramble for safety by the crowd and no one was injured.

CHANGE IN STYLES COMING.

Voluminous Flares Will Be Out of Fashion by Next Spring.

Voluminous flares and rippling billowiness will be quite old fashioned by next spring in spite of its present vogue among devotees of fashion.

This was the hint that came yesterday in a bulletin received by J. P. Hovland, president of the Chicago Garment Manufacturers' association, from A. A. Cohn, president of the National Cloak, Suit, and Skirt Manufacturers' association.

The bulletin announced that the designers and manufacturers from the entire country will hold a convention and exhibit in Chicago No. 17 and 18 at the Hotel La Salle. What will take the place of the present styles will be determined and preparations made then for the spring trade.

TEUTON WAITERS ROUT U. S. FROM BERLIN (ROOM)

C Battery Forces, However, Use High Explosive Wallops in Riot at Cafe.

Veterans of many a hard dug trench, and muscled by other chores of the fighting man's curriculum in San Antonio, the boys of Battery C were mustered out yesterday and gravitated to the electric lit belt of Miladi Chicago to circulate with the loop hound and scoop up a dipper or so from the dizzy waters of the precinct.

While most of the battery attended the banquet at the University club, several detachments went free lancing, and one of these brought up at the Berlin room of the Bismarck hotel in West Randolph street. They took a fancy to a table which was reserved for a theater party. The humble trundler of drinks and pate de so on told the soldiers so. If he had known what was coming he would have called them by telephone to tell them.

Uses Direct Fire.

After a little discussion one of the battery boys hit the waiter a crack in the eye. As he got up another poked him. In all, it is asserted by spectators, five soldiers left their mark on the waiter. Paul Eitel, one of the brothers who own the Bismarck hotel rushed over and tried to quell the disturbance. He was hit in the jaw and the nose.

Waiters and bus boys now rushed up to aid in ejecting the artillerists. The weather was never worse for ejecting. There was a heavy rain of fists and every once in a while a bus boy or waiter would limp out of line.

High Explosive Wallops.

They succeeded in punching three of the soldiers with satisfactory results, however. Two of these, with bloody noses, black eyes, and other marks, were finally taken out, placed in taxicabs, and sent home. Another lingered a while with his companions, but the management, although unwilling to cause the arrest of the men, refused to serve them any more drinks.

A treaty was patched up finally and the remnant of the fighting detachment were able to remain and secure drinks. The men who remained declare the trouble was due to one or two members of the party who had a little too much to drink and became unruly. All of the men gave fictitious names to the police.

WOMEN ASK I. C. CHANGE.

Club Committee Favors Track Depression and Electrification of Road's Terminal.

The efficiency committee of the Chicago Woman's club yesterday adopted a motion favoring the depression of the Illinois Central railroad tracks and the electrification of its new terminal. Several of the members of the club said they would be present at the meeting of the council terminals committee next Wednesday, when President Markham of the Illinois Central is expected to address that body with regard to the railroad's plans. The efficiency committee also discussed plans for bringing about the defeat of the park consolidation bill. Mrs. E. E. Smith presided.

Gov. Dunne, members of his staff, former Secretary of War Jacob M. Dickinson, and other notables have accepted invitations to attend. Gen. James E. Stuart will be toastmaster at a banquet which will follow the reception.

Shoots Woman Who Divorced Him.

FIRST CAVALRY PLACED ON PAR WITH REGULARS

Judge Landis, Before 3,000 at Fort Sheridan, Praises Record of Troopers.

More than 3,000 spectators attended the ceremonies of welcome to the men of the First cavalry regiment at Fort Sheridan yesterday.

Gen. Young and Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis were the principal speakers and took the men back to the city's heart for all the people.

"The regiment is a match for the regulars," said Judge Landis, and quoted the assertion of Gen. Parker, U. S. A., that the First Illinois cavalry was the finest organization of its kind in the country. Judge Landis described himself as the "unofficial agent of the First cavalry," and said the position would be continued indefinitely.

Got Boys Use of Barracks.

It was through his efforts on a visit to Washington, combined with the publicity given the encampment of the First field artillery regiment, that the war department decided to quarter the cavalrymen in barracks at Fort Sheridan instead of leaving them in field tents. Judge Landis was cheered repeatedly during his speech. He declared that the day the First cavalry, of which his son, Reed Landis, is a member, marches back to Chicago, he will declare a holiday in his court.

Col. Foreman Responds.

Col. Milton J. Foreman replied to the speeches for the regiment. A reception and banquet was given last night at the fort.

A mounted parade and review drill was given by the crack cavalry regiment and the men went through their close and open order work with the swing of seasoned regulars.

Officers of the field artillery remaining at Fort Sheridan declared yesterday that reports of rivalry between Capt. Judah and Maj. Vincent for the colonelcy of the regiment came from an uninformed source, as neither officer is eligible for the position. One of the requirements for the office is that the tenant shall have served five years in the militia or regular army.

The only officers who have completed this requirement are Capt. E. A. Ewing, Maj. A. V. Smith, Capt. Henry J. Reilly, Capt. C. G. Redden, Capt. F. M. Course, Lieut. Max Payne, and Lieut. George Gould.

Eighth Gets Welcome.

Marcing troug a lane of welcoming relatives, friends, and spectators, the Eighth (Negro) regiment returned from Mexico yesterday, and after a parade through the loop turned south to the armory.

The troop train arrived shortly before 9 o'clock in the Illinois Central station, and there was greeted by the welcoming shouts of thousands. A committee of welcome, headed by Mayor Thompson, a group of aldermen, civic societies and the Hull House band, met the soldiers and led the parade through the downtown streets.

ROB AND SHOOT TAXI MAN.

Two Fares Hold Up and Wound Driver for Parmelee Company in South Park Avenue.

Matthew Pulchia, a chauffeur for the Parmelee company, was shot in the back after being robbed of $5 last night by two men who engaged him to drive them to a point between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets in South Park avenue. The men, who engaged Pulchia at the Dearborn station, fled after shooting him. The chauffeur was taken to Mercy hospital in a serious state.

BUSINESS MEN OF CHICAGO TELL CASE FOR HUGHES

Protective Tariff and Courageous Character of Candidate Impress Them.

Why Chicago business men are supporting Hughes and should support him is told by leading members of the Hughes Business Men's league. In brief statements a number of the members of the league have expressed themselves forcefully and clearly. They are representative men of the different branches of industry and men whose opinions count in the business world. None of them is a candidate for office; they are all interested solely as citizens and men of affairs, seeking the welfare of the country and desirous of upholding the honor of the nation. The statements are as follows:

JOHN V. FARWELL

I am for Hughes, because

First—He favors a labor protecting protective tariff.

Second—He is against legislation by threat, whether good or bad.

Third—As governor of New York he showed himself to be the best friend labor ever had.

Fourth—He would surround himself with the ablest and best equipped men in the country as his advisers.

Fifth—He would be firm, courageous, and respected in all foreign intercourse.

Sixth—His administration would be capable of handling the after the war crisis, industrial, social, and diplomatic and Wilson's would not.

Seventh—He is a true civil service man.

Eighth—He means what he says.

Ninth—His character inspires unlimited confidence.

JULIUS ROSENWALD

Mr. Hughes' creditable record as governor of the greatest state in the union and as counsel for the Armstrong Insurance committee makes my belief in him implicit. No governor of any state ever left his office with more notable achievements to his credit. He recognized no obligation for his election except to the people of his state as a whole. He would enter the presidency to serve the people of the entire country, unhampered by promises. He would surround himself with able advisers and take counsel with them. Because I believe Mr. Hughes has demonstrated that he is a fearless, conscientious, able executive, I ardently advocate his election as president o. the United States.

A. C. BARTLETT

I favor the election of Mr. Hughes because he represents the kind of government which seems to me as near ideal as any we can hope for at the present time.

Because he is not only a man of integrity and honest purpose, but one who stands bravely and firmly, without vacillation, for his convictions.

Because during the years which may precede and those which may follow the close of the European war, the United States will need a man of practical ideas and of sound judgment—one not too much given to visionary theories—at the head of the nation's affairs.

Because Mr. Hughes believes in those principles of government the practice of which has always tended toward permanent prosperity, and not in those the practice of which has heretofore given the country financial distress, and its people the discomforts and pains of poverty.

We all realize that present prosperity is ephemeral and must necessarily be followed by a condition which will call for reorganization and readjustment of business on sound business principles.

As a citizen and business man I am hoping for the election of Mr. Hughes.

LA VERNE W. NOYES

I am for Hughes for president because he has always been perfectly sane, safe, wise, and logical in his long career before the public. Even in handling the highly technical work with the insurance companies, which brought him so conspicuously before the public, he showed a wisdom, judgment, and appreciation of the theory and details of insurance companies that seemed vastly to exceed that of any of the experts.

His wonderful readiness in answering wisely and felicitously—offhand and quickly—the heckiers during his campaign has established the fact that there is nothing related to the world's greatest office, to which he is soon to be elected, which he has not thought out correctly and with wonderful shrewdness, to the minutest detail.

While, as was well known, Roosevelt was my choice, I am satisfied that no one will ever have cause to regret the choice of Hughes. My appreciation of his intellectual greatness and stamina increases with each day he spends on the stump in his public, oral examination of his fitness for the great place."

ALBERT M. DAY

I am opposed to Wilson:

Because he has no fixed policies, but changes as his personal interests dictate.

Because he will not consult the experience of able men on subjects concerning which he knows nothing, preferring his own opinion, unsupported by facts.

Because he and his party are opposed to a protective tariff. When the war is over the necessities of foreign nations will compel them to sell every dollar's worth of goods they can make. Ours will be the best market in the world, because we have the most money. Without a protective tariff, our operatives will either be out of work or receive pay based on wages in foreign nations—about half of the present scale in this country.

I am in favor of Hughes:

Because he is the exact opposite of Wilson.

He is open, honest, pure minded, courageous, willing to seek information from highest sources, and positive in action after his mind is made up.

He is a good judge of men and desires strong, able, honest men around him, as his record shows.

He believes in a tariff sufficient to protect our manufacturers and operatives against competition with low wages.

WILLIAM WRIGLEY JR.

I am absolutely convinced that the commercial and industrial welfare of this great country demands the election of Hughes.

Hughes is my kind of a man, and he stands for the whole people. His public record has proved this. He never will be a trimmer—he does not know how to be.

To my mind, Hughes will mean to this country what Abraham Lincoln meant to it fifty-five years ago, and I believe that every thinking man who is not blinded by our present prosperity should vote for Hughes.

HENRY R. RATHBONE

I am for Hughes for president because he stands for twofold protection:

First—Protection to American industries and American labor—a cardinal principle of the Republican party, to which the Democratic party has always been opposed.

Second—Because he stands for protection to the rights and lives of American citizens and the honor of the American flag.

ALFRED L. BAKER

I am for Hughes because all nations in the world, including England, are strongly in favor of the theory of a protective tariff, and neither the Democratic party nor Wilson has ever abandoned their old idea of the theory of free trade and a tariff for revenue only. Just before the war broke out railroad earnings were decreasing, labor was out of employment, and gold was being shipped to England. This was due to the Underwood tariff bill, passed by the Democratic congress with the approval of the president.

I am in favor of Hughes because it is necessary for this country to undertake, on a large scale and in the most scientific manner, a policy of preparedness, not only in a military sense but more important still, in an industrial sense.

No one of us, in his own affairs, would trust a man to do a larger piece of work who had ignominiously failed in doing a smaller one. Josephus Daniels has failed to maintain the efficiency of the navy, even within the necessities of his department, without any new appropriations. He has been against military preparedness and against an increase of the navy, and is only a reluctant supporter of the present policy. If the Democratic party wins he will be at the head of the expenditure of something like $500,000,000, which has been appropriated for the increase of the navy and the first line of defense. Can this man be trusted to do this work efficiently? The answer is "No," and yet the success of the Democratic party means Daniels keeps his job.

CHARLES W. FOLDS

I feel that a crisis has come in American affairs, where it is absolutely essential that we should have as president a strong, resourceful man, backed by men who have stood for industrial achievement and progress. I believe Charles Evans Hughes represents all of this. I believe that we need have no fear that a man who has filled the high positions that he has already enjoyed, including that of an associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States, would appoint upon his cabinet any one who in any way would endanger the security and progress of this nation.

I believe it is essential to the man or woman who is working for a wage and who desires a continuance of that wage and to the man or woman who believes in peace and desires a continuance of that peace, that Charles Evans Hughes be elected.

It Costs Him Just $50.

Fred Machin of 2956 Union avenue, a broker, paid a fine of $50 and costs before Judge Trude yesterday. He was accused by Miss Helen Hart of 2915 Parnell avenue, a stenographer, of having annoyed her and threatened her with harm if she did not accept his attentions.

Received Data from Tufts Physician Who Was Told Facts by Former Wilson Aid.

were its exact words, which, however, I cannot repeat exactly, but the substance was that the imperial German government was not to put too serious an interpretation on the words "omit no word or act."

"'On the contrary, he would be inclined, provided the German government did not see fit to yield to the demands of the United States, to use his efforts toward submitting the entire matter to an imperial international tribunal, the decision to be made only after the war.

Bryan "Spills the Beans."

"'Both note and postscript were submitted to and signed by Secretary Bryan. This, according to Mr. Breckinridge, was too good for Mr. Bryan to keep to himself, with the result that it reached Secretary Garrison's ears, who immediately, with two or three (I do not remember which other members of the cabinet) called upon Mr. Wilson and demanded that he withdraw the postscript under the threat that otherwise they would resign and make the matter public. Mr. Wilson immediately yielded and Secretary Garrison and the others left.

"'Immediately after this President Wilson summoned Secretary Bryan to the White House and when the latter left President Wilson had the assurance of his resignation; whether at Mr. Wilson's request, because Secretary Bryan had been responsible for the matters reaching Secretary Garrison's ears, or whether presented by Secretary Bryan because there had been a previous misunderstanding between Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan that the latter would sign the note proper only with the understanding that such a nullifying postscript should be sent and the president was now unable to fulfill the agreement, Mr. Breckinridge was unable to state.

Could Not Support Wilson.

"'I asked Mr. Breckinridge if he would be willing to bring such knowledge as he possessed to the active support of Mr. Hughes. He said that he was still at heart a Democrat, but that neither he nor any other patriotic American could support Wilson. Whether, however, he would be willing to actively support Hughes he said he could not say at that early uate.

"'With best wishes for the success of your campaign, I am

"'CHARLES HARVEY BAILEY.'

"This continued Senator Lodge, "simply throws an additional light on the shifty character of this administration in its foreign policies.

It is also of interest in another way, for it apparently shows that Mr. Bryan's reason for resigning was the highly creditable one of objecting to having his signature go out appended to a document differing in an essential point from the one which he had signed."

McAdoo Denies Lodge Charge.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—Secretary McAdoo tonight declared to be "without foundation" the charge by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts that President Wilson had added a postscript to the Lusitania note informing Germany that "strict accountability" need not be taken seriously, which disappeared when cabinet members threatened to resign.

Robert Greulich, 6 years old, was run over by a steam roller in Green Bay road, Lake Forest, yesterday and killed. The boy is the son of John Greulich, gardener on the estate of Carter H. Fitzhugh. He attempted to dodge out of the way of an automobile and jumped in front of the roller. D. Watson, engineer of the machine, was unable to stop in time.

SERVANT GIRL ENDS LIFE.

Hilda Putala, 27 years old, a domestic, despondent because she was out of work, hanged herself to a door in a rooming house at 425 Roslyn place last night. Mrs. Laura Erunnine, keeper of the rooming house, discovered the girl's body.

$AVE YOUR COAL 20%

20% SAVING GUARANTEED

High price coal and a possible shortage this winter is a warning to every coal buyer to prepare NOW for coal economy!

The Big Loss in Fuel is caused by imperfect combustion, resulting in unburned gases, soot and smoke.

The Crown Fuel Saver prevents this waste by causing better combustion of the coal, increasing the heating efficiency of your plant and burning the coal cleaner, utilizing the heat contained therein. This is accomplished by preheating the oxygen before mixing with the coal gases. The device acts as an automatic heat regulator, giving you a steady heat day and night—no cold rooms after fires are banked—no early rising to get up heat, as the fire holds longer. Hard or soft coal can be used. This device is adaptable to steam, hot air or hot water heating plants in residences, apartment buildings, churches, hospitals, schools, etc., and lasts as long as the furnace.

We Give a 10-Day Free Trial

at our expense on your own heating plant to demonstrate the merits of the Crown Fuel Saver. The test is simple and convincing, you keep a record of the amount of coal burned before and after the device is installed and compare the two records. Thousands of dollars were saved last winter by the use of Crown Fuel Saver—it gave the people better heat—less ashes—less clinkers—less soot and smoke—less labor—cleaner heating plants—more uniform heat, day and night—made tenants comfortable and satisfied, which kept flats rented. It will do the same for YOU.

We Guarantee a 20% Saving or No Pay

The Crown Fuel Saver has proven its efficiency and superiority over any device ever placed on the market by actual tests, and the abundance of letters on file from those whose names appear in the opposite lists is positive evidence that cannot be disputed. We have stacks of letters like the following. Ask us for copies.

Washington Park National Bank, Chicago.

We consider the Crown Fuel Saver which you installed for us a good investment. Since its installation on our No. 9 Kewanee boiler we have better heat and it shows a saving of over 20% in coal.

We cheerfully recommend it to users of coal.

Yours truly,
Washington Park National Bank.
A. E. Olson, Cashier.

Holy Name Cathedral, Chicago.

Gentlemen: It gives me the greatest pleasure to report on the excellent results obtained from the six instruments installed on our different furnaces.

We find that we have better heat, burning a great deal less coal and the ashes are reduced to a fine, sandlike condition, showing that the heat units have been liberated and utilized. We find also that the Fuel Saver not only saves coal, but saves labor as well.

The first installation made on one of our plants demonstrated, without question, the merits of your Fuel Saver and we were so well pleased at that showing that we immediately ordered installations for the balance of our plants. From the results we are getting, we feel that every one burning coal should have your device installed as quickly as possible, thus preventing a waste of fuel, which means a financial waste.

We beg to remain
Yours sincerely,
Holy Name Cathedral,
By Adrian Kediel, Chief Engineer.

McKey & Poague, Real Estate and Renting, Chicago.

We have two of your Crown Fuel Savers on our Number 6 Kewanee boilers in the Woodlawn Trust & Savings Bank Bldg., and we are satisfied that they are saving us from 20 to 30% on coal.

Yours very truly,
McKey & Poague,
By Geo. W. Kemp.

West Chicago Masonic Temple, Chicago.

On or about November 15th, 1915, you had installed in the West Chicago Masonic Temple four Crown Fuel Savers, No. 2.

We found them very satisfactory indeed and fully up to the representation you made when requesting that we purchase them and from actual experience we burned 43% more coal and had double the amount of ashes before the installation than we have since. The weather reports show the outside temperature to be practically the same.

Our janitor finds that he has much less firing to do, which of course means a saving of labor as well as coal.

We will cheerfully show the fuel saver to any one contemplating installing them.

Yours very truly,
Frank E. Locke,
Pres. West Chicago Masonic Temple.

This is an issue that we cannot evade, so we state the facts fairly and frankly.

Months ago we were fortunate in placing contracts for candy-making material at prices which enabled us to maintain our old price. We have given this benefit to our customers. We must pay enormous advances for material covering future supply.

Most folks know that Martha Washington profits are amazingly low for our output—pure, wholesome, homemade chocolates and bonbons—the most popular family candies—yet selling way below most other candies not as good.

Our standard is so high that in spite of our large and constantly growing output, profits are small. The materials used in and to pack Martha Washington Candies have in one year enormously advanced—in some cases 50%.

We refuse to reduce our quality or to regulate our many varieties to fit conditions, therefore our only alternative is to add the advance to our selling price and continue to make and serve 16 oz. net weight to the pound of that same high class, old time Martha Washington Candies that is known the country over for its par excellence.

There is no other way out for good candy makers whose profits have been fair and who consider "quality first."

We shall continue the present quality of Martha Washington Candies. There positively will be no change unless to improve, thus hewing true to the line of our kitchen motto, "Not how cheap can we make it, but how good."

EAT BITTER LOAF OF SHAME UNDER WILSON, SAYS T.R.

President Looks Forward to War, but Fails to Prepare Nation for Test.

New York, Oct. 28.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt in an address at the Brooklyn Academy of Music tonight, declared that if today is what "our Democratic friends" call "Wilson day" it should be "appointed a day of fasting and humiliation."

"For during the last three years," he went on, "the people of the United States have eaten the bitter bread of shame and trod the paths of dishonor under the leadership of Mr. Wilson."

The colonel directed most of his attack against the recent declaration of Mr. Wilson that the present is the last great world war that the United States can keep out of.

"We never have had any candidate for so high an office who was so utterly indifferent to the reversal of all his professed convictions or principles and, above all, so indifferent to the flat contradiction between his words and his acts on almost every issue of real importance before the people," he said.

"Insincerity and Hypocrisy."

After quoting the president's words in regard to this country and the next war, Mr. Roosevelt said that "never have we had a greater degree of insincerity and hypocrisy than is contained in such a plea for reëlection by the president who has himself practiced the coldest and most selfish neutrality when all these things that he in the abstract condemns were in the concrete committed at the expense of Belgium and of the Armenians and of the Syrian Christians."

Taking up the president's "appeal for support on the ground that he has kept us out of war," Mr. Roosevelt declared that if it was just to keep out of the present war, then it would be just in the future to keep out of all similar wars, and "if the president, on the other hand, is right in saying that we never shall keep out of any such wars in the future, then he condemns himself for keeping out of this war."

"Failed to Do Duty."

"You say, Mr. Wilson, that hereafter America must exert her whole force, moral and physical, throughout the round globe if the fundamental rights of humanity are invaded," Col. Roosevelt said. "Do you not know that it is abject cowardice to say that this must be done hereafter when you do not dare do it now?

"If you mean what you say as to the future, then you must mean precisely and exactly that this is your duty in the present. Do it now, Mr. President. It is sheer hypocrisy to chatter ten days before election as to what ought to be done in the future, when throughout your whole term of office you have failed in the present to do what you now say is your duty."

If the president's words can mean anything, the colonel continued, and "never again are we to be neutral, then he is inexcusable in having kept us so shamefully unprepared.".

"Why has he allowed three and a half years to pass without any preparation?" he asked. "Remember also that it will be four years more before we even get the half measure of preparedness which Mr. Wilson now offers—that is, seven and a half years after Mr. Wilson took office. He has talked peace; he has written of peace; he has opposed preparedness.

"He has been conducting his campaign on the issue that he has kept us out of war. And now he turns around and says that we shall surely be involved in the next war and that we ought to fight whenever there is a repetition of such a crime as the invasion of Belgium or the butchery of the Armenians and of the Syrian Christians."

Not Wise in Time.

Mr. Wilson's "delay and vacillation about preparedness," he said, have cost us "seven years in time and needless billions of dollars in money. Nine-tenths of wisdom is being wise in time."

Mr. Wilson's own Cincinnati speech, he said, is a more severe arraignment than any outsider could make of the "criminal folly" of his administration in "refusing to begin to prepare."

"Thanks to Mr. Wilson," he continued, "our unpreparedness in naval and military matters is appalling and our dereliction in duty to humanity at large shocking beyond description.

"But our spiritual unpreparedness, thanks to Mr. Wilson, is even greater than our physical unpreparedness. The 'too proud to fight' doctrine is a cloak behind which the coward hides. It has been the chief cause responsible for the spread of the spirit of disloyalty in the United States among those who openly or secretly believe in a divided citizenship. No man will be permanently loyal to a country that is too proud to fight."

The former president referred to Secretary of War Baker as a "nice man" who would fit better at a "pink tea" than as a cabinet officer. Several in the crowd hissed when he mentioned Mr. Baker's name, and the colonel, raising his hand, said:

"O, don't hiss Mr. Baker."

He added that Mr. Baker might be "put in a corner or in front of a fireplace, with his knitting, and he would be an ornament to the fireplace."

$1,667,757 IS CAMPAIGN FUND OF REPUBLICANS

Sixteen Chicagoans Among the Larger Contributors—22,226 Donate Money.

New York, Oct. 28.—Contributions to the Republican campaign fund total $1,667,757 to date, it was announced at Republican national committee headquarters today.

A statement from the Democratic national committee last night announced contributions to the Democratic campaign of $1,006,283.

The largest single contribution to the Republican fund was $30,000, given by Harry Payne Whitney. Expenditures to date in the campaign to elect Hughes total $1,578,934.

22,226 Contributors.

The campaign funds this year have come from 22,226 contributors, the Republican statement announced, while four years ago only a little more than 2,000 names were on the contributors' list for the entire campaign.

An average of about 500 checks for $10 reach the treasurer daily, the statement said. A high record for small contributions was made on Oct. 13, when 1,300 checks for $10 were received.

Congressional Funds.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—Contributions to the Republican congressional committee's campaign fund have totaled $316,930, according to the statement filed with the clerk of the house of representatives today by former Senator N. B. Scott, treasurer of the committee. The contributions were from 2,073 persons, an average of $152.87½, he said.

The National Hughes alliance also filed a report showing that it had received campaign contributions of $172,903 and had expended $99,402. The report showed that $5,000 each had been contributed by seven men—J. P. Morgan, Clarence Mackay, George W. Perkins, Louis Clarke, Harry F. Sinclair, Robert Winsor, and F. C. Walcott. By far the largest item listed in the expense account was $48,697 for advertising.

Democratic Report.

The Democratic congressional campaign committee today reported to the clerk of the house of representatives expenditures and "obligations" of $41,383.31 and contributions of $25,646.42.

The Woodrow Wilson Independent league reported expenditure of $31,030. Among the contributors to this fund was the National committee, $7,971.

Jacob H. Schiff gave $5,000 to the Woodrow Wilson Independent league; William Kent, California, Independent congressman, gave $4,000.

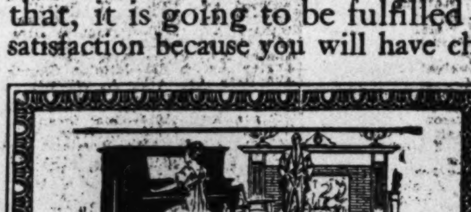
Piano Time is Here

And some quiet promise made to yourself, your wife or your children, is going to be fulfilled. But more than that, it is going to be fulfilled in such a way as to mean lasting satisfaction because you will have chosen your piano or player-piano here.



Choose a Mason & Hamlin

from the many designs offered at our store, and you have settled the Piano Question permanently. So durably built is this instrument that you will never need another. And it will be one of those worth-while heirlooms in your children's home for years to come. Musically, the Mason & Hamlin is the most beautiful piano the world has ever known;

or Choose a Conover Piano

—a piano that's a year in the making. Every detail of its construction suggests painstaking care. You cannot find an instrument built with greater solidity, and it is the solidity that has so much to do with its lasting tone quality. This fact was not overlooked by two great Universities that have recently purchased Conover Pianos for their Departments of Music.

Player-Piano Buyers Are Sure to Come Here

for this is Chicago's Player Headquarters. Here you will find over thirty different styles and finishes from which to select, and here only will you find the celebrated SOLO CAROLA INNER-PLAYER, the real sensation of the year. No other player piano yet invented will enable you to produce such beautiful musical effects. It is the most artistic—the most musicianly of player pianos. If you have formed an opinion of player pianos because your neighbor may have purchased unwisely one of the mechanical kind, you have done our instrument a great injustice. Give us but five minutes of your time on your next shopping trip and we will prove it.

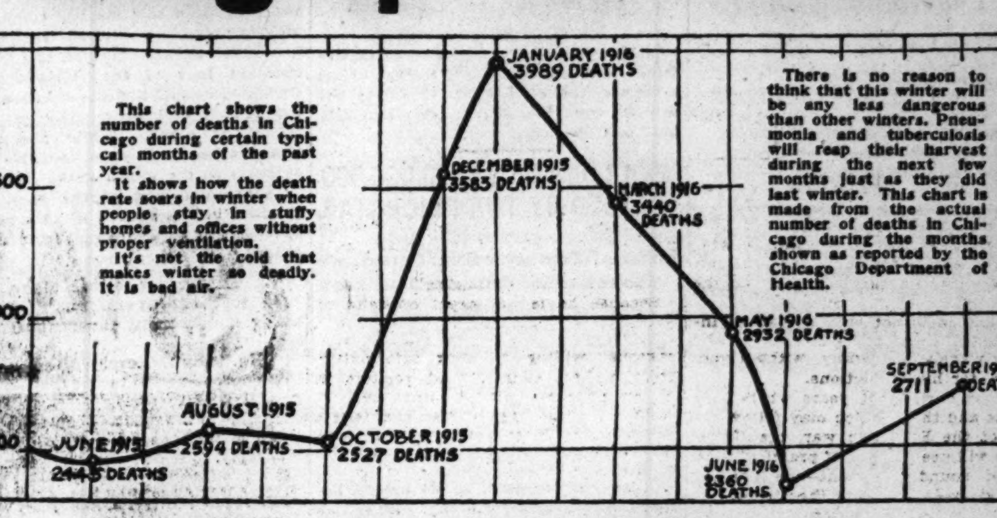
Chicago's Death Rate Is Going Up This Winter



This chart shows the number of deaths in Chicago during certain typical months of the past year.

It shows how the death rate soars in winter when people stay in stuffy homes and offices without proper ventilation.

It's not the cold that makes winter so deadly. It is bad air.

There is no reason to think that this winter will be any less dangerous than other winters. Pneumonia and tuberculosis will reap their harvest during the next few months just as they did last winter. This chart is made from the actual number of deaths in Chicago during the months shown as reported by the Chicago Department of Health.

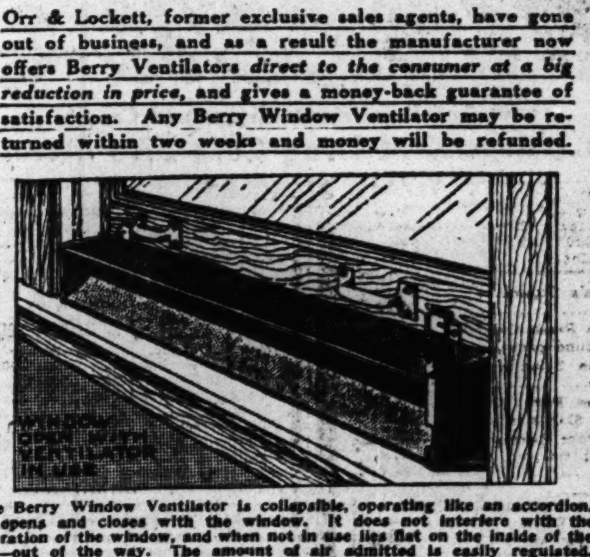
Eliminated the Middleman's Profit

Orr & Lockett, former exclusive sales agents, have gone out of business, and as a result the manufacturer now offers Berry Ventilators direct to the consumer at a big reduction in price, and gives a money-back guarantee of satisfaction. Any Berry Window Ventilator may be returned within two weeks and money will be refunded.



WINDOW OPEN WITH VENTILATOR IN USE

The Berry Window Ventilator is collapsible, operating like an accordion. It opens and closes with the window. It does not interfere with the operation of the window, and when not in use lies flat on the inside of the sill—out of the way. The amount of air admitted is easily regulated. One can attach it to the window or detach it within a single second.

CALL OR PHONE OR ORDER BY MAIL

To determine size of ventilator needed, close your window and measure from window stop to window stop on inside of sill close up to window. The "window stop" is the perpendicular strip that holds the window in place. Any size in this table will fit window openings any part of 3 inches wider than the length of the ventilator.

A Dilemma Solved

One Horn of the Dilemma—Closed Windows

Lassitude, depression, debility and finally tuberculosis and pneumonia are the evils that result from CLOSED WINDOWS. Every human being exhales poisons that will break down the health of the strongest man as well as that of the delicate child.

The Other Horn of the Dilemma—Open Windows

Not only are OPEN WINDOWS often unbearably uncomfortable, but they also result in colds, sore throat, rheumatism, chills and other serious ills. Drafts are dangerous to all, and old folks (whose blood is thin) simply can not stand them.

The Solution of the Dilemma

The Berry Ventilator solves the problem of how to get a constant supply of fresh air in comfort in all kinds of weather. The Berry Ventilator admits the vitalizing, health-giving FRESH AIR, but excludes drafts, rain and snow. It even locks the open window against burglars.

GERMANS SPEED PAST NORTH KEY TO BUCHAREST

Keep Up Piledriver Blows in Dobrudja and Giant Jaws of Vise Peril Roumania.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—With the capture of Campulung, the northern key to Bucharest, capital of Roumania, the Teutons are continuing their drive southward, unofficial reports received here today indicate.

Berlin at this writing has not claimed the capture of Campulung, which is the terminus of one of the northern railroads running into Bucharest, but Petrograd early this morning admitted the loss of the city.

At only one point on the northern front were the Roumanians victorious According to Bucharest, Austro-German forces were whipped in the Trotus valley. Piscul has been recaptured, the official statement says, and the Teutonic troops are fleeing in disorder.

Continue Dobrudja Advance.

Meanwhile Field Marshal von Mackensen is contining his advance in Dobrudja. According to Berlin, the Russo-Roumanian forces, after retreating for six days, are showing signs of demoralization.

The pursuing armies have brought in 600 enemy stragglers, cut off from the main Russo-Roumanian column. The defeated forces are offering little resistance, the report adds.

In Macedonia Bulgars on the east bank of the Struma, attempting the recapture of Ormali, were beaten back, the allies' official report says.

Roumanian War Report.

The Roumanian official report covering operations omits news of the Dobrudja theater, but describes actions on the other fronts as follows:

Northern and northwestern fronts—At Tulghes and Bicaz there have been light actions and artillery bombardments. We took four officers and 190 men. We made an attack in the Trotus valley and retook Piscul. The enemy fled in disorder.

In the Usul valley we attacked and repulsed the enemy, taking ten officers and 900 men prisoners. We also captured a large quantity of material. At Oituz we repulsed the enemy.

Big Battle in Buzeu Valley.

In the Buzeu valley we made an attack. The action is still in progress.

A counter attack undertaken by us in the Prahova valley was successful.

In the region of Dragoslavele we counter attacked and repulsed the enemy's right wing and took 300 prisoners, five machine guns, and two trench mortars.

In the Jiul valley the enemy, who had advanced to the west of the Jiul, was vigorously attacked and completely vanquished. Our offensive continues and we have counted up to the present 450 Bavarian prisoners. The enemy left 1,000 dead on the battlefield.

German War Report.

The German war report on Balkan operations says:

Field Marshal von Mackensen's front—In northern Drobrudja our pursuing detachments so far have found but little resistance. Everything indicates that the enemy is retreating in haste. Five hundred isolated soldiers were taken prisoner.

Macedonian front—Serbian attacks against the German and Bulgarian positions in the Cerna bend failed, as did partial advances of the enemy on the east slopes of the Moglenica mountains and southwest of Doiran lake

Transylvania eastern front—Fighting in the frontier valleys continues. South of Kronstadt our allied troops took a Roumanian position on a height by a surprise attack and extended their success by sharp pressure to the valley of Furtzuga. Otherwise the situation is not essentially changed.

Allies' War Report.

The Allies report on Macedonian operations follows:

Struma front.—The enemy's advanced troops attempted to seize Ormanli but after artillery preparation we successfully drove them back.

Serbian front.—On Oct. 26, during local skirmishes which were favorable for our troops we captured several enemy trenches.

On the 27th we advanced a little on the left bank of the Cerna river. Rain is hindering our operations.

GERMANS SINK 200 NEUTRAL SHIPS WITH WAR MATERIAL.

Berlin Paper Says Destruction Will Cease Only When They Stop Carrying Contraband.

BERLIN, Oct. 28, via wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—"Comparing the number of hostile and neutral ships sunk by the sea forces of the central powers," says the Lokal Anzeiger, "according to official statistics from the beginning of the war until Oct. 12, 1,253 hostile ships, of 2,569,501 tons, were sunk, but only 200 neutral ships, of 276,528 tons, were sunk for carrying contraband of war. The neutral tonnage is only 10 per cent of the hostile tonnage.

"The sinking of neutral ships, especially Norwegian, will cease as soon as the latter stop carrying contraband.

Six More Ships Sunk.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The sinking of five more steamships and one sailing vessel is announced by Lloyds. Four of the vessels were Norwegian, one Swedish, and one British.

WAR LOAN OF $3,000,000,000 PASSED BY THE REICHSTAG.

Imperial Treasurer Says Germany's Financial Burdens Are Less than Those of the Enemy.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—[Via Wireless to Sayville.]—The reichstag today passed the bill for a new war credit of $3,000,000,000 asked by Count von Roedern, the imperial treasurer. The only votes in opposition were those of the radical wing of the Socialist party.

Count von Roedern, in his speech before the reichstag yesterday, said it was evident up to the present that Germany's financial burdens, compared with her efforts and results, were lighter than those of her adversaries.

TWO RUSSIAN WAR VESSELS DESTROYED BY SUBMARINES.

German Report Tells of Battle Which Was Fought in Arctic Sea Near Sipnavalok.

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., Oct. 28.—A Russian destroyer and an armed Russian patrol boat, attacked by submarines off the Russian arctic town of Sipnavalok, were driven ashore, set on fire, and destroyed, according to reports reaching Christiania tonight from the Vardoe, Norway, wireless station.

ENGLAND SEIZES AMERICAN GAUZE, NIPPERT CHARGES

Red Cross Supplies Stopped on Way to Germany, Judge Says.

That England has withheld all bandages consigned to the German division of the Red Cross from Americans and has failed to return them to their rightful owners in this country was the charge made by Judge Alfred K. Nippert of Cincinnati in an address yesterday before the German club at its luncheon in the Hotel Sherman. He spoke on "The Spirit of the German People After Two Years of War."

U. S. Submits to Seisure.

"The policy of robbing the wounded and dying of American bandages was inaugurated by Great Britain about April 21, 1916," said Judge Nippert, who was at that time in Germany as a delegate to the Prussian conference and visited the various fronts during a three months' stay.

"The least that the United States could have demanded is the return of these bandages and supplies in order that they might be used to advantage among our own soldiers along the Mexican frontier. It is this seeming submission on the part of our government to England's high handed policy that is gradually convincing the German people that we are not as neutral as the neutrality proclamation of President Wilson in the beginning of the war calls for."

Judge Nippert cautioned his hearers that as American citizens they must show President Wilson the respect due his as the occupant of the White House, regardless of whether they agreed with him.

Points to Horrors.

"The American public has little conception of the horrors through which the inhabitants of East Prussia passed at the hands of the Cossacks," said Judge Nippert. "'The country, contrary to general opinion here, is as fertile and beautiful as the finest parts of Illinois or Wisconsin.

"'A mother who saved herself and her seven children told me her story. After seeking refuge in a wood without food for herself or her children, and being in constant fear of the Cossacks, she smuggled herself and the children across the frozen and snow covered river Memel at night. White sheets over their clothes made them invisible to the outposts on the snows of the river.

"'Forty per cent of the women and children in one section of this territory have died of exposure and frightful conditions."

Interview with Kaiser.

He told of his interview with the kaiser and brought the audience to its feet.

"'No living monarch represents something as personal to his pepole as do you,' I said to him.

"'Ah, but such a people as they—there is no other such a people,'" was his reply.

DELAYS AMERICAN ACTION UPON BRITISH BLACKLIST.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—The next move of the United States in the controversy over the blacklist of American firms will not be determined until officials have had time to examine Great Britain's reply to the American note of July 28 protesting against it. The reply reached the state department today from the London embassy.

The note refuses the American contention which termed the blacklist "an arbitrary interference with neutral trade," but is understood to offer methods of relief which may be available, in some instances, to lessen the rigors of interference.

An American reply is almost certain to be made, based on the contention that the blacklist violates the commercial treaty of 1815.

CHARLES GIVES STATE TO WILSON

Illinois Sure to Go to President by 125,000 Votes, Dem. Chief Says.

ALL THE TICKET TO WIN

Arthur W. Charles, Chairman of the Democratic state central committee, yesterday predicted that President Wilson will carry Illinois by a majority of approximately 125,000 and that the Democratic state ticket will be elected by majorities of approximately 50,000

"The campaign in Illinois reached and passed the climax this week," said Mr. Charles. "Both Republicans and Democrats have fired their heaviest guns. There is no indication there will be any pronounced change in sentiment during the last week of the campaign. This being the case, it is safe to make a definite prediction, based on reports we have received from every county.

"These reports indicate President Wilson will carry Illinois by a plurality of 123,418. Of this 75,000 will be furnished by the women of the state. The other 48,518 represents the plurality of men's votes he will obtain. It also represents the plurality for Gov. Dunne and for my associates of the Democratic state ticket.

What His Reports Show.

"Of course, these pluralities will vary somewhat, but there is every indication Democrats intend to vote the ticket straight, and the same reasons which induce independent voters to prefer Wilson to Hughes leads them to prefer Dunne to Lowden, and Democrats on the state ticket to reactionaries opposing them.

Sixty Counties Democratic.

"Sixty counties in the state will return majorities for the Democratic candidates. Forty-two will give majorities to Republican candidates. Republican majorities in their forty-two counties will exceed Democratic majorities in fifty-nine counties. The sixtieth county which the Democrats will carry is Cook. The Democratic majority here will more than wipe out the slight advantage Republicans will have in the other 101 counties.

"The prediction which I am making is not a guess. It is based on a compilation of figures contained in reliable reports. To make it reliable and conservative, a generous allowance for mistakes and overconfidence has been made.

ITALIANS WIN TOWN AND DESTROY FOE'S DEFENSES

ROME, Oct. 28.—An intense artillery action is in progress east of Goritz and on the Carso plateau, the war office announced today. The statement reads:

South of the depression between Loppio and Mori, in the Cameras and Adige valleys, our infantry entered the village of Sano, drove out the enemy, and destroyed his defenses.

Southeast of Novavilla we have advanced our line 325 yards as the result of a surprise attack.

TEUTONS STORM SLAVS' LINES IN BORDER TRIANGLE

Russians Driven from Heights Near Dorna Watra—Also Repulsed at Lutsk.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—Teutonic troops have won a victory in the Dorna Watra region, near the junction point of the frontiers of Bukowina, Transylvania, and Roumania, according to today's war office announcement. Austro-Hungarian forces captured several heights from the Russians at the point of the bayonet and took more than 500 prisoners.

The Russians have renewed their attacks on the Austro-German lines west of Lutsk, in Volhynia, the war office announced today, delivering an assault yesterday, after two days' artillery preparation, in the vicinity of Zaturze. The attack failed completely, with heavy losses to the Russians.

Text of German Statement.

The statement reads:

Front of Prince Leopold—The Russians, after two days' artillery preparation in the sector west of Lutsk, attacked yesterday near Zaturze. The attack failed completely with heavy losses to the enemy.

Front of Archduke Charles Francis—On both sides of Dorna Watra Austrian-Hungarian troops entered Russian positions, capturing several heights at the point of the bayonet and brought in eight officers and more than 500 men as prisoners.

Russian Official Statement.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 28.—Austro-German forces launched a series of violent attacks against the Russian and Roumanian positions on both banks of the River Bystritsa in the region of Dorna Watra yesterday, says the official statement issued today by the Russian war office, compelling the Russian advanced posts to abandon two heights. The statement reads:

On the whole front reconnaissances and an exchange of fire are taking place. On both banks of the River Bystritsa, in the region of Dorna Watra, the enemy, supported by his artillery, launched a series of fierce attacks, compelling our advanced post to abandon two heights. The attacks of the enemy south of this region were without success.

Russia Plans Big Offensive.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Wireless News agency today gave out a Rome dispatch asserting that news from German sources indicates the beginning of a tremendous new Russian offensive in Poland and Galicia. This report is not confirmed from any other source, but if true is believed to mark the beginning of the allies' attempts to relieve the pressure on Roumania.

Another wireless message from Rome said that Bucharest estimates Austro-German losses in Transylvania at 80,000.

ALLIES IN FRANCE WIN NEW GROUND AT TWO POINTS

British Advance North of the Somme and French Gain Quarry Near Verdun.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The allies in France today reported two gains at widely separated points. Northeast of Les Boeufs, in the Somme region, the British captured several important trenches, and French forces in the region of Verdun captured the quarry to the northeast of Fort Douaumont.

The British official statement from headquarters in France issued tonight reads:

We carried out successfully a local operation northeast of Les Boeufs whereby we captured several important trenches. Our artillery bombardment was very successful, and the enemy, driven from his position, was caught by our rifle fire.

French Official Report.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The official report issued by the ministry of war tonight said:

North of Verdun our troops brilliantly captured by a hand grenade attack the quarry which had been organized by the enemy northeast of Douaumont.

German War Statement.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—[By wireless to Sayville.]—The official statement issued today by the German army headquarters staff was as follows:

North of the Somme infantry engagements began anew. The English attacked across the line of Gueudecourt-Les Boeufs and the French attacked in the district of Morval. Our troops repulsed the allied enemies by artillery and machine gun fire and northeast of Morval with the bayonet. Our positions were maintained.

On the east bank of the Meuse heavy engagements were renewed and they were successful for us. After a violent artillery fire strong French forces rushed from Thiaumont wood and both sides of Fort Louamont and in the Fumin wood to attack. All the attacks broke down with heavy losses to the enemy.

Jeffery

What Other "Six" Can Match This Test?

WE need go no further than Cook County to demonstrate the absolute supremacy of the new Jeffery "Six."

If you have ever driven a car southwest of Chicago, you will probably know Palos Hill, out beyond Palos Park, fifteen miles from the city. This hill is known throughout the State as the ugliest climb in Illinois. Not only because of the steep grade, but the nature of the road, studded with bowlders, a slippery clay surface cut to the deepest ruts and furrows and crosscut with dangerous gullies, makes it an absolute peril and a disgrace to our road system. Cars take it at slowest speed and in lowest gear.

But this hill, up which other sixes must creep with greatest caution, has been conquered for all time by the Jeffery "Six" in a test of power and stamina which we defy any other six to match.

Selecting one of the worst days of the recent period of bad weather, we took a new Jeffery "Six" at random from a factory shipment, and with no special preparation, no special adjustment, no special equipment—just the regular car such as you yourself may own. We loaded this car with nine full grown men, with a combined weight of over 1500 pounds. This car, with this load, took this worst of all hills on "high" all the way.

Then, without stop or adjustment, upon the level road beyond, the car, with the same load, attained without effort a speed of over 70 miles per hour.

We have prepared a little booklet giving the details of this home-made test and will be glad to give you a copy of it, or send it to you upon request.

And we ask you, isn't it the part of wisdom to buy that car which has demonstrated its quality at home, where you expect to use it?

The Jeffery car pictured above is the new "Six" with the demountable Sedan body. This car with this body sells at an advance of but $225 over the cost of the open car alone. Two cars for the price of one.

LANE SAYS G. O. P. HAS FAILED TO SHOW ITS CARDS

"What Would the Republicans Have Done That We Did Not Do?" Secretray Asks.

"The Tribune" prints herewith the fourth of a series of articles by advocates of the re-election of President Wilson. The articles are furnished as the result of an invitation by this newspaper to the Democratic national committee to present arguments in behalf of the present administration.

BY FRANKLIN K. LANE.

[Secretary of the Interior.]

The Republican campaign has simmered down to this: "We could have done the job better, but we decline to state how."

This may be good politics. But is it good Americanism?

If this country stands for one thing above another it stands for fair play. In our laws we guarantee trial by jury and the right of appeal. In our business code we condemn the man who attempts to gain business advantages by sly methods. It is coming to be the common practice not to discharge a man unless there is reason given. Even in the American game of poker a man must show his cards when he is "called."

Comprise Wealth of Nation.

They comprise the greater body of the wealthy and best educated men of the United States. They, if any, should know what better can be done than we Democrats have done. They have had long experience in handling public affairs. The offices have been largely in their hands for half a century. But have they told you how, with all their experience, htey would improve on what we have done?

Because they had failed to meet the hopes of the American people and deal with questions of internal policy in an aggressive manner and from a progressive standpoint they lost control of the government. The Democratic party came into power and did all that it promised, and more.

"What Would You Have Done?"

What would the Republicans have done that the Democrats did not do? This is a flat question and it deserves a flat answer.

They may say that we did not do the best thing possible at a given juncture. Very well. What would they have done? Is this not good Americanism? Is this not fair play?

If you say: "Discharge Woodrow Wilson from his job and put me in his place," am I not entitled to say to you: "What would you have done in his stead? Prove to me that you could have done better. What is your policy? What knowledge had you of the situation that confronted the country when he had to act? What policy that you have invented would give the country greater prestige abroad and more happiness at home than that which he followed when the emergency came?"

When I was running a newspaper in the west I had a man working for me who was something of a poet. He fell sick once and spent his time reading his Bible. He read the story of the crucifixion and read it over again. He became outraged at the injustice of the act. He imagined himself in Jerusalem at the time and in a heroic mood asked: "What would I have done?" The result was a poem, and the refrain of each verse read:

If I'd been there with threescore men,
Christ Jesus had not died!

And the copy reader who read the poem turned it in with the significant heading: "Maybe he would, but I doubt it."

So valiant we all are, so wise, so noble, so far sighted—after the event!

But the Republicans do not even now tell us what they would have done if they had been in charge of the government for the four hardest years of perplexing strain that any president has had for fifty years.

Maybe they would have kept us out of war—but I doubt it. Maybe they would have passed the child labor act or the rural credits bill, but I doubt it. Maybe they would have saved American lives everywhere by some magic of their own—but I doubt it.

Is Silence Due to Fear?

Can they do nothing but "knock"—these wealthy and educated leaders of our aristocracy?

Of course, they are not afraid to say what they would have done!

Is it fear that keeps them from saying what they would have done? These gentlemen claim to possess all the national spirit that there is—all the fight and punch that makes this nation. Do they fear by being frank that they will lose the German-American vote, the pre-ally vote, the farmers' vote, the bankers' vote, the workingmen's vote, or even the whole souled, fair play, square deal American vote?

One day Proctor Knott, when chairman of the judiciary committee of the house of representatives, was approached by a shabby genteel actor, who asked this question: "Mr. Knott, I would like to know which you regard as the greater character in Shakespeare, Hamlet or Macbeth?" Knott looked at the long, shiny coat and the flowing hair, and slowly replied: "My friend, you will have to excuse me from answering that question. You see, I come from a darn close district, and Hamlet has his friends and Macbeth his."

Surely they are not afraid—these fiery cavaliers, these glorious sons of a free people! Then why, in the name of all the fathers, don't they tell us what they would have done?

Know the Problem.

And why didn't they tell us when the things were in the doing? Where were these prescient statesmen when the troubles were on? Where were they in the anxious days when every farmer and every workingman and every industry in the land was threatened with an absolute tieup of all our railroads? They knew the problem. Did they have a solution? They never told any one if they did. Nor have they yet!

Where were they when Mexico's fire started?

Where were they in those fateful days before the Lusitania was sunk?

Where were they with their hot protests when Belgium was invaded?

Where were they when it was up to the president to hold to international law and make both sides his enemies, if necessary, for the sake of America?

Fought by Lobbyists.

Where have they been, these fearless ones, while the president has been battling day and night, summer and winter, for laws to stop panics, laws to build good roads, laws to free seamen from slavery, laws to make business free from the politicians' caprice, laws to give farmers money at 6 per cent? Where were these proud gentlemen then? Were they then "too proud to fight"—too proud to fight for the welfare of the people? When these things were being fought by lobbyists at Washington, and every day brought threats of political extinction to the president, who was the champion of these measures, where were they?

What reason have you to believe that those who have not the courage now to say what they would have done will when days of terrible stress come have the courage to decide boldly for the right?

Three Hated Presidents.

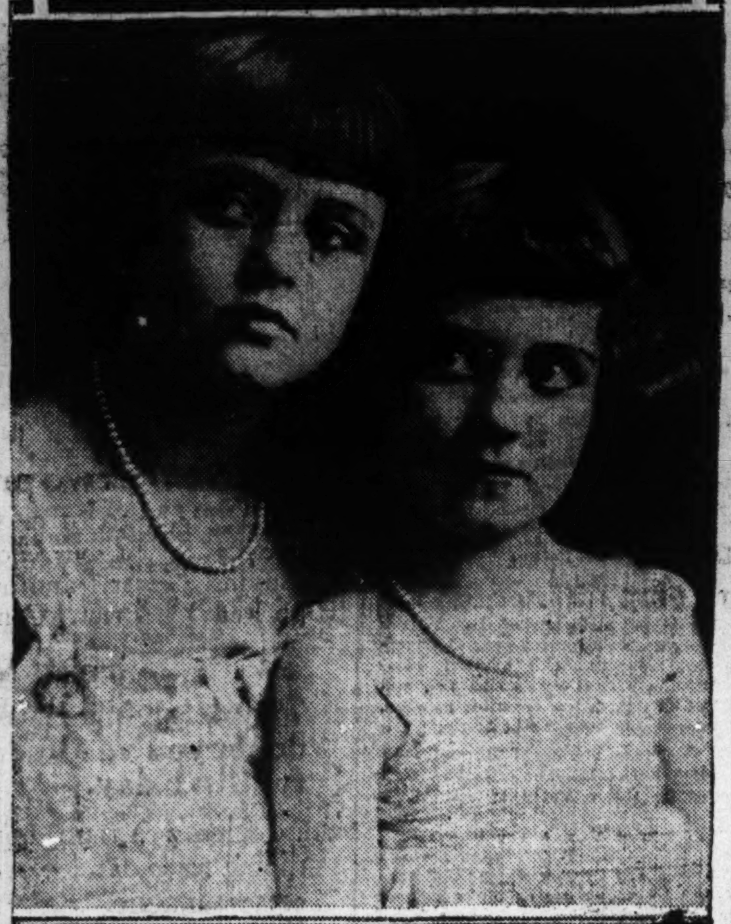
The people of the United States are for fair play. The Democratic party is not all that it should be, nor all that it will be. But it has not hesitated to take responsibility and to do things. It has had no control but its own promises and judgment. And it has a leader who may not be Jefferson and Jackson and Lincoln in one, but just note this fact, that we have had but three presidents who were hated—Jefferson and Jackson and Lincoln were hated.

They hated Jefferson because he preached the philosophy that this was to be a land in which the poor man could live as proudly and independently as the rich man. They hated Jackson because he would not allow a group of financiers to run him. They hated Lincoln because he was the enemy of slavery. And there are some who hate Woodrow Wilson because he has the philosophy and the courage and the humanitarianism of the three. That is why they seek his defeat and ask you to oust him from office. They know what he is and what he has done.

Americanism is fair play—and that is not the game of politics.

BUT THEY DON'T WORRY

Two Children Whose Appearance at Home Exposition Was Barred by State Factory Inspector and Upon Which Test Case Is to Be Made.



GENEVA MITCHELL CHARLOTTE CONVEY

Geneva Mitchell and Charlotte Convey are the two little girls that caused Chief State Factory Inspector Nelson to rule that although children are not paid for taking part in entertainments, to allow them to appear where an admission is charged is a violation of the law. This may mean that children cannot take part in either church or charity entertainments where an admission is charged. A test case is to be made.

Geneva thought it a lot of fun to imitate the older style models at the home exhibition, while Charlotte, the 6 year old daughter of General Manager Convey, sang a song or two for the same reason. Factory inspectors stopped them, and now they will be unable to appear during the two extra days of the Home exhibition tomorrow and Tuesday, but they will have a good time at the Halloween carnival which will mark the close of the exposition Tuesday night. The carnival is to be given by the various charities that had charge of the tea last week.

VOTE OF THE WOMEN VEXING FACTOR TO PARTY CHIEFS.

Suffragists Hold Balance of Power in Twelve States and Campaign Leaders Are Guessing.

Women in six states will vote for the first time in a presidential election on Nov. 7. In six other states the women had the vote prior to 1912.

As the election approaches the more apparent it becomes that women will hold the balance of power as between the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates if reports from all over the west are to be credited.

The six states where the women are "new" voters in presidential elections are Illinois, Arizona, Kansas, Oregon, Montana, and Nevada. Women participated in the elections of 1912 in the other states of Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Washington, and California.

The Woman's party, that has made an anti-Wilson fight all through the states west of the Mississippi where women vote, is confident, according to its leaders at Chicago headquarters, it will be able to defeat the Democratic electors in every one of the states where the issue has been raised by them.

The Democrats, on the contrary, say western women who have had the vote for years and know how, when, and where to vote, need no lessons from an invading band of eastern women who would give them instructions as to what to do.

BIG JOB TO FIND PARK PROPOSAL ON THE BALLOT

Sandwiched In Between Lengthy Propositions on Two Feet of "Little" Paper.

The parks consolidation proposition as it appears on the official ballot that will be handed to voters on Nov. 7 doesn't say a word about the parks. It is something of a job to find the question on the two feet of paper called the "little ballot." It is sandwiched in between two lengthy proposals on municipal bond issues, including the full text of the basic ordinances, and the proposed amendment to the state constitution known as the "revenue amendment."

Text of Parks Proposal.

This is the text of the little ballot proposition that relates to parks consolidation:

"For the adoption of an act entitled: 'An act to consolidate in the government of the city of Chicago the powers and functions now vested in local governments and authorities within the territory of said city and to make provisions concerning the same.'"

This is followed by a double square and the words "yes" and "no." A cross in the "yes" square means a vote for park consolidation and a cross in the "no" square is a vote against it. A majority of the votes cast on the proposition is decisive.

Bond Proposals at Top.

At the head of the "little ballot" are the two bond propositions. The first is for a $2,000,000 bond issue, for the purpose of acquiring sites for incinerators, loading stations, and municipal reduction plant, principally to complete the Thirty-ninth street reduction and the Ninety-fifth street incinerating plant.

The second is for a bond issue of $2,000,000 for acquiring sites and improving bathing beaches, swimming pools, parks, playgrounds, and recreation centers. This is the matter which aroused bitter division in the city council last week.

Then follows the parks consolidation proposition, almost invisible to the naked eye.

Tax Amendment Comes Next.

Below that is the proposed amendment to the state constitution, known as the "revenue amendment," for which the Civic federation is leading a big campaign.

Then comes the proposed amendment to the state banking law. This is an amendment proposed in the last legislature, that would prohibit the use of similar names by banking institutions. The constitution requires that all amendments to the banking laws must be adopted by vote of the people. The changes in the act are largely technical.

SAYS WOMEN WILL REFUSE TO BE BOUND TO PARTIES.

Leader of Fight Which Won Suffrage in Four Canadian Provinces Tells of Desires.

New York, Oct. 28.—"The Republican, Democratic, and other political parties won't be anything but labels when the women get the vote throughout this country."

Mrs. Nellie McClung, the Canadian woman credited with having led the fight that won the vote for the women of Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia, was voicing her opinion of "the debauch of political foolishness the politicians are indulging in in the United States today."

"I am starting a six weeks' tour of the United States for the National American Woman Suffrage association," said she, "and I am amazed at the hidebound partisanship shown on all sides. It's all foolishness, this bandying of unpleasant words between the candidates.

"In our four Canadian provinces now having suffrage, the women show little inclination to link themselves with either party. Each does her own thinking."

FACTS FOR WOMEN VOTERS

Information on Her Rights and How to Cast Ballots at the Election Nov. 7.

For women voters:

THE TRIBUNE herewith presents a boiled down statement of Illinois women's opportunities and privileges at the election of Nov. 7.

Each woman in Chicago and Cicero who is properly registered in the precinct in which she resides is entitled to vote. She does not vote directly for president and vice president, that is, for Charles E. Hughes or Woodrow Wilson, for instance, but she votes for twenty-nine candidates—either Hughes candidates or Wilson candidates—for presidential electors.

She may put a cross in the circle at the head of whichever list of electors she prefers—or, if she prefers, she may mark a cross in the square at the name of each of twenty-nine, being sure she votes for only twenty-nine.

Every registered woman is also entitled to vote for three University of Illinois trustees, one candidate for member of the state board of equalization, and for each of these county offices: Two members of board of assessors, one for the full term and one for a vacancy; one member board of review; one county surveyor; one president of sanitary district, and three trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago.

Women must be registered properly to be permitted to vote in Chicago and Cicero and in these downstate cities that operate under the election commissioners' law: East St. Louis, Springfield, Galesburg, Danville, Cairo, Rockford, Bloomington, Freeport, and Peoria.

In all other cities and in the country precincts and in Cook county outside of Chicago women who are not registered may vote by affidavit—that is, by having their votes "sworn in."

She is not entitled to any assistance at the polling places in marking her ballot.

IT'S NOBODY'S BUSINESS HOW BOBBIE BURKE VOTES.

Out of Politics. He Says, and There's No Telling Whether Woodrow or Charles Is to Be Favored.

Robert Emmet Burke, the good old Bobbie Burke of the lamented Cook County Democracy, isn't in politics. He admits it, and so it's nobody's business whether he's going to vote for Woodrow Wilson or Charles Evans Hughes.

Bobbie was the only uninstructed delegate Illinois sent to the Democratic national convention at St. Louis and by his lone vote prevented Wilson from receiving a unanimous nomination.

On Thursday Bobbie and his wife journeyed several miles from the family stronghold at 1432 North La Salle street to the International amphitheater that they might hear what Col. Theodore Roosevelt had to say.

"The wife hadn't ever seen a political meeting, and so I took her," was Bobbie's explanation last night. "I'm not in politics."

"How are you and the wife going to vote?" he was asked.

"I'm not in politics," he countered.

FEDERATION OF LABOR APPEALS FOR DEMOCRAT

State Body Urges Toilers to Get Into Line for Wilson and Dunne.

The Illinois State Federation of Labor, in a circular issued yesterday, signed by all officers and all members of the executive board, addressed to "Trades Unionists and Friends of Labor in the State of Illinois," advises all such to vote for Woodrow Wilson for president and Edward F. Dunne for governor. The circular says in part:

"Never before has it been so absolutely essential for members of organized labor to stand together and vote as a unit. The taunt has been hurled again and again that laboring men do not stand together when they should for their own interests, and do not act in concert for the welfare of their homes and families.

"In is on this assumption that the enemies of labor expect to elect Charles Evans Hughes as president of the United States and Col. Frank O. Lowden, strike breaker and the operator of a scab shop, as governor of Illinois.

See Lowden and Hughes Foes.

"It is in this hour of peril that we, regardless of party affiliations, make our emphatic appeal to union men to consider on the basis of the actual accomplishments for labor Woodrow Wilson for president of the United States and Edward F. Dunne for governor of Illinois.

"Charles Evans Hughes and Frank O. Lowden are really the candidates of the predatory interests that live by the exploitation of the people by using the government as an instrument to accomplish their purpose.

"Woodrow Wilson and Edward F. Dunne and representative of the common people and of the spirit of the times. They stand for new and enlarged opportunities for labor, for a square deal for laboring men, for social justice, and for economic and social progress all along the line.

Can't Judge by Words.

"We must judge men by what they do and not by what they say, and not by the promises they make, particularly in campaign time. We do know that we have a friend in Gov. Dunne, that his principles are right and his tendencies are right and that his heart beats in sympathy with the objects and aspirations of the struggling masses.

"The sympathies of Col. Lowden are naturally with his plutocratic class, and if he should be elected governor of Illinois we are satisfied that he will be arrayed against us and that he will extend all of the help possible to the exploiters and oppressors of the men who do the actual toil.

"If the present administration is continued in power progress for the future will be assured."

BRYAN GREETED BY GREAT CROWD

Women Lead Cheering in Meeting at Armory in Springfield.

LAUDS PARTY RECORD.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 28.—Ten thousand persons jammed into the state arsenal today to hear William Jennings Bryan deliver the doctrines of Democracy to central Illinois.

Mr. Bryan's speech, which was the culmination of the Wilson day observance in Springfield, aroused the assembled thousands to frenzied enthusiasm. The meeting was attended by several thousand women, who often rose in their seats and waved American flags.

Mr. Bryan's interpretation of the president's refusal to intervene in Mexico brought forth the greatest outburst of cheering of the meeting.

Asks Help for Dunne.

Earlier in the day, speaking at Danville, Mr. Bryan renewed his plea for the reëlection of Gov. Dunne.

"The president has well said that simmered down this is a fight of the people against privilege," he said. "The result of the election is doubly important to the people of Illinois, for within your borders there is another fight on that line.

"On the one hand you have Gov. Dunne, a tried, honest, efficient administrator, whose watchword is duty. For more than twenty years I have known him to be a fearless, independent friend of the people and at times when courage was needed to make a stand for popular rights.

"On the other hand, there is an opposing candidate who is supported by the reactionary elements."

Tells of National Issues.

Turning to the national issues, Mr. Bryan said:

"Do not forget that as part of the Democratic tariff law we have the income tax. The Democratic party has taken $150,000,000 from the backs of the struggling poor and put it on the incomes of the rich. This would not have been possible but for an income tax amendment to the constitution, and you should not forget that the Democrats led the fight for this income tax amendment.

"What the Democratic party has done on currency the Republican party had a chance to do for sixteen years while in control of the White House, senate, and house. Republicans talked about currency reform; why did they not give it to you? Because the leaders were tied to Wall street.

Act for Rural Credits.

"As a companion to it we have the rural credits law. This is the greatest piece of legislation ever enacted for the benefit of the farmers of the United States. It is the first time this government has ever attempted in a large way to relieve the farmer's financial needs."

VOTE FOR MINNESOTA GUARD.

Both Houses of Legislature Pass Measure as Suggested by Gov. Burnquist.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28.—Measures providing that Minnesota guardsmen, in federal service on the Mexican border, may vote at the general election Nov. 7, were passed by both houses at a special session of the state legislature today, called for the purpose by Gov. Burnquist.

GIRL KILLED BY CYCLE FALL.

Wagon Runs Over Beatrice McKenzie When She Plunges from Handle Bars.

While riding on the handle bars of a bicycle with her cousin, John Jordan of 535 West Thirty-fifth street, Beatrice McKenzie, 11 years old, of 547 West Thirty-sixth street, was killed yesterday by a wagon driven by John Truce of 5303 Princeton avenue, when she fell from the bicycle.

WOMAN'S CLUB SIFTS SANITARY DISTRICT RACERS

Reports on Candidates for President and Members of Drainage Board.

The central municipal citizenship committee of the Woman's City club issued a report yesterday on candidates for sanitary district trustees. These are offices for which women may vote.

Regarding Thomas M. Sullivan, Democratic candidate for president and member of the sanitary board, the report says in summary:

"The record of Sullivan as trustee of the sanitary district shows that he did nothing whatever to introduce civil service methods, but did develop to a high degree the use of the district's pay rolls for political spoils; that he has opposed the adoption of a budget system, has favored the letting of certain improper contracts, attempted to raise the light rates in the city, is opposed to methods of sewage disposal other than by dilution, and has upheld the president in dictatorial rule of the district."

Report on Sergel.

Regarding Charles H. Sergel, Republican candidate for president and member, the report says:

"Mr. Sergel states in his platform that he believes the sanitary district should be administered to benefit the health and cleanliness of Chicago, to light its streets, and to extend its water-borne commerce. He believes in a civil service law for the sanitary district and will insist upon a strict merit system for government employés in absence of such a law. He promises an efficient budget system.

"He believes that sewage disposal other than by dilution will soon be necessary, and promises to undertake without delay the solution of the best method. He will insist that the packing industries be compelled to treat their own sewage before dumping it into Bubbly creek. He promises to renew the lighting contract between the sanitary district and the city of Chicago at the lowest possible rates based upon honestly computed cost of production.

"Mr. Sergel has shown by the conduct of his public office that he can be relied upon to carry out the promises he has made the voters."

Views on Democrats.

As to James A. Long, Democratic candidate for member of the board, the report says:

"Mr. Long has the reputation among real estate dealers of being a capable business man in the handling of real estate.

"He states as his policy in regard to the sanitary district that he believes in the prevention and diversion of all polluted matter such as sewage from Lake Michigan. He promises a businesslike method of conducting the extensive lighting and power system which the sanitary canal possesses. He believes Bubbly creek should be abolished by filling or otherwise."

As to Joseph Rushkewicz, Democratic candidate, the report says:

"He believes in civil service 'wherever it can be applied.' He promises the free development of the hydro-electric plant to give the people street lights at cost. He promises to devote all his time to the work of the sanitary district and to make the expenditures as low as possible. He thinks that the real estate of the district should be surveyed and handled as it would be by a private corporation. He does not think that the district needs a budget system, as he considers the present plan of pay roll perfect."

Finds Lawley Against Merit System.

Regarding James H. Lawley, Republican candidate, the report says in part:

"In general, the record of Lawley shows that he voted within the last year against the enforcement of the merit system, and in favor of employment for political service. He voted against the council budget system and has voted in favor of allowing the city teaming contracts to be let for political reasons. That he has voted in favor of the saloons does not bear so directly upon the problem of the sanitary district except that the liquor business does not seem particularly consistent with that of a trustee of a waterway."

As to Matthias A. Mueller, Republican candidate, the report says:

"Mr. Mueller was born in Germany. He came to the United States in 1881 and to the city of Chicago two years later. He worked at the Union stockyards as a boy. In 1912 he was appointed real estate deputy on the board of review, where he served until April, 1909, when he was elected alderman from the Twenty-ninth ward.

"The Municipal Voters' league report of 1911 states that his voting record was clean and his general attitude good. He was defeated for reelection."

A president and three trustees are to be elected.

Employ Wounded Soldiers.

Disabled sailors and soldiers in England are to be taught switchboard operating free and engaged at the usual rate of pay, under a scheme drafted by the Institute of Electrical Engineers.

NOT AN 8-HOUR LAW; W. G. LEE SAYS THIS OF ADAMSON ACT

ONE of the most strenuously disputed issues of the campaign has been the Adamson law. The president's supporters call it an eight hour law; the opponents of the administration dispute this characterization. In recent speeches the president himself has referred to it without qualification as the eight hour law.

Interesting light is thrown on this issue by one of the four men who, at the crisis of the railway strike trouble, forced the administration to drive congress to pass this law. W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, in a letter written on Oct. 20 from Cleveland to C. H. Cheney, 2611 Harrison street, Chicago, says in effect that the Adamson law is not an eight hour law, and that none of the brotherhood leaders contend that it is. Mr. Cheney had written to Mr. Lee asking about some disputed points in regard to the law. In his reply Mr. Lee said in part:

> "The organization has not contended before or since the enactment that the Adamson law was an eight hour law. If you are an experienced railroad man you know an eight hour law or a ten hour law cannot be made that would relieve train and engine men in road service at the expiration of that time, regardless of where such men may be. Yard men can be relieved at a given time, but road men must take their trains to a terminal, and the only persons that have been deceived [?] by the so-called eight hour law are the politicians and candidates for office who are looking for an opportunity to criticize President Wilson and his administration."

"It appears from Mr. Lee's letter that if the president and his supporters, who are talking on the eight hour law, are not—as Mr. Lee declares—deceived about the matter, they are at any rate attempting to deceive the voters," was the comment of one of Mr. Wilson's opponents when shown Mr. Lee's letter.

MERIT REFORM BODIES REPORT ON CANDIDATES

Illinois and Chicago Associations Bare Racers' Stand on Civil Service.

The Illinois and Chicago civil service reform associations yesterday reported on candidates for state and county offices with regard to their attitude towards extension of the merit service.

The report consists in part of a comment on the past records of the candidates and in part of their answers to questions of the general tenor, "Do you favor civil service?" A summary follows:

GOVERNOR.

Frank O. Lowden, Republican—Replied he favors strict enforcement of civil service laws, and referred to his civil service platform.

Edward F. Dunne, Democrat—"His administration of the civil service law fairly satisfactory. Mr. Dunne has made no effort to secure the extension of the merit system, but has withdrawn certain positions from the classified service."

Seymour Stedman, Socialist—"Made a clean record for civil service in the general assembly."

ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Edward J. Brundage, Republican—No response.

Patrick J. Lucey, Democrat—Opposes extension of civil service to attorney general's office. "Mr. Lucey gave an opinion that the state civil service law was unconstitutional; it has since been upheld by the Supreme court."

CONGRESSMAN AT LARGE.

Medill McCormick, Republican—"Mr. McCormick was an aggressive friend of the merit system in the Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth general assemblies." Replied in favor of extending merit system to first and second class postmasters.

William E. Mason, Republican—Favors extension of federal civil service, with certain reservations.

Joseph O. Kostner, Democrat—Answered "yes" to all questions.

STATE'S ATTORNEY.

Maclay Hoyne, Democrat—Opposes putting state's attorney's office under civil service. Mr. Hoyne said: "I believe that the present city administration has indicated a determination to utterly wreck the civil service laws if unchecked and that nothing but a wholesome fear of prosecution has restrained its hands up to the present time."

Harry B. Miller, Republican—Also opposes civil service for the state's attorney's office, but says: "I believe in the merit system in the civil service and in its honest and efficient enforcement."

William A. Cunnea, Socialist—"Very favorable to the extension of the merit system."

PRESIDENT SANITARY DISTRICT.

Thomas M. Sullivan, Democrat—"Favorable on all questions."

Charles H. Sergel, Republican—"Favorable on all questions except as to attorneys."

SANITARY TRUSTEE.

James H. Lawley, Mathias A. Mueller, Joseph Ruskewitz—Listed as having made favorable replies. No response was received from James A. Long.

The association asked candidates for recorder, clerk of the Circuit court, clerk of the Superior court, coroner, and surveyor whether they favored taking these positions out of the elective class and placing them under civil service. With few exceptions the candidates answered in the affirmative.

WILSON USES THE WIRELESS

This is the message which President Wilson sent out Friday night by wireless to be relayed all over the country:

"I neither seek the favor nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to a foreign power before loyalty to the United States. WOODROW WILSON."

The message was sent from the station at Arlington and was picked up by government and private wireless stations all the way to the Pacific coast.

CALLS SMUG CHURCHGOER INDIFFERENT TO VICE PERIL.

Thrasher Also Says 250 Women Have Been Driven from Old Leave—Praise Capt. Nootbaar.

Two hundred and fifty women have been driven out of the old red light district, according to Samuel P. Thrasher, superintendent of the Committee of Fifteen, who also declared yesterday that the smug churchgoer is in need of something besides mere piety.

Mr. Thrasher spoke before the women of the League of Cook County Clubs in the Masonic temple.

"Indifference on the part of good people," he said, "is one of the hardest things with which we have to contend. Many church people think their work is ended when they drop their envelope in the collection box."

Capt. Nootbaar was commended for his lid in Twenty-second street.

SAYS CARRANZA CHIEF EXECUTED TWO AMERICANS

BULLETIN.

Mexico City, Oct. 28.—That the Villista movement in Chihuahua has been able to continue because of facilities given the enemies of the Constitutionalist government in the United States was the declaration of Gen. Carranza in a statement he gave to the press today.

Nogales, Ariz., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The execution of two American citizens in Chihuahua City on Sept. 19 by direct orders of Gen. Trevino, Carranza commander, was reported by Richmond von Dohlen, a naturalized German-American citizen, who arrived here today.

The two Americans executed, according to Von Dohlen, were Charles England and Fritz Schultz of Milwaukee, Wis., both mining men. Von Dohlen asserted he was lined up against a wall with England and Schultz before a Mexican firing squad, but was spared when he showed a letter from a German consul.

Von Dohlen said he left Chihuahua City on Oct. 8

Carranza Emissary Assails U. S.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Luis Cabrera, chairman of the Mexican commission to the United States, today made public a scathing denunciation of the failure of the United States to keep order along the Mexican border.

Cabrera asserted substantially, among other things, that, although the United States government has at its disposition sufficient laws to make it possible to maintain order on the border, the government is not enforcing these laws.

The Mexican commissioner asserted that scores of conspirators are at work along the border in plots menacing the peace of the United States, and that these conspirators are known both to the United States government and to the Mexican government.

Cabrera asserts that despite the knowledge of the administration concerning these plots no arrests have been made or are in contemplation. He also charged that the government was competent to restrict the exportation of arms and munitions which reached the bandits, but that the administration had not taken the proper steps to do so.

While refusing to enter into any discussion of the statement at this time, administration officials characterized it as extraordinary. Secretary Lansing would make no comment. It is known, however, that steps to establish the authenticity of the document were taken under consideration immediately.

Statement Made by Cabrera.

"In the United States are many Mexicans and groups of Mexicans inimical to the Carranza government," the statement said. "Plottings and schemings without end are engaged in.

"The propaganda of revolt against constituted order is being promoted by scores of conspirators, known to both the Mexican and the American officials, who by even the most strictly literal interpretation of America's immigration laws should be deported from the United States.

"That the American government is competent to restrict and restrain the exportation of arms and munitions is probable by the fact that during the early days of the Carranza revolt against the usurper Huerta, these laws were enforced with an almost cruel rigidity against Carranza.

"Activity, energy, vigilance, and persistency can correct the situation. Indifference, carelessness, and heedless liberality can only make a bad case worse."

BRIDGE INSPECTOR

She Found Adams Street and Jackson Boulevard Crossings Dangerous.

Mrs. Bessie A Bierman

An investigation of bridges in the city was begun last night by Mrs. Bessie Bierman, chief investigator for the public safety commission.

"To say that conditions at the Adame street bridge are dangerous is putting it mildly," she said. "First of all, there wasn't a semblance of a light at either end of the bridge when I visited it at 6:30 in the evening and again at 8 o'clock. George Gloss, the bridgetender, told me that the signal and the gong had been out of order for the last three weeks.

"At the Jackson boulevard bridge I found the safety devices in good working order, but the lighting of the bridge was very poor and the principal arc light at the east approach was not working.

HOYNE BARES REVENGE

Maclay Hoyne, speaking at eight meetings on the south, west, and northwest sides last night, gave figures to show the extent of what he termed the revenge Chief of Police Healey had taken on fifteen of "Hoyne's coppers" transferred by him to "the woods." He presented a tabulation to show that the total mileage the fifteen policemen will have to travel daily on street cars or elevated trains in going to and from their homes and their respective stations is 359 miles—an average of 23.9 miles each. The longest distance any one has to go is nineteen miles, each way, and the shortest six miles, each way.

"This is the form of discipline visited on these men," said Mr. Hoyne. "Because certain of them were required, in line of their duty, to serve subpœnas issued by the grand jury on Mayor Thompson and Chief Healey, the city hall demands that all be sent 'to the woods.'

Some Buying Homes.

"Some of these policemen have paid for or are buying their homes. Most of them are married and have children and for the benefit of their families made their homes in the outlying residential sections of one or another division of the city.

"One man, William Leibecke, who lives at 2329 West One Hundred and Eighth place, will have to go to the Cragin station, thirty-eight miles daily. That will mean a trip of about four hours each way, or one-third of each day spent in riding on a street car.

"But among these policemen, victims of a petty tyrant's spitefulness, there is not one who would trade places with Chief of Police Healey tonight."

ROW HURTS CITY, CUNNEA HOLDS

Hoyne-Miller Brawl Bringing Back 'Pistol Popping' Reputation, He Says.

REMINDED OF 'MOVIES.'

"Chicago's reputation as a frontier town, which we had flattered ourselves we were living down," said William A. Cunnea at the Clarke school last night, "is threatening to blossom forth again with all of the pistol-popping enthusiasm of days before the war.

"The Republican candidate for state's attorney is being charged with operating a confidence game on a woman, and is threatened with indictment. He retorts that he will take notice of the charge when his opponent has sobered up. People of Chicago who know how much of this is political fourflushing do not appreciate the impression that this disgraceful episode makes on readers outside of the city.

"It is only a day or two ago I read that one of our civic institutions is about to inaugurate an extensive advertising campaign throughout the country, that good will might be engendered through a presentation of the varied attractions that may be found in Chicago.

"What will the outside world think of the state's attorney's office and the city hall moving against each other daily as though engaged in the business of making moving picture scenarios? The outside world will be of the opinion, if this thing keeps up, that the different forces are encamped on different sides of the river with entrenchments thrown up and the two commanders hurling defiance at each other.

"Students of democracy have sometimes looked on the big city almost in despair. In the midst of this howling of calamity Chicago has stood out in some respects as in advance of some of the other big cities in solving problems of self-government in a satisfactory manner. My underground information is that Chicago is going to move forward and will not give the scoffers the opportunity to sneer that we are reverting to type."

For Open Models, f. o. b. Detroit

You Can Still Save $175 on a HUDSON SUPER-SIX

We have still a few cars due us on this year's Hudson output. Some are open models, some enclosed, some convertible. And all like coming models, save in possible minor refinements. These are the last Hudson Super-Sixes to be sold at the present price.

The Hudson factory is now sending us the last of this year's allotment. That means the last cars built from materials contracted a year ago.

Then starts a new production, built from the same grade of materials, but enormously advanced in cost. To maintain Hudson standards, the same car hereafter must cost $175 more.

No New Models

The new production, starting December 1, does not involve new models. There will be no changes, unless such outer refinements as frequently occur.

So the car you get now is the same car—at least practically—as the car which will cost $175 more.

Our purpose here, therefore, is not to close out a model. Nor is it to sell an overstock. We have none.

It is to get for our customers as many as possible of the current-production cars.

Still Below Others

The Hudson Super-Six at $1650 will still undersell numerous other cars. Yet the Super-Six has proved itself the greatest car that's built.

It holds all worth-while stock-car records. It has outstripped all its rivals in every test attempted.

If you measure a car by performance and endurance, no other car compares with the Super-Six.

If you measure by fine engineering, by beauty and luxury, the Super-Six is at least the peer of any.

So the coming price is a fair price. The addition is just this year's added cost of materials.

But those explanations come later. Today we can save you that advance on any type Hudson Super-Six closed or open models.

A Year of the Super-Six

These cars will close the first year of the Super-Six. It started the year as a stranger. It ends the year in the throne-place of Motordom. And with 20,000 enthusiastic owners.

It is now the holder of all the worth-while records. All the records for speed in a stock car. With a 24-hour record of 1819 miles. As having made the best time in the Pike's Peak hill-climb, the world's great hill-climbing event.

As the holder of the ocean-to-ocean record, the supreme endurance test. It made a new mark by going from San Francisco to New York in 14 hours and 59 minutes less time than the best previous record. Then it turned and went back, again breaking all other records. The round trip was made in 10 days, 21 hours. Just two days longer for both ways than last spring's best one-way time.

When you buy a fine car you will want this all-record-holder. You will want the greatest car when you buy any great car at all. You will want the super-endurance which those records prove. And you will want the Hudson luxury and beauty.

Come and see if that is not so. Come now, because a prompt decision means $175 saved.

WOMEN'S TRAIN FOR HUGHES TO MAKE FAST DASH

Two Busy Days in Illinois Are Planned for Republican Feminine Orators.

The woman's campaign train for Hughes is to visit many Illinois towns. Contrary to first arrangements, which did not plan for this state, the new itinerary will include not only cities in the southern and central part of the state, but also cities and towns around Chicago. The demand for the train and its speakers has far outrun expectations. Miss Harriet Vittum, director of woman's work, western Republican headquarters, went to Springfield yesterday to meet the train and to take part in the evening meeting.

On Monday the train will reach Decatur at 8 o'clock in the morning, leaving there at 11:15 and arriving in Sidney at 12:15. From Sidney the women will be taken in automobiles to Champaign and Urbana. Returning they will leave Sidney at 3:30, reaching Danville in time for an evening meeting.

Reach Streator Tuesday.

Tuesday their first stop will be at Streator at 7:30. Later the train will halt long enough in La Salle for speeches and a meeting and will reach Joliet at 3:55. There the women will separate, going to Aurora, Elgin, Lockport, Naperville, Chicago Heights, and Plainfield for evening meetings.

Mrs. Raymond Robins will speak at the Joliet meeting; Dr. Katherine Bement Davis and Mary Antin at Aurora; Frances Kellor at Elgin; Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott at Chicago Heights; Mrs. Noble Prentiss at Lockport; Edith Elliott Smith of Pennsylvania at Naperville and Plainfield.

The women will all come into Chicago from their various speaking engagements and the train will leave for New York early Wednesday.

The eastern women on the train will then return to their homes in time to take part in the last whirl of the campaign, and the Chicago and Illinois women will remain in this state. They will be working until the polls close Tuesday night. Mrs. Robins already has engagements in and about Chicago for all of next week, while Miss Vittum is engaged both afternoon and evening for practically the rest of the campaign.

Jeanette Holmes' Will.

Bequests of $1,000 each are left to the Passavant hospital and the Visiting Nurses' association of Chicago in the provisions of the will of Jeanette R. Holmes, filed yesterday in the Probate court.

HOYNE CALLED TO ACCOUNT BY JUDGE OLSON

Jurist Decides on Criminal Libel Against "Parties Responsible" for Interview.

HEALEY AGAIN SHIFTS MEN.

Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court announced yesterday he would institute proceedings for criminal libel "against responsible parties" as a result of an alleged interview with State's Attorney Hoyne published in Chicago papers.

Judge Olson declined to elucidate the mystery of the phrase "against responsible parties." It was taken for granted that State's Attorney Hoyne was one of the "parties." The other "parties," it was inferred, might be certain newspapers.

Delay Warrant Plan.

The jurist had it in mind to swear out a warrant against State's Attorney Hoyne, it is said, late in the afternoon. On this point he conferred with his personal attorney, John H. S. Lee. The result was a decision to postpone action.

"One of the questions considered," said Mr. Lee, "was when the action should be started. It was Judge Olson's natural inclination to begin proceedings at once. We do not wish, however, to do anything which might be construed by any one as actuated by politics. If we started proceedings at once, our action might be so construed. Consequently we may wait until after election. Judge Olson does not desire the action to have the slightest political bearing. He feels he has been maligned and he will seek redress as an individual."

Civil Action Also Probable.

Judge Olson announced his intention of starting court action after an earlier conference with Attorney Lee.

"I have decided, after mature deliberation and after consultation with my lawyer, to institute proceedings for criminal libel," he said. "This does not mean that I may not also file a civil suit for damages."

State's Attorney Hoyne declined to comment on Judge Olson's announcement.

The interview on which Judge Olson contemplates action attributed to State's Attorney Hoyne an admission that he had heard rumors that Judge Olson had prejudiced the case against Chief of Police Healey and William Luthardt and that he had been asked to decide against the state's attorney's office by the Republican organization.

Later Mr. Hoyne repudiated the statement, explaining that he had been asked by reporters if he had heard such rumors and had replied simply in the affirmative.

Healey Shifts Ex-Hoyne Man.

Chief of Police Healey during the day meted out "punishment" to sixteen members of the department because of their affiliation with State's Attorney Hoyne and his recent raids on the city hall.

A general transfer order issued by the chief shifts these men from important posts to outlying stations. Although none of the men drew Hegewisch, the traditional destination of offending coppers, they were given assignments such as Kensington, Cragin, Morgan Park, and Lawndale.

Thomas J. Sheehan, who has hitherto held the post of acting lieutenant of detectives through the influence of Mr. Hoyne, was "demoted" to the position of senior detective sergeant and sent to Kensington, which is almost "farthest south" in police stations.

These Men Shifted.

Fifteen former members of the "Hoyne brigade" who assisted in the city hall raids were assigned as follows:

SERGEANTS.

John J. O'Connor, desk duty, Robey street.
Arthur McCarthy, desk duty, West North avenue.

DETECTIVE SERGEANTS.

William A. Gainer, West Chicago avenue.
John S. Noonan, Town Hall.
Henry E. Power, Robey street.
James A. Carney, Grand Crossing.

PATROLMEN.

William J. Leibecke, Cragin.
Lambert G. Heeman, Rogers Park.
William Murnane, Lawndale.
Thomas Kane, No. 1, Rawson street.
George J. Oakey, West North avenue.
John W. Ryan, Shakespeare avenue.
John P. Sullivan, Austin.
P. J. Murphy, town hall.
John F. Murphy, Morgan Park.

Chief Healey is still considering the advisability of filing charges against the policemen who were concerned in the city hall raids.

O'Donnell Takes New Tack.

Patrick H. O'Donnell filed a petition before Judge Brothers in the Criminal court yesterday asking that Abe Frank, ex-convict, be examined in open court. Frank is to be a witness for the state against Mr. O'Donnell and Charles E. Erbstein, whose trial for subornation of perjury will begin in the Criminal court Nov. 1.

The petition alleges that State's Attorney Hoyne, Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Berger, Abe Frank, and Nathan Steinberg, an ex-convict, are "willfully, knowingly, and maliciously combined and confederated together falsely to accuse and convict" Mr. O'Donnell.

Mr. O'Donnell's petition in Judge Fitch's court that Mr. Hoyne and his assistants be barred from prosecuting him and Mr. Erbstein was withdrawn. Mr. O'Donnell said he would renew the petition before Judge Charles M. Walker.

Lets Style Lag; Loses Husband in Dress Tragedy

Wife Says She Could Not Keep Up with Europe and Golf.

FIGHTS FOR CHILDREN

Another "tragedy in dress" has overtaken a woman. This time it has driven a wife from home again. But the extravagance for tulles and powder puffs, etc., that is so fatal to women didn't spell disaster for Mrs. Jennie T. Thomas of 627 West Sixty-second street—it was because she wasn't extravagant. She wasn't fastidious and clever with her gowns. She didn't keep in the style procession, and now she is fighting for her home and children in the courts and trying to prevent her husband, William R. Thomas of a prosperous printing concern, from divorcing her. He charged her with desertion. But the plea for divorce was dismissed by Judge Martin Gridley for want of equity on Thursday. Cuthbert D Potts, attorney for Mrs. Thomas, intends to file a suit for a separate maintenance for his client.

The Wife's Story.

After four years of separation from her children and home—because of that "tragedy of clothes," Mrs. Thomas, trying to overcome her sorrow, told of those dark, lonely years last night.

"When we were married we were both poor; he as poor as I," she said. "Then prosperity brought with it changes—for me. I was out of place in our beautiful new home The babies left me little time to spare for pretty dresses and parties. My husband went to Europe four times and took up golf and other diversions. I made the mistake of lagging behind. We had been married ten years. William was 7, Ethel 4, and Helen 2; then I had a nervous trouble—nothing serious—four years ago

"One day my husband and I boarded the car from the loop for our home in Evanston, as I supposed. When we passed our Evanston station I said, 'O, we've gone by,' and my husband told me we would go on to Milwaukee for a little business trip. I had a premonition something awful would happen to me. I cried all the way to Milwaukee—I couldn't help it. We passed a large building on a hill—it wasn't quite completed.

Takes Her to "College."

"I wondered if it was a college. My husband told me it was, and then we approached the forbidding building on the hill. 'Wait for me here a moment,' he said and went away.

"It was cold and I was shivering out there when a man invited me to come inside. 'O, no,' I told him I was waiting for my husband. When I found he wasn't coming back I fell on the floor in a dead faint. I was in St. Mary's Hill, a sanitarium. The doors were all locked. Besides they took my clothes from me and I wore always a blue cotton gown.

"I wrote my mother and she replied that my husband had arranged for me to remain there for eight weeks and grow strong. I was more complacent. When the eight weeks were up my husband sent me to a sister's for six weeks. He had rented our house to the housekeeper, he said, and was paying her to keep the children. After I stayed with my sister I went to my brother. I wrote to my husband to come for me, but he never answered the letters nor would see me for an interview.

She's Allowed $4 a Week.

"When I went to see the children I was admitted only to the sun parlor in winter. With the children bundled up we visited and shivered in the cold. On warm days I carried them off to the parks with me—twice a week. My husband allowed me $4 a week for expenses and then $8 finally, but I sometimes spent $3 a visit on the children and had nothing but bare necessities for myself.

"I was never permitted to enter the home and was threatened to keep away. But I went to my babies anyhow. I was shocked when my husband sought a divorce; he had told the children he never wanted one. But he is contradictory in all his statements.

"I shouldn't have waited so long—four years—for my home and children to be restored to me. But I loved my husband and I could not think he would ever cast me aside. I love him still.

"He Wanted Stylish Wife."

"Never had I thought of deserting my home. How could I, when he took me away himself to the sanitarium?

"There is a whisper of another woman, but I don't know. He has always had his mother—never separated from her.

"With the children I could not give more attention to my apparel, and didn't know I was expected to. But I think Will wanted a stylish wife—and I wasn't clever enough for him any more, and didn't it in with Europe and gold and grand opera. But I did my housework and saved. There I made a mistake. I should have given less to the domestic occupations and more to myself."

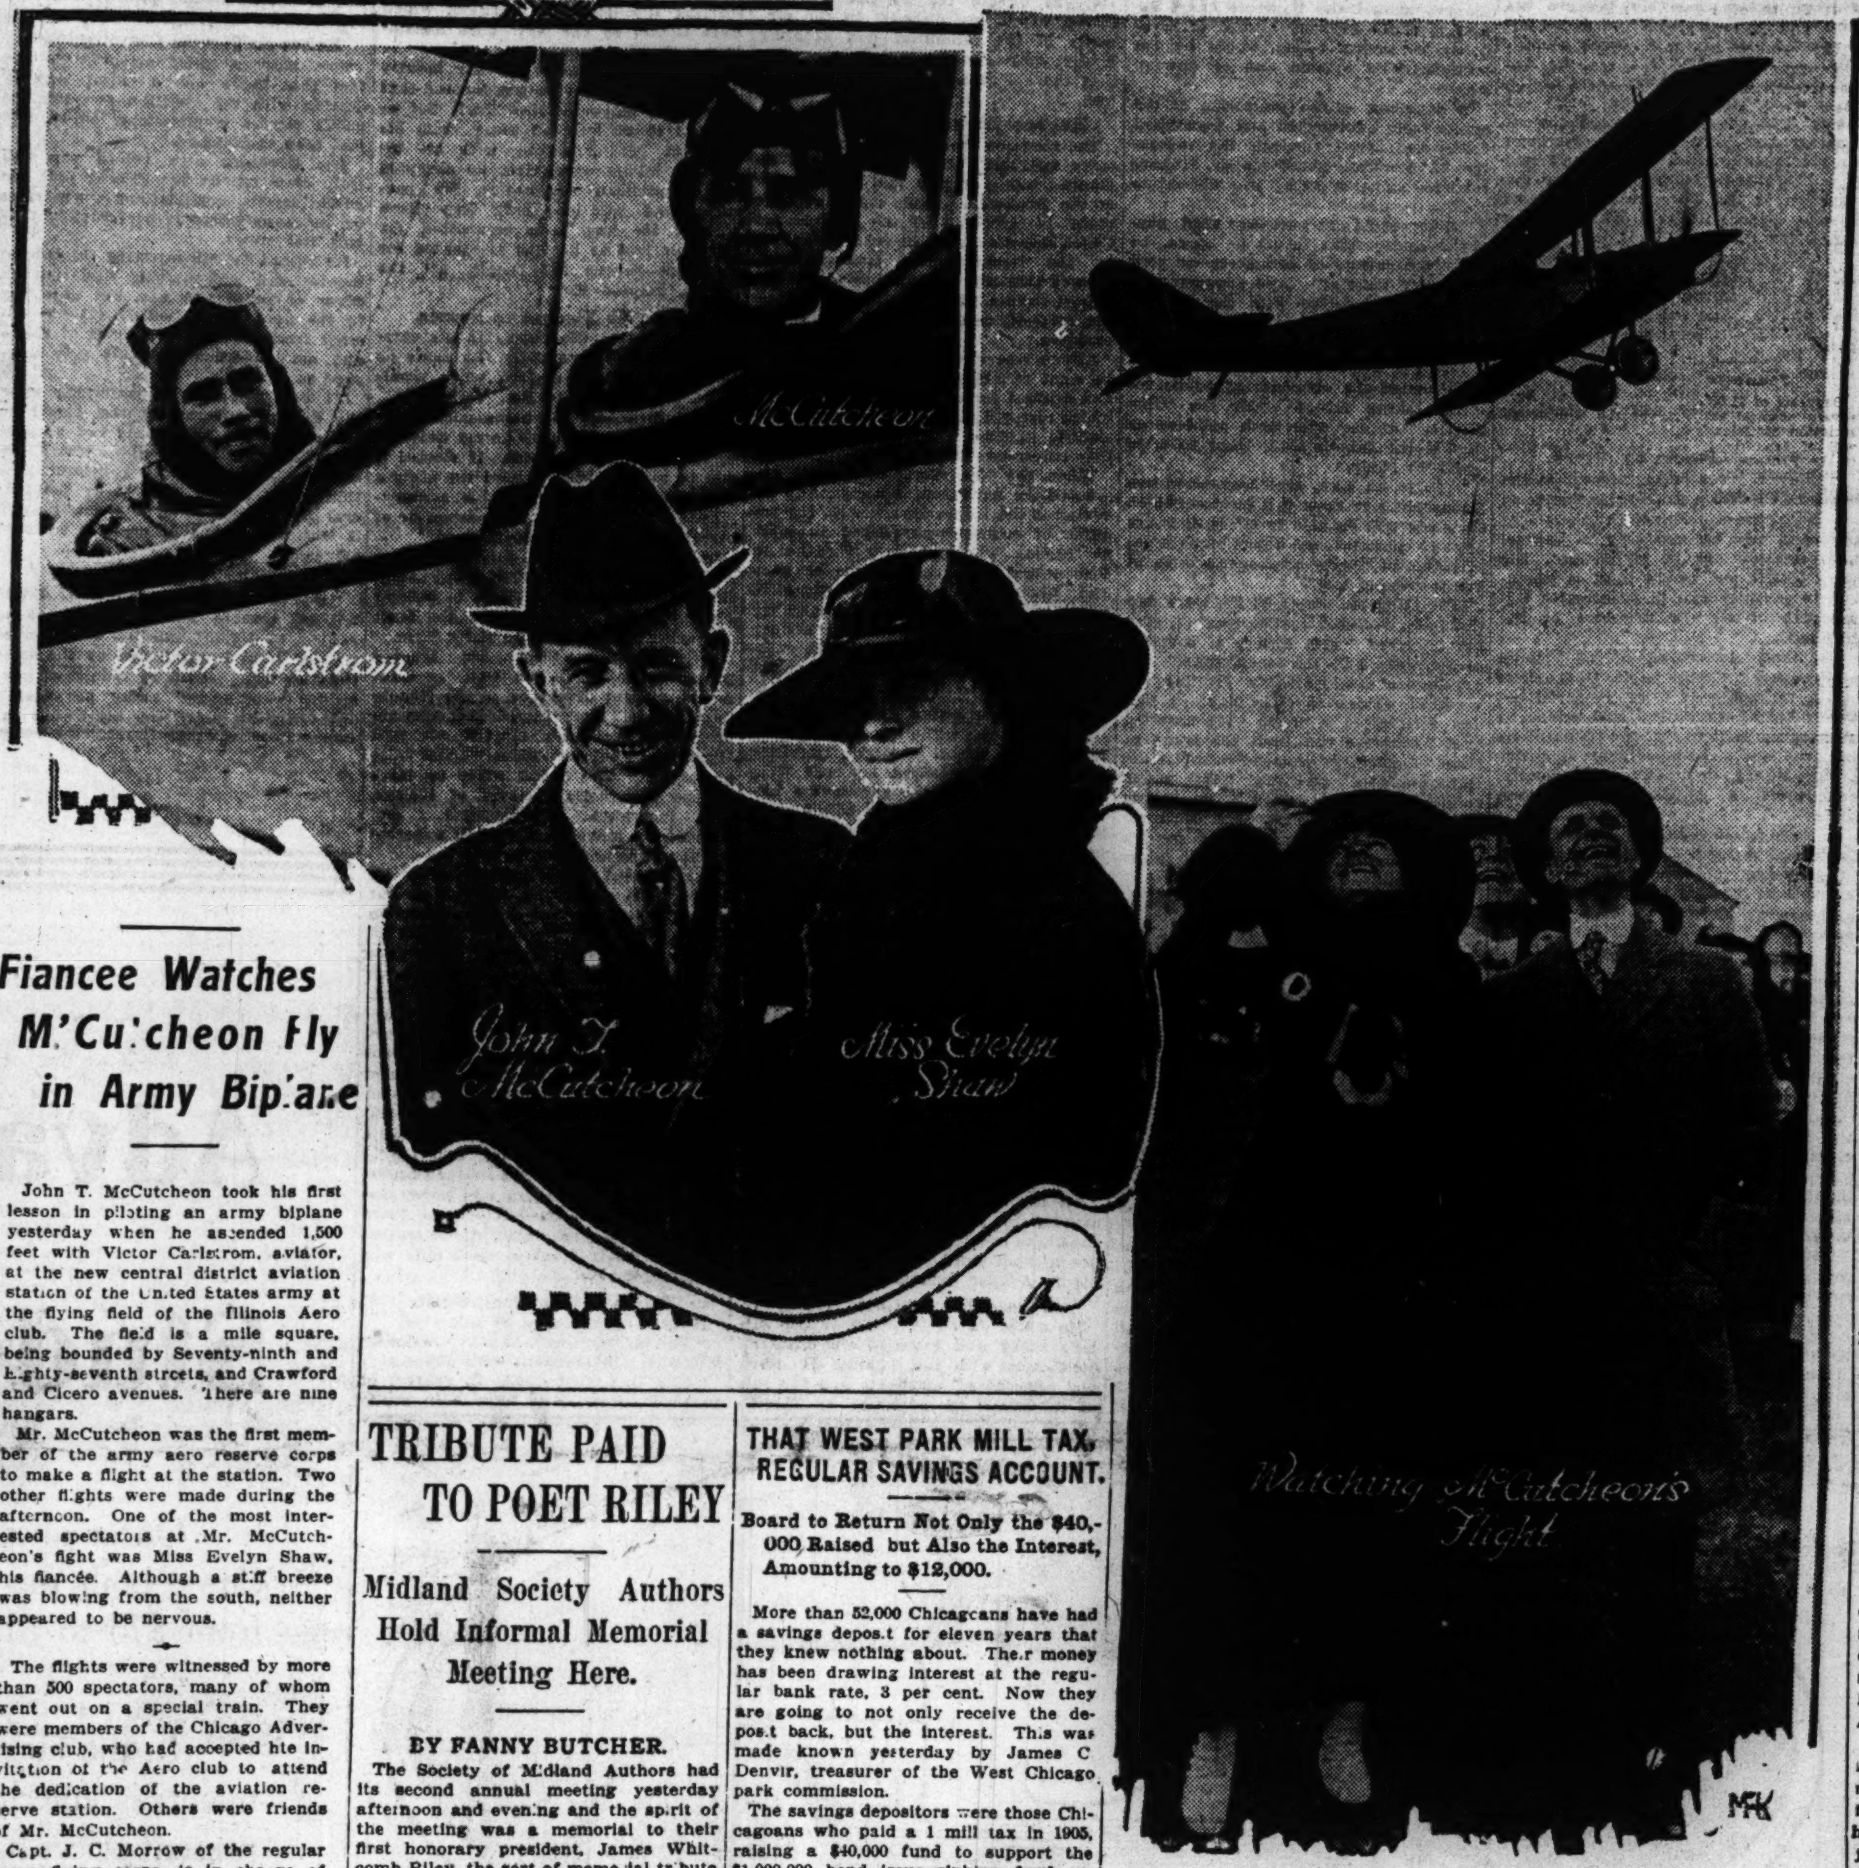
DRAMA STUDENTS PRESENT PLAYLET BY CHICAGO GIRL

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—An original playlet by Charlotte Markham of the Chicago Art Institute, the first of a series of plays by young writers to be given by Milwaukee's students of the drama, was presented tonight by the Wisconsin Players at the Playhouse, with a cast made up of members of the Playhouse membership.

The play was "The Man Who Married the Moon." Miss Markham not only wrote the play but did two months of research work along various lines to make her play technically correct as to settings, costumes, and dances. She designed the costumes and settings as well as arranged the dances.

M'CUTCHEON IN THE AIR

Cartoonist Making First Flight Before Fiancee at Dedication of U. S. Army Aviation Station at Cicero, Where Aero Reserve Officers Are to Be Trained.



Fiancee Watches M'Cutcheon Fly in Army Biplane

John T. McCutcheon took his first lesson in piloting an army biplane yesterday when he ascended 1,500 feet with Victor Carlstrom, aviator, at the new central district aviation station of the United States army at the flying field of the Illinois Aero club. The field is a mile square, being bounded by Seventy-ninth and Eighty-seventh streets, and Crawford and Cicero avenues. There are nine hangars.

Mr. McCutcheon was the first member of the army aero reserve corps to make a flight at the station. Two other flights were made during the afternoon. One of the most interested spectators at Mr. McCutcheon's fight was Miss Evelyn Shaw, his fiancée. Although a stiff breeze was blowing from the south, neither appeared to be nervous.

The flights were witnessed by more than 500 spectators, many of whom went out on a special train. They were members of the Chicago Advertising club, who had accepted the invitation of the Aero club to attend the dedication of the aviation reserve station. Others were friends of Mr. McCutcheon.

Capt. J. C. Morrow of the regular army flying corps, is in charge of the station. Aiding him are First Lieut. A. R. Christie, and five men from the aviation section of the army signal corps There are now four new army planes at the field. Twelve more are expected They will be used to instruct student officers and recruits in the aviation reserve.

"This is the largest station in the middle west and we hope to make it the largest in the country," Capt Morrow said. "If we can get enough recruits we may have a hundred planes here next year."

The first flight of the afternoon was made by Theodore MacCaulay, one of the three civilian instructors detailed to the station. He remained in the air a half hour. A. Livingstone Allan was the next to ascend. The third instructor is J. D. Hill. Allan, early this year, enlisted in the British Royal Flying corps for six months. He saw three weeks' active service directing artillery fire over the German lines in Belgium and France. Then he came back to America to teach flying in the army aero reserve.

MOTHER OF BLOOM GIRL SWEARS MURDER WARRANT

George Arndt, with Regular Army in Texas, Formally Accused After Alleged Confession.

George Arndt, who is reported as having confessed the murder of Frances Bloom, who was drowned at Diversey beach July 4, 1914, will be brought back to Chicago on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Lillian Bloom, mother of the girl.

Mrs. Bloom obtained a warrant for the arrest in the Clark street court yesterday. The warrant formally charges Arndt, now an infantryman at Fort Texas, with the murder of Miss Bloom, who was 17 years old, when Bloom, then a clerk, is said to have pushed her off the Diversey breakwater.

Chicago authorities found it impossible to obtain further information from the military camp where Arndt is held prisoner. Word from Marfa, Tex., last night was to the effect htat Arndt is under arrest in Shafter, Tex., forty-five miles from Marfa and inaccessible except by automobiles or army trucks. Capt. Claude Mason, to whom Arndt confessed, is on his way to Vernon, Tex., with the confession.

TRIBUTE PAID TO POET RILEY

Midland Society Authors Hold Informal Memorial Meeting Here.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

The Society of Midland Authors had its second annual meeting yesterday afternoon and evening and the spirit of the meeting was a memorial to their first honorary president, James Whitcomb Riley, the sort of memorial tribute which he would have liked best to be paid him—a jolly meeting, laughter, happy reminiscences, and a good dinner.

The business meeting, which was presided over by the beautiful photograph of Mr. Riley which Eugene Hutchinson took only a few days before his death, saw a change in the officers of the club, the election of Emerson Hough as president in the stead of Hobart Chatfield-Taylor and the election of Mr. Chatfield-Taylor to the honorary presidency.

Address by Miss French.

Miss Alice French, who is known best by her pseudonym of Octave Thanet, gave the address of the afternoon, on "The Obsessions of Literature," which, she said, James Whitcomb Riley was beautifully without. These obsessions, she said, were the worms that destroy art, and their names were sex, sentimentality, socialism, the insatiable desire of the race of today for something startling and new, and the influence of the press.

She gave newspapers and newspaper writers some mortal stabs, and then took all of the sting out of the hurt by declaring that she is glad to be "a mid-Victorian auntie," as, she said, some one once accused her of being.

Edith Wyatt read an exquisite bit of comment which she wrote at the time of Mr. Riley's death anent his choice of words, his immortalizing of Hoosier.

Tells of Meeting Poet.

Hobart Chatfield-Taylor told of the two times he had met the poet. The first time was twenty-seven years ago, when they were both waiting for a shave on a transatlantic steamer. At that time, he said, there was a group for the pursuit of pleasure formed on the boat consisting of James Whitcomb Riley, Walter Damrosch, Burr Mackintosh, P. D. Armour, and Riley and himself. They had sessions all day, broken only by meals.

Reminiscences of Poet.

The real reminiscences of the afternoon were those which Miss Clara E. Laughlin contributed. She knew the poet intimately, had known him since her baby-editorial days when as the literary editor of a religious paper she sent him $25 and asked for that much worth of his best poetry.

One of the intimate little things she told was of his aversion to old shoes. If a shoe lace were twisted in the lacing he would notice it and not let it go unremarked.

A resolution was passed which deserves to be read for its own sake as well as for the tribute to the beloved poet. It is, in part:

"Our joy in the beauty and distinction of his poetry and in the human tenderness, rich humor, and profound intelligence of the man himself makes it all the more difficult to resign ourselves to this too early closing of all his earthly intimacies."

THAT WEST PARK MILL TAX, REGULAR SAVINGS ACCOUNT.

Board to Return Not Only the $40,000 Raised but Also the Interest, Amounting to $12,000.

More than 52,000 Chicagoans have had a savings deposit for eleven years that they knew nothing about. Their money has been drawing interest at the regular bank rate, 3 per cent. Now they are going to not only receive the deposit back, but the interest. This was made known yesterday by James C Denvir, treasurer of the West Chicago park commission.

The savings depositors were those Chicagoans who paid a 1 mill tax in 1905, raising a $40,000 fund to support the $1,000,000 bond issue sinking fund established in 1903 by the park board and later nullified by the Supreme court, which declared the bond issue illegal. The board announced last week that the $40,000 would be returned to the taxpayers. But it was later reported that the interest had been kept in the park board's general fund, and Treasurer Denvir was questioned.

"The interest as well as the principal will be paid to the taxpayers," he said. "This was voted upon by the board. The fund has been under a separate deposit, at interest of 3 per cent. The interest will probably amount to $12,000."

WANTS TEACHERS' TENURE ON PERMANENT BASIS.

Supt. Spaulding of Minneapolis Gives Testimony Favorable to Chicago Federation.

Testimony regarded by the members of the Chicago Teachers' Federation as favorable to their contentions was given yesterday before the council schools committee by Frank E. Spaulding, superintendent of schools of Minneapolis.

"Teachers should be given a permanent tenure of office after they have served throughout the probationary period of two or three years," he said.

"A school system which allows the dismissal of teachers without charges being preferred against them and without a hearing is unsound."

"Do you think it proper for a board of education," asked Ald. Buck "to specify in its rules what organization its teachers shall or shall not belong to?"

"I have never in my experience had to do with any board of education which attempted to dictate along those lines," was Mr. Spaulding's reply.

NEW DIMES ARRIVE HERE

Distribution Will Be Started Tomorrow by United States Treasurer's Office.

Distribution of the new mintage of dimes will be started in Chicago tomorrow, Robert I. Hunt, assistant treasurer of the United States at Chicago, announced. The dimes were coined at the San Francisco mint. The design is simple Liberty with a winged cap is shown on the fore side, and on the reverse is a fascis. A spray of leaves entwines the fasces, aside of which is printed "E Pluribus Unum." The dime was designed by Adolph A. Weinman. The initial "W." is printed on the face of the coin. It is remembered that when the new pennies were circulated the initial of the designer was on the front of the coin, and on account of this the coins were ordered recalled.

HOME MORTGAGE CO. HEAD SAYS DEBTS ARE PAID.

Nothing Sensational About Gately Building Deal, L. D. Moore Assures Reporter.

"There is nothing sensational whatever in the operations of the Bankers' Home Mortgage company. Our transactions in connection with the Gately building were a simple purchase and a simple sale, on a business basis. And we do not owe any one a thing."

L. D. Moore, president of the Bankers' Home Mortgage company, which Friday sold its ninety-nine year lease on the Gately building at Wabash and East Adams street, yesterday denied the truth of statements given by an employé of the company that the employés were not paid and that the concern was started on a "shoe string."

"You don't see me running away, do you?" queried Moore at the Windsor-Clifton hotel. "This company was regularly incorporated. We haven't sold a nickel's worth of stock in Illinois. What we have sold was on a legitimate business basis. And we don't owe a cent to any employé or any one else, except probably $100 incidental bills. We just simply bought a leasehold on the building and sold it."

When asked about Edward Mattison, who came to Chicago with him last May as secretary of the company and was fined $500 and sentenced to three months for impersonating a federal officer at Keokuk, Ia., Mr. Moore said:

"Mattison's arrest was in no way connected with the business of the company."

He also denied reports that the company had circulated announcements that the old Gately building was to be replaced by a modern office structure.

Pearson's Makes Announcement British Refusal to Aid Poles Called "Blackest Crime."

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Pearson's Magazine of this city announced today that it had been barred by the Canadian censor from circulation in the dominion. The October issue of Pearson's had an article characterizing the refusal of Great Britain to allow American supplies to pass to the starving Poles under practicable conditions as the blackest crime against humanity in the whole war.

PLEA FOR ELDERLY WOMAN FINDS JUDGE INDIGNANT.

Five Girls in Bridewell as Inmates of Her House, He Says in Imposing Sentence.

Weeping children and the plea of an attorney for Mrs. Catherine Court, 58 years old, convicted of keeping a disorderly house at 710 Wells street, availed nothing yesterday when the woman was fined $100 and sent for sixty days to the bridewell by Judge Fisher in the Morals court.

"You bring before me the family of this woman and as they weep you ask that I, out of consideration for the name and feelings of the children and grandchildren, let this woman go free," said Judge Fisher.

"Five girls are now serving sentences in the bridewell because they were inmates of this old woman's house. The guilt of this woman, though she did not sell her own body, is greater, far greater, than that of these girls whom she permitted to occupy her rooms.

"This woman furthered the ruin of five girls—she did not weep at their fate nor for the hearts their fail has broken."

HUGHES FIGHTER WITHOUT 'STRING'; DEFENDS PUBLIC

Fearlessness and Integrity Mark His Efforts for Benefit of the People.

IS SOUGHT BY THE OFFICE.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Whether Charles Evans Hughes would serve the American people as president better than Woodrow Wilson is the question the voters of the nation must decide before they cast their ballots on Nov. 7 next.

A fair determination of this question must be based upon a weighing of the character, promises to the electorate, and public record of each of the two candidates.

Mr. Hughes promises to make the United States impregnable to attack by foreign foe. On this question he stands where he always has stood, as evidenced by a comparison of his utterances now and in 1908. He is in accord with his party, which placed and maintained the navy in second world rank until Democratic ascendancy allowed the sea force to fall to fourth, if not fifth, rank.

WILSON OUT FOR DEFENSE.

Mr. Wilson steadfastly opposed adequate national defense until last July, when he became an apparent eleventh hour convert to preparedness, yielding to overwhelming public sentiment threatening his political fortunes. His change of heart came in time to save the navy bill from Democratic slaughter, but was too late to prevent the passage of a totally inadequate army bill which already is pronounced a failure.

Mr. Wilson purposes to keep Daniels, a pacifist, at the head of the navy and Baker, a pacifist, at the head of the army and promises the pacifists that "it is entirely possible much of the money authorized for naval construction may never be spent at all."

Mr. Hughes promises that he will protect Americans and American property and business rights abroad. His stand is that of the Republican party in promise and performance.

FAILS TO GUARD AMERICANS

Mr. Wilson has not protected American life and property abroad and does not promise to do so if reëlected He caused the Democratic party to amend its present platform so as to exempt Mexico from any promise to protect Americans abroad.

Mr. Hughes promises to maintain unimpeachable neutrality toward the European belligerents. An earnest of the fulfillment of this promise is afforded by his attitude as investigator, governor and judge, which became notable as the embodiment of stern impartiality.

Mr. Wilson also promises neutrality. The value of this promise may be measured, with all fairness, by the admission of one of Mr. Wilson's chief apologists, Walter Lippmann, who says the president "has not been neutral in thought or action, though he talked about it. He has been consistently and courageously benevolent to the allies."

HUGHES PLEDGES TARIFF.

Mr. Hughes promises a protective tariff based on the findings of a tariff commission investigating the differences in the cost of production at home and abroad. This is progressive Republican doctrine of which Mr. Hughes was one of the authors prior to his appointment to the Supreme court in 1910

Mr. Wilson destroyed the protective tariff, but later restored protection to sugar and placed a prohibitive tariff on dyestuffs. He at first opposed but later caused the creation of a tariff commission to revise rates of duty, but he makes no promises to establish a protective tariff, and the commission is a temporary body which may be abolished after election, as the Democrats abolished the Taft commission.

BOOSTER FOR U. S. TRADE.

Mr. Hughes promises to extend and protect the foreign trade of the United States, not only during the war but when peace ushers in keen competition with the trade alliances of the belligerents. This promise accords with Republican records of performance.

Mr. Wilson promises as much, but he has failed to protect legitimate American trade with European neutrals and to defend the "open door" to trade with China, and he fails to promise that protection of Americans and American interests abroad without which foreign commerce cannot be maintained and extended.

Mr. Hughes promises to abolish the "pork barrel" and establish a budget system of estimate and expenditure making for economy in government. His record shows that he made good a similar promise as governor of New York.

Mr. Wilson promises no reform in this particular He has signed all the "pork barrel" bills put through by the southern spoilsmen and failed to establish a budget system

FOE TO SPOILS SYSTEM.

Mr. Hughes promises to restore and extend the merit rule in public service and to bar political spoilsmen from office. He made good a similar promise as governor, incurring the enmity of Boss Barnes and other machine Republicans.

Mr. Wilson promises no change in his policy which has permitted the southern spoilsmen to run riot in the public service to an extent that brought down upon his administration the censure of the National Civil Service Reform league, of which he was a vice president until 1913.

Mr. Hughes promises to maintain the orderly procedure of government as opposed to government by threat. His stand for this principle has been unequivocal throughout his public service as investigator, governor, and Supreme court justice. As governor he vetoed the popular 2 cent fare bill because there had been no investigation of the proposition.

Wilson Bows to Force.

Mr. Wilson surrendered to the threat of the railroad brotherhoods to strike and caused congress to stand and deliver under duress and without inquiry legislation raising the wages of train operating employés 25 per cent He gives no pledge against a repetition of this surrender of the principles of the orderly government.

Mr. Hughes promises a square deal to labor. He made good a similar promise when as governor he caused the passage of one-third of the labor legislation enacted in New York in its entire history and was commended therefor by the representatives of organized labor. As justice he furthered the amelioration of working conditions.

Mr. Wilson gives similar promises and stands on his record of labor legislation, some of which, however, like the eight hour day for government employés, only supplemented Republican legislation and some of which, like the seamen's act, has been largely nullified by administrative interpretation.

Nation First, Hughes Belief.

Mr. Hughes promises an extension of the doctrine of nationalism to which he gave a new impetus as Supreme court justice in his opinions establishing the paramountcy of national to state railroad regulation and extending the application of the commerce clause of the constitution to achieve reforms of evils flourishing in the "twilight zone" between state and nation.

Mr. Wilson stands for the doctrine of state rights, as interpreted by southern Democracy, which is antagonistic to nationalism. He denounced several years ago the invocation of the commerce clause to permit federal regulation of child labor, and only last July, in deference to political exigency, reversed his position and assented to passage of the child labor law under the commerce clause, as originally proposed by the Republicans.

Hughes Promises Women's Votes.

Mr. Hughes promises the enfranchisement of women by amendment of the federal constitution. His attitude is in accord with the Supreme court opinions safeguarding the rights of women.

Mr. Wilson refuses to give this pledge and contends that women should be enfranchised, if at all, by the individual states.

The manner in which Mr. Wilson has disregarded the pledges given by himself and his party in 1912 has been amply set forth in the columns of THE TRIBUNE. A comparison of the speeches of Mr. Wilson and the Baltimore platform of 1912 with the administration record shows the difference between promise and performance in the case of the president.

Now, what guarantee have the voters that Mr. Hughes will carry out his promises if he should be elected president? For that guarantee voters must look to the character and record of Mr. Hughes and also give consideration to the circumstances under which he would enter the White House.

Hughes' Colors Shown in Office.

Mr. Hughes has shown himself in public service, as in private life, to be a man of unimpeachable integrity, of austere uprightness of purpose, of inflexible independence,of progressive convictions, of conspicuous courage, and indomitable energy. His views of what constitutes efficient government are firmly established.

He has never been accused of opportunism, flighty changes of mind, or inconsistency in thought and action. He has demonstrated that he knows what he wants to do and that he has the will to do it.

In elevating Mr. Hughes to the presidency the American people would choose, not only a man possessing these strong qualities, but a man who would go into office "without any strings on him." For Mr. Hughes is under obligations to no one for his nomination at Chicago and he would be under no obligations to any leaders or groups of politicians for his election.

Not Seeker of Office.

He did not seek the nomination. He repudiated the canvass for delegates in his behalf, and refused to be a primary candidate. The nomination was a free will offering of the Republican convention, dictated by popular sentiment, which Roosevelt Republicans and reactionary Republicans alike fought to prevent.

The candidate has been careful to keep himself free of "strings" since his nomination. The only semblance of an obligation is to Theodore Roosevelt, whom Mr. Hughes personally asked to aid him in the campaign, but only after the colonel voluntarily had renounced his own nomination by the Progressives and urged his followers to support the Republican nominee. The "Old Guard" Republican leaders Mr. Hughes ruled out of the management of the campaign.

Never before within the memory of men have the American people been presented with the opportunity of naming a president "with no strings on him."

Office Seeking the Man.

The people are having a novel experience. At last they have seen the office seek the man, not the man the office. Appropriately enough, the man sought is one who never sought an office in his life, but was repeatedly called to public service.

The contrast in this respect between the two candidates is immeasurable. Mr. Wilson was under obligations for his first nomination to Bryan, and he paid that debt at great cost to the American people. His administration was from the start, and still is, mortgaged to the south, which is exacting a tremendously usurious interest in "pork barrel" extravagance, sectional and dangerous legislation, and inefficient management of public business.

The strings on Mr. Wilson were and are numerous and strong, and they have been pulled with telling effect, as is evidenced by the administrative favors granted to friends and special interests and by the appointment of diplomats and other officials whose chief recommendation consisted of generous contributions to the president's campaign fund.

"Without Any Strings on Him."

Now, what may be expected of Mr. Hughes if the people decide to place in the presidency a man "without any strings on him"? Judging from his record as an investigator, governor, and judge, one can only answer that Mr. Hughes may with confidence be expected to exhibit that independence, that insistence on political probity, and that devotion to public welfare that earned him the hatred of Republican gang politicians.

No one is more confident of this, though sadly so, than the old guardsmen, who are full of forebodings that "Hughes won't recognize a Republican after he gets in the White House."

This was the old guard complaint at Albany, but the record shows that the only Republicans he refused to recognize were those seeking special privilege at public expense, and those who could show no better recommendation for official preferment than campaign contributions.

Record Open to Public.

The qualities that Mr. Hughes would be expected to disclose as president are exactly those which have illumined his public career from the start. The record is open for all to read.

Strangely enough, it is the latest service he has rendered to the people that is least known, possibly because his achievements were submerged in the impersonal record of the Supreme court.

History will record, however, the rise and decline in the last six years of the popular movement for the recall of judges, will show the responsibility of a narrow and reactionary Supreme court for the impetus given this demand and of a liberalized Supreme court for the recession of the wave, and will credit Charles Evans Hughes with having turned the tide.

To his progressive convictions, his hatred of dogma, his liberal pragmatism, his extraordinary power of keen analysis and forceful presentation of facts, and his insatiable capacity for work the people are indebted for the reclamation of the Supreme court from dangerous tendencies to restrict and thwart the popular will as expressed in legislation.

Wielded Power on Bench.

In the six years of his service on the bench he wielded a powerful influence on his colleagues and shaped decisions that opened a new era not only in judicial interpretation but in legislation. His work stands out as the most conspicuous in quantity and in progressive significance of all the members of the tribunal.

The most remarkable of his judicial achievements was his series of opinions in the railroad rate cases prepared between April 1 and June 9, 1913, which, in view of the intricacy of the propositions involved and the stupendous quantity of arguments, testimony, and exhibits, constituted a physical phenomenon alone.

In these opinions Justice Hughes clearly defined national and state regulation of railroads, opinions, which Justice Ransom of the City court of New York pronounces "the charter of a vitalized nationalism."

Pave Way for New Law.

The [illegible] of the commerce clause of the constitution by Mr. Hughes and his colleagues paved the way for the passage of the recent act prohibiting interstate commerce in the products of child labor in accordance with a theory of legislation proposed originally by the Republicans, but successfully opposed by the Democrats until President Wilson changed his mind on the question.

Mr. Hughes is a liberal constructionist of the commerce clause. His view is represented by his opinion of the court in which he concurred:

"It may be that congress could not prohibit the manufacture of the article in a state. It may be that congress could not prohibit in all of its conditions its sale within a state. But congress may prohibit its transportation between the states and by that means defeat the motives and evils of its manufacture."

In contrast with this view entertained by Mr. Hughes is the opinion of Mr. Wilson, expressed in 1911:

"Its power (the federal government) is to regulate commerce between the states, and the attempts now made during every session of congress to carry the implications of that power beyond the utmost boundaries of reasonable and honest inference show that the only limits likely to be observed by politicians are those set by the good sense and conservative temper of the country.

Effect on Child Labor.

"The proposed federal legislation with regard to the regulation of child labor affords a striking example. If the power to regulate commerce between the states can be stretched to include the regulation of labor in mills and factories, it can be made to embrace every particular of the industrial organization and action of the country.

"The only limitation congress would observe should the Supreme court assent to such obviously absurd extravagance of interpretation would be the limitations of opinion and of circumstances."

In decisions on the protection of the public from adulterated and fraudulent foods and drugs through the regulation of interstate commerce Mr. Hughes rendered signal service. In a dissenting opinion he asked:

"Why should not worthless stuff, purveyed under false labels as cures, be made contraband of commerce—as well as lottery tickets?" And congress answered the question with the Sherley amendment making such fraudulent cures contraband.

Routs Opponents of Reforms.

He routed the oponents of public reforms taking refuge under the "due process" clause with such opinions as that in the Illinois child labor case, in which he said:

"Where, as here, such legislation has a reasonable relation to a purpose which the state was entitled to effect, it is not open to constitutional objection as a deprivation of liberty or property without due process of law."

In limiting the length of the work day the state, declared Justice Hughes, does not interfere "with liberty of contract as guaranteed by the constitution." He upheld the California law limiting the work of women to eight hours a day and forty-eight a week. He asserted that "congress can limit the hours of labor of employés engaged in interstate transportation," and that "this power cannot be defeated either by prolonging the period of service through other requirements of the carrierr or by the commingling of duties relating to interstate and intrastate operations."

Reason Backs Rail Law Fight.

A unanimous court sustained Mr. Hughes in this declaration and he therefore has authoritative reason for asserting that if the recent railway wage legislation established a true eight hour day the railroads would not be permitted to work their employés more than eight hours a day.

Other opinions by Mr. Hughes broke down the barriers to adequate workmen's compensation laws. He also declared that the "right to join labor unions is undisputed," and wrote the opinion upholding the Kansas law prohibiting employers from coercing employés to shun membership in unions.

Mr. Hughes has been attacked on the decision penalizing the union in the Danbury hatters' case, but the criticism has failed to command respect, for the reason that the opinion was unanimous. Moreover, the act condemned was a secondary boycott, which even Mr. Wilson's Clayton law stopped short of legalizing.

Before the passage of the Clayton act declaring labor not a commodity, Mr. Hughes joined his colleagues in the identical declaration on which the exemption of labor organizations from prosecution under the Missouri anti-trust law was upheld.

In a dissenting opinion Justices Hughes and Holmes declared, it the duty of the federal court to determine whether Leo M. Frank had been given a fair trial by the Georgia court.

The independence and austere uprightness of Mr. Hughes was disclosed upon his entrance into public life as counsel for the Stevens' gas investigating committee of the New York legislature. The committee found great difficulty in selecting an able lawyer, the New York bar having been pretty generally retained by the Consolidated Gas company. Finally the committee heard of Charles E. Hughes, "who does not believe in taking general retainers." He was offered the position but declined, expressing disbelief in the sincerity of the committee and acepting finally only upon ironclad assurance that there "should be no strings" on him.

Hughes Exposes Corporations.

The selection was attacked bitterly in some quarters. It was said that as Hughes was a Baptist and the founder of the Rockefeller Bible class, nothing could be expected of his probing of Consolidated Gas, which was controlled by the Rockefellers. Hughes soon showed that this relationship was of no import to him. He mercilessly exposed the corporation lawlessness in the gas business.

After his service as counsel was ended he went to Albany at his own expense and drafted for the committee the bills which restored public control of gas and electric lighting and saved New York City consumers $800,000 in 1905 alone.

When the New York legislature appointed the Armstrong committee to investigate the insurance scandals the position of counsel was offered by cable to Hughes, who was on a vacation in Switzerland. He came home at once and plunged into the investigation, which he made the most remarkable inquiry of its kind in American history and the foundation of legislation safeguarding the interests of millions of policyholders.

Risk Companies Are Target.

Day by day, without sensationalism or dramatic appeal and with unfailing courtesy to his victims, big and little, Hughes uncovered the astounding rottenness in the management of the great insurance companies. Only once did he become angry, and that was when George W. Perkins sought to liken certain insurance funds to Mr. Hughes' legality fees.

"My fees are not trust funds," hotly retorted the lawyer.

One day a Republican friend confided to Mr. Hughes that a certain mysterious item represented a contribution of $48,000 by the New York Life to the Republican party. The hint given was that he should slide softly over that item for the sake of the party. Mr. Hughes' response was to excavate that particular item in full public view, exposing all the political contributions of the companies and the "yellow dog fund."

All the influence that could be commanded by politics, money, and social rank was exerted to "call Hughes off," but without avail. He proved susceptible to neither influence nor fear.

Forced Harriman to Talk.

He called Jacob H. Schiff to the witness stand and revealed the banker's connection with the "James H. Hyde and associates" syndicate and the sale of $33,000,000 in securities by Schiff's firm to the Equitable while Schiff was a member of the Equitable finance committee.

He called Edward H. Harriman and made him tell how, although a director, he had borrowed large sums from the Equitable, tried to make Hyde ambassador to France, threatened to use his political influence against Thomas F. Ryan, and sought to share Ryan's control of the society. He also grilled Ryan with interesting results.

In the same way that he exposed the regular payments of $50,000 by each of the three big companies to the Republican national committee he uncovered the venality of some of the New York newspapers which received a dollar a line from the Mutual Life for printing favorable reports of the investigation.

At the conclusion of the investigation Mr. Hughes wrote a report setting forth graphically all the evils and abuses uncovered and drafted the bills reforming the insurance business which were passed by the New York legislature without change.

During the progress of the inquiry there had come a persistent demand that he run for mayor of New York, but he refused to be tempted away from his task. In 1906, however, with his insurance labors completed, he accepted the Republican nomination for governor and was the only Republican elected. He had been nominated for governor just as he was nominated for president—becaus the people, not the bosses, wanted him

Makes No Pledges to Bosses.

His pledge to the people in his campaign today is essentially the same as this pledge that he gave when nominated for governor of New York:

"I shall accept the nomination without pledge other than to do my duty according to my conscience. If elected it will be my ambition to give the state a sane, efficient, and honorable administration free from taint of bossism or of servitude to any private interest."

In the campaign that followed it was noticed at once, as it is remarked today, that Hughes made no effort to inflame his audiences. He presented the facts and asked his hearers to ponder them.

Installed as governor, Mr. Hughes proceeded to make his own appointments without deference to the Republican bosses. They fumed and expostulated and McCarren blurted out that Hughes had obtained office "under false pretenses." The bosses made an issue of the governor's removal of Kelsey, the insurance commissioner, and blocked the move until Hughes appealed to the people and won the day.

Bosses and corporations lined up against the governor's attempt to put through the bill establishing commission regulation of public utilities. Nearly all the leading lawyers of New York were retained by the corporations and spent weeks at Albany fighting the measure. Hughes explained the bill to the people in simple, direct fashion, without any oratoric pyrotechnics, and forced the bill through an unwilling legislature.

Then came his veto of the railroad two cent fare bill on grounds prophetic of his present criticism of President Wilson's action in causing congress to grant a wage raise to the railroad brotherhoods without inquiry and under duress. He vetoed the bill because there had been no preliminary investigation to show whether two cents a mile was a sufficient rate.

Strikes at Railroad Graft.

In his veto message he said:

"The bill represents a policy seriously mistaken and pregnant with disaster.

"The fact that those in control of railroad corporations have been guilty of grossly improper financiering and of illegal and injurious discrimination in charges points closely to the necessity of effective state action, but does not require or warrant arbitrary reprisals. In dealing with these questions Democracy must demonstrate its capacity to act upon deliberation and to deal justly.

"I deem it most important that the policy of dealing with matters of this sort arbitrarily, by legislative rule of general application, without reference to the demands of justice, in particular cases, should be condemned.

"Every workingman, every tradesman, and every citizen believing himself to have aught at stake in the prosperity of the country should determinedly oppose it. For it not only threatens the stability of business enterprise, which makes our prosperity possible, but it substitutes unreason for sound judgment, the ill considered demands of resentment for the spirit of fair play, and makes impossible patient and honorable effort ot correct abuses."

Relies on Service Commissions.

Gov. Hughes called attention to the fact that there was a better way of dealing with the question—through the public service commissions, which had just been established.

The governor also vetoed the full train crew bill on the ground that the public service commissions could compel railroads wherever necessary to provide full crews.

He vetoed the bill ratifying the federal income tax amendment, declaring in favor of an income tax, but objecting to the amendment, which did not exempt from taxation the bonds of states and municipalities. In this veto message he said:

"I am in favor of conferring upon the federal government the power to lay and collect an income tax without apportionment among the states according to population. I believe that this power should be held by the federal government, so as to properly equip it with the means of meeting national exigencies.

Political Bonds Exempt.

"But the power to tax incomes should not be granted in such terms as to subject to federal taxation the incomes derived from bonds issued by the state itself or those issued by municipal governments organized under the state's authority. To place the borrowing capacity of the state and of its governmental agencies at the mercy of the federal taxing power would be an important impairment of the essential rights of the state which, as its officers, we are bound to defend.

"While we may desire that the federal government may be equipped with all necessary national powers in order that it may perform its national function, we must be equally solicitous to secure the essential basis of state government."

Throughout his two terms as governor he fought for primary law reform as a means of curbing bossism. He stirred the people to demands for the reform, but the legislation was defeated in 1909 and again in 1910. The agitation, however, led to the passage of the present New York primary law, though grossly defective, by a Democratic legislature.

Hughes Friend of Labor.

So many laws benefiting labor were passed under the Hughes administration that the Legislative News, the organ of the New York Federation of Labor, said:

"He was a great governor.

"Now that Gov. Hughes has retired from politics and ascended to a place on the highest judicial tribunal in the world, the fact can be acknowledged without hurting anybody's political corns that he was the greatest friend of labor laws that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany.

"During his two terms he has signed fifty-six labor laws, including among them the best labor laws ever enacted in this or any other state. He also urged the enactment of labor laws in his messages to the legislature, even going so far as to place the demand for a labor law in one of his messages to an extra session of the legislature.

Praise from Labor Paper.

"Only 162 labor laws have been enacted in this state since its erection in 1777—in 133 years. One-third of these, exceeding in quality all of the others, have been enacted and signed during Gov. Hughes' term of three years and nine months.

"With such a record of approval and suggestion of progressive legislation in the interest of humanity to his credit, it is easy to believe that human rights will have a steadfast and sympathetic upholder in the new justice of the Supreme court of the United States."

As governor, Mr. Hughes conducted a great moral crusade which resulted in legislation suppressing racetrack gambling. Like the other great conflicts in which he engaged ,his course made him many bitter enemies, but also hosts of friends.

Horsemen Laud Gov. Hughes.

Of the racing legislation the Rider and Driver, the organ of horse breeders, says in the issue for July, 1916:

"In looking back now one readily sees that the governor was the inflexible agent of a state-wide sentiment to put down a condition that had fastened itself upon the splendid sport of racing, which, although drastic, has undoubtedly proven to be, like the eradication of slavery and other evils, for the best good not only of the people at large but for horse lovers and racing interests in particular."

The panic of 1907 checked prosperity and brought about failure of many financial institutions. The events of that year showed the need for a revision of the banking laws of the state.

Gov. Hughes invited six well known bankers, representing all the classes of institutions involved, to act as an unpaid commission to examine into the situation and make recommendations to him for the reform of the laws. A. Barton Hepburn was chairman of this commission.

Made Bank System Safe.

The chief evils which made the banking situation unsafe were eradicated by the legislation evolved from the recommendations of the committee, the superintendent of banks, and the governor. This legislation was regulative and restrictive, and, like the insurance legislation, it made the officers and directors responsible.

Among other provisions of the new law was one which extended the authority of the superintendent of banks to private banks, in which large amounts of money were deposited by immigrants unfamiliar with American institutions.

At the close of his service as governor it was said of Mr. Hughes that "he never appointed a friend to office as a reward, nor did he ever for revenge remove from office an opponent or the friends and supporters of an opponent."

Studebaker

Advance in Prices of Studebaker Cars

On or about December 1st, the prices of Studebaker cars—both the FOUR and the SIX—will be advanced from $75 to $100 over prevailing prices.

In the face of the rapid increase in the cost of the raw materials entering into the construction of Studebaker cars, present prices have been maintained. But now conditions in the industry have reached a point where Studebaker is forced to add a substantial increase to these prices.

For the past eighteen months there have been rapid advances in the cost of all raw materials entering into the manufacture of automobiles—especially on steel of all kinds, pig iron, castings, stampings, sheet metal, aluminum, leather and upholstering materials. And these advances range all the way from 40% to 150%.

Studebaker has always been satisfied with a small margin of profit—and you may rest assured that, even with a substantial increase over prevailing prices, both the FOUR and the SIX will still be the most powerful seven-passenger cars in the world at their prices. And you will still have to pay from $300 to $600 more to equal them in power, roominess, economy, beauty of design, and all around dependability.

Our allotment of Studebaker cars at the present prices is very limited and is likely to be exhausted at any time now. So, if you want to save from $75 to $100, we urge you to come at once.

'SACRED UNION' HAS BEEN AID OF FRANCE IN WAR

Princes and Nobles Live Up to Illustrious Traditions of Their Ancestors.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

[Copyright: 1916: By the Brentwood Co.]

France's magnificent patriotism in the present war, a patriotism which has excited world-wide admiration, nowhere more so than in the United States, her old time ally and ever grateful friend, has taken many unexpected forms.

Until two years ago France was looked upon as a land of political unrest. The elevation of any one to the highest office of the state apparently constituted a general invitation to heave bricks at his head. In most other countries the executive is loked upon as a perfectly legitimate subject of criticism. But in France he was considered as an entirely justifiable object of attack and of bitter warfare.

With the commencement, however, of the present international conflagration and with the German invasion of some of the fairest and richest provinces of France, the character of her people underwent a rapid and extraordinary change. The presence on Gallic soil of the hereditary foe, renewing the ruin and desolation which had signalized the German invasions of 1814-1815 and 1870-1871, served to unite the entire population of France for the defense of her soil. All political antagonisms, no matter how bitter, all factional disputes, all party and personal feuds were abandoned for the nonce.

Foes Made Friends.

There was a coalition not alone of the politicians but of the whole nation. The Ultramontane clasped hands with the Clerical, the Red Radical with the Monarchist, the capitalist with the Socialist, the territorial magnate with the peasant, and the noble of ancient lineage with the Republican. Even old Clemenceau, the iconoclast of innumerable cabinets, who had in the piping times of peace sworn to drive President Poincaré from the palace of the Elysee, suspended operations against his successful rival.

In fact, there sprung into existence, without any apparent effort, something akin to the so-called truce of God of medieval times, with this difference, that the truce was restricted to the dissensions among the French people, and that it was for the purposes not of peace but for those of war—war against the foreign invader.

Terms Misconstrued.

This truce received the name of the Union Sacré and of the Concord Sacré, terms which have been much misconstrued abroad, and that is not is any way limited to mere political parties.

In this Sacred union the princes of the former sovereign dynasties and the nobles of France have played a very notable rôle, which, while it is known and appreciated on yonder side of the Atlantic, is ignored to a great extent here in America.

As soon as the war broke out the princes of the house of Bourbon and the head of the Bonaparte family at once issued peremptory directions to their adherents in France to desist from all further activities against the republican régime, and likewise notified President Poincaré that not a thing would be done during the war by the monarchists to embarrass the administration; also that the authorities could rely on their loyal coöperation in everything pertaining to the defense of the nation.

Barred from the Army.

Not content with this they all tendered their sword to the republic and pleaded to be permitted to serve in the French army. But unfortunately for them—and perhaps for France—there is a law in existence which owes its enactment to the somewhat ignoble Gen. Boulanger, which, dating from 1888, excludes all scions of any dynasty that has ever reigned in France, from the privilege of serving either in her army or in her navy. President Poincaré was obliged, therefore, to decline the applications of the princes.

Excluded from the armed forces of France, every one of them has found other means of rendering himself useful to France in her hour of peril. Two of them, Prince Sixtus and Prince Xavier of Bourbon, secured admission to the ambulance corps in the role of stretcher bearers and performed so many acts of quiet heroism under fire that last spring they were decorated by King Albert, with his order of Leopold, while last month the president of the French republic bestowed upon each of them the Croix militaire.

Gives Up His Yacht.

Prince Ferdinand, Duke of Montpensier, happened to be cruising in Chinese waters when the war broke out. He disembarked at Yokohama and tendered the use of his fine yacht, the Makong, first of all to the French government and then to England. The latter power accepted the offer. The British naval commander in the orient added to the yacht's equipment of guns, placed a couple of his own officers on board, and sent it cruising in the China seas, where it picked up a number of German and Austrian prizes. Afterwards the Mekong was used as a dispatch boat and finally was struck by a floating mine in the Mediterranean and sunk. Prince Ferdinand returned home almost succumbed to his malady during the three weeks that he spent in New York, and on returning to France devoted himself to the care of the wounded in his mother's castle of Randan, which has been transformed into a hospital.

Prince Gaston of Orleans, Count of Eu, a veteran of several Brazilian wars, has been doing duty as sentinel along the railroad track.

Nobles Give Lives.

With regard to the nobles of France, there is today not a single house of the old aristocracy which is not mourning the loss of one or more of its members who have given up their lives for their country. In every one of the great clubs in Paris—in the Union, the Agricole, the Epatant, the Jockey, etc.—there are in the principal apartments of the premises two marble tablets, on one of which are inscribed the names of those killed in battle, while the other is reserved for the names of those still living who have won official recognition by feats of gallantry. The lists of the dead include three dukes—those of Rohan, Lorge, and Arenberg—as well as a number of scions of other ducal and princely houses, such, for instance, as those of De Bolignac, Avaray, De Maille, De la Rochefoucauld, Broglie, Brissac, and Gramont.

THE MAYOR'S NEW MASCOT

Young "Bird of Freedom" Sent to City Hall Puzzles Until the Donor Explains.

Policeman Timothy T. Carroll and baby eagle presented to Mayor Thompson

Mayor Thompson has a mascot. It is a baby eagle eighteen inches high.

For a time the eagle, which came in a wooden crate bearing the inscription "For Mayor Thompson with compliments of Stanislaus Berens (Eagle) the mascot," was the sole topic of discussion around the mayor's office.

Some thought it came from some Chicagoan who thought the electric flag on the corner incomplete without a live eagle perched on its staff. Others believed it came from some sarcastic political enemy who wanted to make another addition to the group of oddities that surrounds the mayor.

The strange donor, Stanislaus Berens, however, was found at his home, 4033 Kamerling avenue, yesterday afternoon. He was formerly an inspector in the city vehicle bureau but at present is empolyed at a West Madison street garage.

"I got the eagle from a friend in the west Friday and I thought it would be a good mascot for the mayor," said Mr. Berens.

When last heard from the eagle had not been fed. Mrs. T. P. Carroll, wife of Officer Carroll of the mayor's office, promised to see that her husband brought it food tomorrow.

O. K. ON SCHOOL SANITATION.

Dr. Robertson Commends Englewood High Lunchroom—Suggests Minor Changes.

A letter of commendation in the matter of sanitation of the Englewood High school lunchroom was sent by Dr. John Dill Robertson, health commissioner, to Mrs. W. J. Roberts, president of the Englewood Woman's club, yesterday. Dr. Robertson points out that while the general condition of the lunchroom is excellent, it would be advisable to remove a garbage can that stands just outside the kitchen door and also to have the imperfect plumbing overhauled.

SUPREME COURT DECISION HOLDS REAM WEDDING VALID

Justice Overrules Annulment by Lower Court and Scores Heir to Millions.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice Henry V. Borst today overruled the annulment of the marriage of Eleanor K. Davidson to Louis M. Ream, heir to the Ream millions, and declared that the marriage, which was performed by a justice of the peace in Hoboken Sept. 1, 1911, was legal and binding.

The marriage was set aside by Justice Chester in Rensselaer county upon recommendation of a referee who was appointed to take testimony. Various phases of the case were argued before Justice Borst in April. One paragraph of Justice Borst's decision reads:

"If he did not intend to marry her, then his conduct was most reprehensible and he has been guilty not only of a great wrong against the plaintiff but also of an imposition of the meanest character upon his friends, to whose home he took the plaintiff and at their table introduced her as his wife when he in secret believed he was using her as his concubine."

LANE AID HERE TO ATTEND CONFERENCE ON SAND DUNES

Stephen T. Mather Speaks Before Geographic Society—Will Hold Park Project Hearing Tomorrow.

Stephen T. Mather, private secretary to Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, who is in Chicago to attend a conference on the advisability of establishing a national park embracing the dunes of the south lake shore, spoke at a luncheon of the Geographic Society of Chicago in the Hotel La Salle yesterday.

Mr. Mather spoke on the conservation of national parks. There also were addresses by Prof. H. C. Cowles and Dr. O. W. Caldwell of the University of Chicago.

Tomorrow Mr. Mather will attend the conference on making a park of the dunes. Other speakers will be Emerson Hough, Julius Rosenwald, La Verne W. Noyes, Dwight Heald Perkins, and Earl H. Reed.

NEW INSURANCE POLICIES PLACE TAX ON SOLDIERS

Some Contracts Require Defenders to Pay $25 Additional on $1,000.

A new war clause in life insurance policies is arousing the protests of policy holders. Some of the companies are inserting provisions for the payment of $25 in addition to the regular premium for each $1,000 of insurance in case the holder should enter military or naval service.

No standard policy has been adopted by the companies, but a committee of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents is considering the question and expects to make a report in a short time.

War Seemed Unlikely.

Most of the policies of years ago, it is said, had war clauses, but as the probability of war seemed to become remote clauses such as the following in the policies of the Metropolitan Life were substituted: "The insured hereunder may engage in military or naval service in any state or country without notice to the company and without extra premium charge." That was in force in 1914 at the opening of the European war.

Now, in its new policies, the same company has substituted the following clause:

"This policy will be void if the insured engage in active military or naval service unless, if so engaged at the date thereof, an extra premium at the rate of $25 for each $1,000 of insurance hereunder be paid to the company, together with the regular first premium; or, if the insured thereafter become so engaged, unless notice therof be given by or on behalf of the insured, with payment to the company of an extra premium at the rate of $25 for each $1,000 of insurance hereunder, within ninety days after the date of engaging in such service."

Called Unpatriotic.

Complaints have come to THE TRIBUNE that the war rider is unpatriotic and unfair. Officials of insurance companies assert that some aditional protection is necessary in case of war.

"The war clause is now in all of our policies," said John O'Connor, attorney for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, "and I am told that all the companies are inserting them."

"Some companies charge extra and others do not," said Cyrus Raber of the Prudential Insurance company. "In our policies we get a declaration from the holder as to whether or not he intends to go to war. If we knew he was going to war we should charge him extra. But after a year, the policy is incontestible and it makes no difference whether the holder dies in war or a natural death."

Only for European War.

An agent of the New York Life said that their war rider applies only to service in the European war.

"Many persons took out insurance and then went abroad to fight," he said. "To stop that we inserted the war rider, but it does not apply to Mexico or any American war."

L. E. Ellsworth of the Provident Life and Trust company said that nothing is said about war in the policies of that company, but only Americans or naturalized citizens are taken.

"When the Mexican situation was at its height," he said, "we didn't insure members of the national guard, but there is nothing in our policies that would prevent holders from engaging in military service."

BAKERS START CAMPAIGN FOR WHEAT EMBARGO

Association Prepares to Present Case to Every Chicago Congressman.

Members of the Chicago Master Bakers' association at a meeting in the Schiller building last night went on record for an embargo on wheat shipments to the warring nations of Europe. This, they thought, was the only means of counteracting the rapidly advancing cost of flour.

At the same time the bakers disclosed the fact that a meeting of the Illinois Master Bakers' association had been held quietly in East St. Louis some days ago and similar action taken.

A formal resolution approving the action of the Illinois association was adopted last night.

Plead with Congressmen.

Committees were appointed from the various congressional districts to wait on Chicago members of congress and urge them to lend their support to the embargo idea. Similar action will be taken in other cities of the state and speakers at the meeting last night expressed the opinion that it would be possible to get a majority of Illinois congressmen to support the idea. Other states are expected to follow the Illinois plan.

Ten thousand bakers are behind the association in Illinois, it is said. No one at the meeting last night would discuss a further advance in bread prices.

Restaurants Feel Prices.

War time prosperity, otherwise known as the high cost of living, has hit the hotel and café proprietors so hard that there was serious talk of trying again to charge for the service of bread and butter.

"Detroit cafés," said Henry J. Bohn, editor of the Hotel World, "have put on the cover charge, or bread and butter charge, almost universally. It is usually 10 cents. There is no concerted action in Chicago on this yet, but I hear very serious discussion of it every day. Two or three of the highest class hotels are making such charges now. The only reason that the popular priced places do not follow at once is that they fear that their trade would go to the lunchrooms.

Somebody Pays.

"I would call your attention to one thing, however, that the bread and butter is paid for, even if there isn't a direct charge against it. The liberal patron who spends a dollar or more for his meal pays for the bread that the fellow eats who buys a 30 or 40 cent order.

"One popular priced hotel paid out $1,700 for butter last month and another paid $1,500. Restaurant men tell me they are doing bigger business now than ever before, but with a loss of profits. One Denver man added $500 to his volume of business last month and cut his profits $500."

Frank Smedberg, president of King's restaurant, gave a list last night of some provisions, aside from butter, eggs, and milk, which have almost doubled in price in the last year.

Prices at Wholesale.

Beans, per bu.	$2.10	$ 8.00
Flour, per brl.	4.60	10.50
Beet sugar, per 100 lbs	3.75	7.75
Salt, per brl.	1.10	1.50
Potatoes, per bu.	.75	2.00
Sauerkraut, per brl.	4.30	15.00
Cabbage, per brl.	.75	2.65
Tomatoes, per doz. cans	.80	1.50
Tomatoes, extra	2.65	5.00
Spinach	3.75	6.00
Corn, per doz. cans	.70	1.35

"Those of us who do business on a narrow margin of profit in normal times," said Mr. Smedberg, "have little choice except to pocket a loss this year. We are forced to the most rigid economies on overhead expense, and we dare not raise prices. I don't believe we could charge for bread and butter. The last time that was tried in Chicago it failed."

A head waiter in a loop grill gave these little secrets of meeting the high cost:

"Before this year, I give you bread and butter and fill up your plate again and again as you run out. This year I don't do it. I make you ask first and then I bring you just one piece of butter and small amount of bread."

Only Two Thin Slices.

A chain of restaurants in the city which formerly served three thick slices of bread free with each order now serves two thin ones. This same system, and others as well, are now serving cubes of sugar just half the size of those formerly served.

A new solution of the high food cost problem was offered yesterday by Ald. Willis O. Nance, head of the council committee on health. Ald. Nance proposes to have the government stop the manufacture of all alcoholic liquors until food prices reach normal. He gave these figures to show the value of foodstuffs which go into liquors in one year's time:

Corn	30,924,335
Wheat	869,938
Rice	7,288,786
Rye	4,604,436
Molasses	2,056,626
Fruit	731,825
Other products	626,119

"There is no question," said Ald. Nance, "that if the food products used in making liquors were diverted to the use of the public, the present shortage of foodstuffs would not exist."

Dr. Lincoln C. Miner said that he intended to present this idea to the Chicago Dry Federation and the Anti-Saloon league. Arthur Burrage Farwell of the Law and Order league said he favored the idea and congress undoubtedly had the power to act.

Hard on Poor.

More than 65,000 persons dependent upon the United Charities of Chicago face a critical situation because of the soaring prices of foods, medicine, and other supplies unless the organization can raise $15,000 within the next few days above its regular collections. This was made known in an appeal sent out by Charles W. Folds, chairman of the finance committee.

When Miss Mary Duffy, one of the corps of Chicago graduate nurses now in hospital service "somewhere in France," returns to Chicago, she will be in possession of a war honor in the form of a medal and clasp. She has been decorated at the hands of King George, who recently visited the base hospital with which she is connected. It is understood the decoration was presented personally by the British monarch. Miss Duffy, who is a graduate of Michael Reese Hospital Training School for Nurses, is recognized by Chicago medical and surgical men as one of the most efficient nurses in the United States. She has taken postgraduate courses in leading American hospitals.

SLOGAN MAKERS! HERE'S CONTEST FOR YOUR WITS

Hughes Parade Committee Offers Prizes for Rallying Cries 'with Punch.'

Who are the wits and the epigram makers among the Chicago supporters of Hughes for president? What ardent Hughes man or woman can furnish the best slogan for the Hughes parade next Saturday?

The Hughes parade committee wants to know, and is willing to pay for the information.

Slogans, mottoes, rallying cries, and epigrams are wanted for the big parade. The shorter they are the better. They will be painted on banners and used to decorate floats and automobiles. Those which carry the best punch will be given the first consideration. Rhymes are not barred, but brevity is essential.

Prizes for Best Slogans.

To stimulate competition among the wits the Hughes parade committee has made up a list of handsome prizes. Fifty dollars will be paid for the best slogan, motto, or epigram submitted. If the author will confine himself to five words that will be $10 a word—a price not equaled by any best seller writer.

The second prize will be $40, which means $10 a word also for a four word slogan or $8 a word for a five word slogan. The third prize will be $30, so the winner of that may get in the $10 a word class if he can make his meaning clear in three words. And there will be lesser prizes for succeeding suggestions.

Nobody Barred from Contest.

The awards will be made by a committee of newspaper men. The contest is a grand free for all, and all Chicago is invited to take a try at it. Send the slogans to the Hughes parade committee, 124 West Adams street.

Plans for the parade have gone ahead rapidly. The reviewing stand will be in Grant park, north of the Art institute, in which Col. Frank O. Lowden, Mayor Thompson, state, country, and city candidates and heads of various organizations in charge of the parade will be stationed.

Applications for places in the line of march have come to headquarters from all parts of Chicago. Political clubs, ward and precinct organizations, civic clubs, industrial organizations, and plain citizens by the hundreds have called, telephoned, or written headquarters to offer to help swell the number of marchers and carry Hughes banners.

"BOOZE GOT ME; I LOVE IT"; THEN HE GOES TO A CELL

He Refuses to Give Wife Authority to Collect Wages—She Won't Have Him Around the House.

"Booze got the best of me. I love it," said Charles Eckert of 1542 Barry avenue, a baker, to Judge Williams.

"He never gives me any of his pay to buy food for myself or the children," said his wife, Elsie.

"Will you give your wife an order to collect your wages?" inquired the court of Eckert.

"No, I'll serve two years first," he retorted.

"Will you take him back on probation until Monday? You can report then on his conduct," said the judge to the wife. "I'll decide the case at that time."

"No; you'd better lock him up. I don't want him around the house."

Eckert was led to a cell.

He referred to the audience as the "coldest in the world."

He was under care of a physician and a nurse today, but it was said he would be able to attend the closing services tomorrow.

Harkness Trophy Race a Carnival for Goodyear Cords

Aitken Distances All Rivals by 105.86 Miles an Hour Pace in 100-Mile Event at Sheepshead Bay

Galvin, Wilcox, Henderson and Devore, all on Goodyear Cords, Capture Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Places.

Yesterday, on the Sheepshead Bay Speedway, the audacious skill of Johnny Aitken and the meteoric speed of the Peugeot he drove captured the Harkness Trophy, established a new American record, and wrote another brilliant chapter into the racing history of Goodyear Cord Tires.

Yesterday, the speed, the spring, the athletic vitality and stubborn stamina of these tires successfully fought off every punishment and outgamed every ordeal that sustained speed can provide.

Yesterday, another hundred miles of proof of Goodyear Cords' superiority was piled upon the impressive structure already established.

The qualities in Goodyear Cord Tires that triumphed over competition and hardship in the Harkness Race and in similarly severe and spectacular contests that have gone before led to the adoption of these tires as standard equipment on the Franklin, the Packard Twin-Six, the Locomobile, the Peerless, the White, the Haynes Twelve, the Stutz, the McFarlan, the Roamer and the Lexington "Thoroughbred Six."

They should lead to the adoption of these tires as exclusive equipment on your car.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

RAILWAY TO TAP NEW FIELDS OF GOLD IN ALASKA

Completion of U. S. Project Will Reduce the Cost of Fuel for Mining.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

[Copyright: 1916: By Frank G. Carpenter.]

FAIRBANKS, Alaska.—The completion of Uncle Sam's railway will be the beginning of a new era in the mining camps of Alaska. The road will give easy access to many thousand square miles of new territory and will pass through regions where the precious metals are known to exist. It will cross the Kenai peninsula, which is peppered with gold and which contains working mines, both placer and quartz.

Little work has been done in the country running north to the Tanana valley. About forty miles from Anchorage are the Willow creek mines, where they have taken out several hundred thousand dollars' worth of quartz gold with a little stamp mill.

On Broad pass silver-lead ores are reported, and a little further north is the Bonnifield district, consisting of gold placers which have already yielded considerable metal. And then there are the Skwetna and Yetna mines west of the Talkeetna river, where they are thawing placer gold out of the ice, and to the north and west is the Kantishna mining district, which contains not only gold but antimony.

Antimony Found in Alaska.

Antimony has risen in price since the war in Europe and it is now worth several hundred dollars a ton. Another valuable mineral which is being mined near Fairbanks is scheelite. It is a high grade tungsten used in the making of ammunition. The concentrate is now selling for over $3,000 a ton.

As to the Fairbanks district itself, it has many gold mines, both placer and quartz. The most of the gold so far has come from the placers, the total product amounting to more than $80,000,000.

The plan is to extend the railroad by a branch line to the Kuskokwim region. This will give cheap fuel to a large area of gold bearing territory and will make the Innoko, Iditarod, and other placer mines much more accessible.

Many Rich Placer Mines.

The Innoko district has twenty-five or thirty mines now working. The gold output of the Iditarod annually amounts to $2,000,000 and upward.

Another rich placer district is at Ruby, close to the Yukon. It produced a million dollars in 1914 and has fifty-five mines which are operated during the summer. In the Hot Springs district, which lies near the Tanana river between Fairbanks and Fort Gibbon, forty mines are being operated, and not far away are the Tolovana and other new gold fields.

In all of these gold regions the output depends on fuel to operate the machinery and to generate the steam needed to thaw the mass of frozen gravel and ice in which the gold lies.

The coal for the Fairbanks mines will come from the Nenana coal fields, through which the railroad will pass. These are the largest in the basin of the Yukon. They have many veins which run up to twenty feet in thickness, and there is one that shows by actual measure sixty feet of coal. There is an area of more than 40,000 acres that is known to be underlaid by this coal, and coal is found here and there over 284,000 acres.

Gold Handled Like Corn.

Traveling through a gold country like this makes one covetous. At the clean-ups of the camps I have handled gold nuggets as one handles shelled corn, and at the assay offices I have held up $10,000 worth of pure gold in one brick. While at Dawson I saw $200,000 worth of bricks wheeled about on a truck such as you find at a country railroad station.

I met here at Fairbanks G. E. Beraud, the assayer of the First National bank, who has melted more than $50,000,000 worth of gold dust and nuggets and who is now making bullion to the amount of $3,000,000 a year.

All of the banks here buy gold, and each has its melting pots where the dust and nuggets are turned into bricks. The assaying and melting are usually done outside the bank. Mr. Beraud's shop is a rude zinc shed not much better than the portable houses used for automobiles. The scales are so delicate that they will weigh a pencil mark on a sheet of tissue paper or a single silky hair of a baby.

Miners Carry Gold in Bags.

The gold dust is brought in to the banks by the miners in bags of buckskin as big around as your arm and about a foot long. Such bags are called pokes. The banker takes the poke and pours the metal out on the scales, and then either pays cash for the gold according to weight or gives the miner a credit slip which entitles him to its actual value after it has been turned into bullion.

The assay is made after the gold is cast into bricks. From each brick a corner is cut off with a chisel, the amount taken being about the size of a marrowfat pea. This is hammered out on an anvil and run through rollers until it is as thin as paper. A little strip of this gold leaf is then taken off and weighed.

It is so treated by melting in a furnace that the impurites are taken out and a little button of pure gold is left. This button is weighed and its weight is subtracted from the weight of the strip before it was melted. The result shows the amount of pure gold in the brick; and there are tables giving its value in dollars and cents.

Drives Turkeys Across Range.

United States Marshal Erwin has the distinction of being the only man who has ever driven a flock of turkeys from the Pacific ocean across the mountains into the Klondike gold region. We had been talking about old times in Dawson when he told me the story. He said:

"When I came to the Klondike and saw the high prices they were getting for poultry, I concluded to make a fortune by bringing in live stock from outside. I left the camp and went to Seattle, where I bought 600 chickens and eighty-four turkeys. I took them on a steamer a thousand miles northward to Dyea, and from there sent the chickens by wagon over the pass.

"The turkeys I drove. It was no trouble except they would persist in stopping at night.

"I got $20 apiece for the turkeys and from $8 to $10 for the chickens."

Police Sergeant Robbed.

Police Sergt. Frederick N. Chamberlain, assigned to the Chicago avenue station, notified the stockyards police yesterday that his home was entered Friday afternoon and a pair of gold rimmed spectacles belonging to his wife taken.

WOMAN BURGLAR SAYS SHE STOLE FOR LOVE OF IT

Mrs. Hantz, Pleading Child Be Not Told, Avers Theft Disease Grips Her.

"I don't care to make anything by stealing—I like it." This was the explanation given by Mrs. Nellie Hantz, woman burglar, who has a husband and a daughter 12 years old, when she was questioned by Capt. Ptacek in the Hinman street police station yesterday.

She was arrested and will be tried for burglaries in the homes of Mrs. Anna Spies, 1832 Loomis street; Mrs. Rose Wolton, 1515 West Eighteenth street; and Mrs. Anna Balik, 1834 South Ashland avenue.

"It must be a disease with me. I can account for it in no other way," she calmly said. "It's true that I used a complete set of burglar's keys. I have been a burglar for nine years. I could open any lock that was ever made.

That's Beyond Her Memory.

"I don't know how many homes I have stolen from. It may be twenty or it may be 200.

"My husband and my daughter, Frances, who is 12 years old, never knew what I was doing. I have some well to do relatives. It hurts me to think that they will learn of this.

"I hid from my husband the things I stole. He is a student in chemistry. My daughter has been living with my mother-in-law for nearly two years.

"I was arrested two years ago and sent to the bridewell for a burglary. I wouldn't let my daughter come to see me—I told them to keep her away.

"I never stole for the value of the things I took.

"You can see," she smiled, "that if I considered value I would be a wealthy woman today. But I have nothing. I didn't care what I took—I just took anything and everything I could find. I never sold anything I stole. I threw some of the stuff away. Only a few weeks ago I threw a watch that I had stolen into the river at Twenty-second street.

"I started to steal nine years ago. I started by stealing handkerchiefs. I have been at it ever since. Before I took the handkerchiefs I was honest and upright. I don't know why I started it. It just came down upon me.

Desire Would Not Down.

"When I got out of the bridewell I thought I was done. But the desire to take things came upon me again. I couldn't fight it off.

"I never needed money. I have always had a comfortable home. My husband hasn't made much, but his mother has helped us. She has been sending us $25 every month. I have been married sixteen years. I am 40 years old—old enough to know and do better. But stealing has simply been a disease with me.

"If I had barrels of money I would steal anyway—I know it and feel it. It's strange, but it is true. I have experienced it. That's what really counts—experience, after all.

"I can say one thing. I never stole from a friend.

Child Doesn't Know.

"I wouldn't let my little girl know for the world that I have not been honest. When I was in the bridewell I had them tell her I was in a sanitarium."

"How often did you go out to steal as a rule?" asked the captain.

"O, once or twice a week perhaps—the spells came on me like that."

"How did you manage to escape detection?"

"That was a simple matter," said Mrs. Hantz. "I used many ways and means. I'd go from house to house sometimes posing as an agent with something to sell. I'd get in, pretend to be a little faint, and ask for a drink of water. I'd be in the front and when the lady would go to the rear I'd take anything I could see. That was one way.

"Lots of times I'd stand out in front of a house until I'd see the people leave. Then I rang the bell good and hard to make sure no one was home. I'd just use one of my keys then and open the door and take things.

"Sometimes I'd ring the front door bell and when the woman would answer I'd ask her: 'What kind of a sign is that in your window?' She's be puzzled, of course, and ask what I meant and I'd say: 'I must find a midwife.' The woman would pity me then and take me in. Then the desire to take things would come upon me. I'd take what I could see."

Questioned About Tools.

"What did you use the chisel and other burglar tools found in your room for?"

"I don't know. I don't remember what I'd do with it."

"Why did you have a revolver in your room?"

"I don't know—I never took it with me."

Detectives surrounded the home of Mrs. Hantz at 170 West Chestnut street, arrested her and seized the burglar keys and outfit, the revolver and a small amount of inexpensive jewelry.

Twelve pawn tickets were found in Mrs. Hantz's possession.

"Will you take me to the places where you pawned this stuff?" Capt. Ptacek asked her.

"I'd be perfectly willing to, but I don't know where they are," she responded. "When the spells would work off. I couldn't remember what I had done or where I had been."

LOADED DICE GAME CHARGE FACES POOL HALL OWNERS.

James J. Murphy Says He Lost $650, Nest Egg for Home, Because He Could Not Beat Gravity.

James J. Murphy thought the game was run by the Luck brothers, Good and Hard. It wasn't until deposits and withdrawals balanced at zero in his savings bank book that he discovered Dead Moral Certainty Gravity sometimes arranges the combinations of dice.

Then Murphy, who lives at 753 East Forty-fifth street, went to the Hyde Park police and swore out a warrant charging Julius and Meyer Bernstein with running a loaded dice game in their barber shop and billiard hall at 522 East Forty-seventh street. The brothers were arrested and their case will be heard before Judge William N. Gemmill Oct. 31 in the Hyde Park police court. Other clients of the alleged game are Ed Foster, who says he lost $350, and A. B. O'Hara of 4647 St. Lawrence avenue. Both will be witnesses. It is asserted that "Judy" Williams handled the dice for the Bernstein brothers, and he is expected to make damaging disclosures.

Murphy declares the $650 which went on the "bones" wiped out the savings of years that he and his wife were accumulating to buy a home.

One of the Bernstein brothers who answered the telephone last night at the Apollo billiard hall laughed and said: "Quit your kidding. Murphy and those other goats never saw $650 in their lives. I won't say anything until the trial comes up."

REO

Enclosed Reo Fours, $1425

The great demand for "all weather" bodies has rendered it impossible for us to supply all who wanted enclosed Reos, but the factory is working overtime and gradually catching up.

So if your order—an actual, bona fide order—not merely an "I think I'll have one when you get them in"—we can't call that an order when there's a long line of buyers ahead of you:—

We repeat: if your order for an enclosed four-cylinder Reo is in our hands at once, we can promise you a fairly prompt delivery.

This enclosed Reo is ideal from every standpoint.

In the first place the price is within your reach—and the quality is Reo.

The value is "The Gold Standard."

Then, it's convertible into a fully enclosed, cozy, draft-proof winter car; and, for summer, into an ideal touring car.

The top is permanent—80 per cent of owners never drop their tops we find—and the "Jiffy" curtains which we supply serve for rainy days.

In winter the glass—in summer the Jiffys with celluloid windows—closed or opened in "a jiffy" as the name implies. So you see you really get two cars in one in this enclosed Reo Four—and at a price you can well afford—$1425 f. o. b. Lansing.

Let us remind you again however, that the date of delivery depends entirely on the date your order is in our hands—and too many orders mean the old chronic condition "not enough Reos to go round."

So let us have that order now—today won't be a minute too soon.

Our Own Opinion of Reo the Fifth

WE VERILY BELIEVE that all things considered, Reo the Fifth is the greatest automobile ever produced.

THOSE ARE STRONG WORDS—we fully appreciate that fact, and yet we use the phrase in full confidence that it is justified.

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED—size, passenger capacity, sphere of usefulness, first cost, cost of upkeep and enduring qualities—we submit there's no other car in the world that can compare with this great Reo.

THE MERE FACT that Reo the Fifth has been standard for now seven seasons is proof conclusive of what we've just said.

FOR NO CAR that was less than a super car (and, by the way, Reo used that term several years ago) could for so long have withstood the fierce onslaughts of competition.

AND NOT ONLY THAT—not only has Reo the Fifth been standard in practically its present form for seven times the span of life of the average model—but today it leads in popular favor and demand by a larger margin than ever before.

NEVER WAS THE DEMAND for this model as great as right now. It is almost hopelessly in excess of the factory output—and the output is greater than ever before.

COST OF UPKEEP and operation is the reason. This has proved to be lower year in and year out than any other car of similar power or price or capacity.

WE SAY PROVED—ask any owner.

AND, BY THE WAY, we contend that no "one year model" can possibly have proved anything as to its enduring qualities or its upkeep cost.

ANY NEW CAR is a good car—it is the seven years service of this Reo the Fifth model that proves.

ORDERS IN OUR HANDS now will get preference in deliveries.

"THE GOLD STANDARD OF VALUES"

WHEAT JUMPS TO $1.90; NEW HIGH RECORD FOR CORN

Wheat Shows Advance of About 18 1-2 Cents for the Week for December Delivery.

Wheat reached $1.90 for December delivery yesterday in a new advance. There was more of the irrecistible buying that has figured so prominently in the persistent advance in prices recently, and, although many millions of bushels of long wheat were unloaded into the pit, the effect on values was almost insignificant. Closing figures were 2⅞-3c higher for December and 1¼@2¼c higher for more deferred months. December has advanced about 18⅝c for the week, while May has climbed up 15⅝c in the period. Buying by houses with export and foreign connections was much in evidence, in addition to the general demand by the outside trade.

Seaboard advices indicated that exporters were out of the market and no sales of consequence were claimed. The news failed to dampen buying enthusiasm, however, as the bulls are confident that foreigners must have wheat and if they do not take it now they will have to later.

Argentine News Losing Force.

Argentine news seems to be losing its force. A serious crop shortage in that country is now assured and the trade realizes that Europe will be hard pressed to find enough wheat elsewhere to make up for the short surplus there. Bad weather again prevailed in the Canadian northwest, heavy snow falling over much of the territory, and Winnipeg advices claimed that thrashing will have to be put off until next spring. This will be an additional hardship for the foreign buyer.

Liverpool spot wheat was 1@2d higher, while the cargo market was 1s higher per quarter. Broomhall says the demand for export wheat is urgent, notwithstanding the scarcity and dearness of freights. Seaboard clearances were 431,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 1,886,000 bu, compared with 3,153,000 bu a year ago. Northwest receipts for the week were 3,639 cars, against 10,526 a year ago, while Winnipeg had 5,251 cars, against 13,263 a year ago.

Corn Futures Are Easier.

Corn closed unchanged to ½c lower after displaying early strength. Cash corn sold up to $1.12½, the highest price on record. Cash houses were good buyers of corn futures during the morning, while there was heavy selling by longs on the bulges. There are indications of an increased movement of corn, as more consignment notices have been coming in, and with good weather the movement is expected to be restricted only by the car supply. Prices in the sample market were 1@2c higher and local receipts were only 85 cars. Receipts of corn here this week totaled 860,000 bu, while 1,070,000 bu were shipped.

Liverpool spot corn was ½@1d higher. Clearances from the seaboard were 40,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 306,000 bu, compared with 583,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Active and Higher.

Oats were active and closed ⅛@¼c higher. Commission houses were heavy buyers of oats for outsiders and there was a great deal of short covering. Realizing sales were also on a large scale, but failed to cause any material setback in prices. Cash oats were ½@¾c higher and local shipping sales were 80,000 bu. There were bids here from Baltimore of 4¼c over December price, track there, for 36 lb white clipped oats, November or thirty days' shipment. Local receipts this week were 4,202,000 bu, while 2,982,000 bu were shipped. Only 18,000 bu oats cleared from the seaboard yesterday. Primary receipts totaled 1,199,000 bu, against 1,523,000 bu a year ago.

Hog Product Generally Higher.

Hog product closed generally higher, with lard the active feature. The local packer credited with being the heaviest holder of lard was bidding up prices and selling on the bulges. October lard sold highest since 1870. Shorts were good early buyers, and later the realizing sales were liberal. There was considerable selling of December lard against purchases of January. Hog prices at the yards were weaker, and receipts at western markets totaled 618,900 head for the week, against 350,000 a year ago. Local meat shipments for the week were 17,051,000 lbs, against 19,103,000 lbs a year ago, while lard shipments were 5,616,000 lbs, against 9,351,000 lbs last year.

Rye Prices Up Sharply.

Rye was 2c higher, with sales of No. 2 at $1.41 and No. 4 at $1.33@1.36. Receipts were 15 cars.

Barley ruled 1@2c higher; malting was quoted $1.00@1.23 and sold $1.08@1.23; feed and mixing, 85@98c, with sales at 90@97c; screenings were quoted 50@82c, and skimmings 65@70c, former selling at 70@82c. Receipts, 114 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet. March closed $5.75 bid and $5.90 asked, and year $5.25 bid and $5.50 asked. Cash lots sold $4.30. Clover seed was steady, with cash lots quoted $12.00@17.00.

Duluth flax closed 2½@4c lower; cash on track, $2.65¼; October, $2.63½; December, $2.62, and May, $2.65½; receipts, 85 cars. Minneapolis was 3⅜c lower, with cash on track $2.59¼@2.63¼; receipts were 101 cars. Winnipeg closed ⅞@1¼c lower; October, $2.48, and December, $2.47¼. Receipts, 15 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

Trade in December wheat is becoming narrower and the general volume of pit trading has suffered a material shrinkage. The present level of prices is regarded as dangerous by many traders and they are now trading in comparatively small quantities of wheat. Many traders who were trading in upwards of 100,000 bu are now trading in five or ten thousand bushel lots. December made further gains on the May. There is little hedging pressure and with any buying the December advances easily. Foreigners are supposed to own a good deal of the December and are supposed to want delivery. Sentiment generally continues bullish as there has been little change in the news affecting prices, but commission houses are conservative in their advices, many advocating extreme caution in buying wheat.

◆

Reports from the seaboard indicated a slow demand for all grains for export. Present prices appear to have advanced beyond the views of foreign buyers. There was some inquiry reported for corn and oats. No wheat sales were reported. The local cash demand was also slow, but in all markets cash prices hold relatively steady. Local sales were 20,000 bu. From reports received from the northwest only a small increase is reported in country offerings and southwest advices do not suggest much increase in the movement, farm reserves now being light while farmers are more disposed to hold on to their supplies. Kansas City had 114 cars, against 230 cars a year ago; St. Louis 87 cars, against 137 cars, and Omaha 76 cars the same as a year ago.

◆

Primary receipts of wheat for the week were just about half as much as a year ago, 10,347,000 bu, against 20,441,000 bu last year for the corresponding week. In the northwest receipts for the week were 3,639 cars, against 10,526 cars a year ago. At Winnipeg receipts for the week were 5,251 cars; last year 13,263 cars. A large part of the wheat received at Minneapolis was from the west and southwest winter wheat sections. Yesterday Duluth had only 94 cars of wheat, compared to 722 cars a year ago.

◆

The Argentine markets were firm again. Rosario was up ½c and Buenos Aires closed with net gains the previous day of 8@9c. Corn and flax prices were strong. According to a Buenos Aires cable to Slaughter as well as Broomhall's cables, the recent rains were insufficient with the weather again clear and hot. Exporters were said to be bidding urgently for wheat in spite of the high prices and scarcity, and the dear freights. Corn planting is being delayed and the oats outlook is said to be unfavorable.

◆

Cash corn was ½@2c higher yesterday with No. 2 yellow selling as high as $1.12½. There was a brisk demand for old corn offerings, some of which were light. Fair offerings of new corn from the country were reported. Present prices are expected to increase the movement from the country. Oats were ½@¾c up. Shipping sales were 45,000 bu corn and 80,000 bu oats.

◆

Snow storms were reported all through western Canada and according to Winnipeg messages thrashing in some sections will be delayed until spring. This is likely to hurt the quality of the wheat.

◆

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 66 cars; corn, 85 cars; oats, 271 cars; rye, 15 cars; barley, 114 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday 54,000 head, and for all next week, 220,000 head.

◆

New York wired that a parcel of Argentine corn was expected to arrive there yesterday. Argentine corn was quoted $1.10 at the seaboard recently.

◆

Local industries were reported good buyers of corn in the local market yesterday.

◆

Liverpool spot cables quoted wheat 1@2d up and corn was ½@1d up.

◆

Special brands of spring wheat flour were advanced to $10.30.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR.

New York, Oct. 28.—Stocks were irregular almost from the outset of today's brief but active session. Standard or investment issues were moderately lower and comparatively neglected, while coppers and those specialties which recently figured so extensively in the daily operations were decidedly strong.

Utah Copper was the foremost feature, with its "wide" opening of 8,400 shares at an advance of about 3 points to the new record of 108, this being later extended to 108¼. Chino Copper also made a new high on its gain of 2⅜ points to 62¼, with gains of 1 to 2 points for Inspiration, Anaconda, Kennecott, and Shattuck-Arizona coppers and American Smelting.

Central Leather Climbs.

Central Leather repeated its almost daily performance of mounting to a new maximum, gaining practically 3 points at 98, and Cuba Cane Sugar common and preferred sold higher than ever before at 76⅛ and 100⅛, respectively.

The motor group, equipments, zinc shares, and petroleums were lower by 1 to over 3 points, heaviness being most marked in Studebaker and Maxwell. General Electric also yielded on moderate offerings with National Biscuit and Pittsburgh Coal.

Bonds were again irregular, with some reduction in offerings of internationals. United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

Cost of Massachusetts Annuities.

In several previous discussions of annuities and the advantages of the plan offered by the state of Massachusetts to its citizens, special reference has been made to the needs of unmarried wage earners. The system, however, offers just as great advantages to others.

The bread winner of a family naturally does not wish to put his savings in an old age pension for himself if those dependent on him will get no benefit from the investment in case of his death before the pension has been paid. It is obvious that if a man begins at the age of 30 paying $2.84 a month for an annuity of $200 to start when he is 60, he must live to 60 to receive the first payment and must live to 74 to get back all he pays in, with interest. If he dies before the age of 74, part or all the money paid in would be lost to him and his family. It would go to pay the annuities of men who live beyond 74, thus receiving more than they paid in.

To meet this situation several plans are offered. The one most popular provides that in case of death before 60 all premiums paid are to be returned to the family of the decedent. Another plan provides also that in case of death before 74 any remaining balance of premiums shall be refunded.

Naturally, an annuity purchased on this basis costs more, the difference being one-fourth or one-third. The Massachusetts rates require a man of 25 to pay $2.14 a month for an annuity of $220 beginning at the age of 60 and $2.64 if premiums paid in are to be refunded in case he dies before that age. As suggested heretofore, if the state of Illinois should institute such a system, a somewhat lower cost could be given, because of the higher interest rates yielded here on the best mortgages.

Minneapolis and St. Louis.

E. M. W., Shawano, Wis.—The Minneapolis and St. Louis first and refunding 4s, outstanding to the amount of $13,244,000, are a first lien on 275 miles of road and a general lien on other lines. In the year of depression ended June 30, 1915, the margin of safety over interest charges was 22 per cent. Since then the road has gone through a voluntary reorganization, reducing its fixed charges and improving the position of all its bonds. Earnings last year showed a great improvement. These bonds appear to be reasonably safe now, though of course not a conservative investment.

Conservative Investments.

M. K. G., Waukesha, Wis.—The most conservative investments are municipal bonds. They are now so high priced that they yield an average of only slightly more than 4 per cent. Good first mortgage utility and railway bonds can be had yielding from 4½ to about 5¼ per cent. Good farm mortgages yield from 5 to 6. If you will get a list of bonds from a reputable bond house, we will help you make a selection, if you wish.

Chicago and Oak Park Elevated.

J. L., Delavan Lake, Wis.—The Chicago and Oak Park elevated has been operated by a receiver for the last five years. Its net earnings in the four years ended Dec. 31 last averaged $234,787, or about $12,000 a year more than the interest on the first mortgage bonds. As the road has outstanding more than $3,000,000 of junior bonds, notes, and receiver's certificates, it has shown a deficit of $175,000 to $200,000 a year. It is supposed that unearned interest is paid by issuing more receiver's certificates.

Brief Answers.

G. F. H.—The Chandler Motor company, which reorganized nearly a year ago and issued $7,000,000 of stock all of one class, is turning out nearly 20,000 cars this year, compared with 8,000 in 1915. Dividends were started in April at the rate of 6 per cent a year. The July dividend was 2 per cent with ½ extra and this month 2 per cent regular and 1 extra has been paid.

A. A. J., Freeport, Ill.—A patent puncture proof tire is purely speculative till it has been manufactured on a commercial scale and has proved its value by earning profits for the company manufacturing it. The company you ask about seems to have reputable backing, but whether its tire will prove a commercial success can not be predicted.

T. K.—The Milwaukee Mechanics company has been in business sixty-four years. It has $1,000,000 capital and $781,566 surplus. It has earned and paid dividends varying between 12 and 45 per cent a year.

COFFEE.

New York, Oct. 28.—An opening advance was followed by a sharp break in the coffee market for futures here today, with May contracts selling off from 8.69c to 8.50c and closing at 8.49c bid. The opening advance off from 2 to 8 points seemed to reflect some further buying from outside sources and covering, but after sales of some 10,000 or 11,000 bags there appeared to be very little support around the ring. Offerings, on the other hand, increased owing to reports of an easier cost and freight situation and the decline carried May contracts about 48 points under the high level of last Wednesday. The close was 9 to 16 points net lower. Sales, 46,250. October, 8.15c; November, 8.15c; December, 8.22c; January, 8.27c; February, 8.32c; March, 8.39c; April, 8.44c; May, 8.49c; June, 8.54c; July, 8.59c; August, 8.64c; September, 8.69c. Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7s, 9⅛c; Santos 4s, 10⅝c. Undescribed Santos 4s were reported in the cost and freight market at 9.90c and well described at [illegible] London credits. The official cables reported no change in the Brazilian spot market, but a decline of 25 to 50 reis in Santos futures. Rio cleared 36,000 for New Orleans. Brazilian port receipts, 62,000; Jundiahy, [illegible].

METALS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—COPPER showed continued firmness. One of the largest agencies reports that it has sold its product up to the end of January, and quotations for nearby delivery are nominal. Prices asked for deliveries of electrolytic during the first quarter range from about $27.50 to $28.00. IRON was unchanged.

BURLINGTON ROAD EARNED 25.3 PER CENT LAST YEAR

The annual report of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, the main subsidiary of the Hill group, issued yesterday for the fiscal year ended June 30, showing earnings equal to 25.3 per cent on the $110,839,100 capital stock, is a striking example of the extent to which the so-called granger roads of the west and northwest territory have profited from the agricultural prosperity of the country. The results of this railroad operating outside the munition carrying zone of operations is probably as accurate a barometer of conditions west of the Mississippi as has come to notice. The figures compare with 15.60 per cent earned in 1915.

The Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, as the owners of more than $107,000,000 of the outstanding stock, are the principal beneficiaries. On June 30 the Burlington company had accumulated a corporate surplus of $188,749,695, after paying dividends of 8 per cent regularly. For the first time gross earnings exceeded $100,000,000 with $102,358,893. Last year gross amounted to $91,125,000. The 1916 net, after interest and sinking funds, stood at $28,028,590, against $17,288,913 in 1915.

Banks' Reserve Increases.

The New York bank statement made an unexpected exhibit with an increase of nearly $30,000,000 in the excess reserve, bringing the item up to $105,728,810. The increase was due not to a reduction in reserve requirements but to a gain in cash of roundly $32,500,000. Loans decreased over $16,000,000.

The figures appear to indicate a disturbed condition in the banking situation, but one which continues to suggest easy interest rates. The statement follows:

The anthracite roads are expected to show large increases in earnings in their future statements. The demand for coal for all purposes is said to be on a scale larger than previously experienced.

Dependable Information

This is the only kind of information that is published in the Jones & Baker Weekly News Letter—dependable because this 8-page weekly publication is the printed expression of a great service system for investors.

Like a newspaper, this Weekly News Letter has a staff of reporters and editors. Skilled correspondents cover daily the principal mining camps, oil fields and industrial centers. These men-on-the-ground flash their news to Jones & Baker's New York headquarters, detailing throughout market hours each day developments and operations of companies whose stocks are listed and traded in on the New York Curb and other leading Stock and Mining Exchanges.

This news—which is part of the daily service over direct private wires to investors in five cities where Jones & Baker Offices and Board Rooms are located—is then assembled by the Information Department, a staff of statistical and editorial experts. They analyze and interpret this news for publication in the Weekly News Letter entirely from an unprejudiced viewpoint, since this house neither underwrites securities nor has any interest whatever in stocks. A two-page historical and analytical report is also published each week on some important security of public interest.

Over 28,500 investors and traders the country over find this Weekly News Letter valuable enough to read each week. The coupon below—filled in and mailed—will bring you the current issue containing the latest news of 40 to 50 dividend paying and active stocks.

Hog receipts of 19,000 head at Chicago yesterday exceeded expectations and caused a break of 10@15c in prices of light and packing grades of hogs. Other grades were weak and the market closed in a depressed condition for all offerings. The bulk of the supply sold at $9.75@10.15, and tops cleared at $10.35, the lowest of the week. Pigs were 20@25c lower, with the bulk at $9.00@9.25.

Final prices made hogs 10@15c lower than a week ago, with some of the lightweights off 25c. Pigs were steady to a shade higher. The average price of all hogs here this week was placed at $10.05, against an average of $9.85 last week.

CATTLE.

Good to choice beef steers at Chicago this week sold and closed 15@25c higher than a week ago, while the cheaper grades sold higher at the start, but reacted and closed unchanged. Fat cows, heifers, and bulls made a gain of 15@25c, while calves suffered a loss of 75c@$1.00. About 21,500 range cattle were included in the week's arrivals. The run exceeded expectations and caused breaks of 25@50c in prices. Receipts of native cattle were in excess of 60,000 head, and, with the rangers, comprised the largest week's supply of stock here since 1911.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 297,400, against 332,200 the preceding week, 245,000 a year ago, and 174,100 two years ago. Total for 1916 to date, 7,323,000, against 6,316,000 the same period in 1915.

SHEEP.

Aged sheep finished the week unchanged to 10@15c higher than a week ago while yearlings showed an advance of 15@25c. Native lambs closed at a gain of 60@75c, while rangers were up 50@60c. Receipts for the week showed a fair increase, but cooler, drier weather had a stimulating influence on the demand, all offerings were well taken, and the market closed strong at the week's best level. Lambs topped the week at $11.10 or 45c higher than in the previous week and $1.85 higher than a year ago. Sheep sold up to $8.10 and were $1.60 a hundred pounds higher than a year ago.

AN OLD FURNITURE SECRET

How a Famous Furniture House Cleans and Beautifies Fine Pieces

The old established house of Tobey (Chicago and New York), makers of fine furniture, uses a secret shop formula for cleaning and beautifying the rich finishes of all furniture they make.

This formula is now offered to the world in the form of Tobey Polish. Already it is being used in the finer homes throughout the country. It is more than a furniture polish. It restores the original finish by removing all dirt and blemishes. Cleans off dirt and grease much more easily than soap and water. Wipes off dry. Leaves no oily film or veneer. Does not dry or crack the finest finish, but renews the elasticity of the varnish.

Further advantages are the ease and speed with which it works. Results are instantaneous. No hard work, no hard rubbing. After the furniture and woodwork have been cleaned with Tobey Polish, a little used on the dust cloth will keep everything looking new from day to day. Try it on any article of furniture from a chair to a piano. There is nothing like it for cleaning and preserving the finish of automobile bodies. Gives a beautiful polish that will not collect dust.

Don't wash fine varnished surfaces. Don't use "polishes" that shine today and mar tomorrow. Try Tobey Polish—the same old secret formula used by a famous furniture house. Bottles 25c and 50c; quart jugs, $1.—Advertisement

BADGER MACHINE OVERRUNS MAROONS; SCORE 30-7

FIGHTING PURPLE TEAM RUNS OVER DRAKE, 40-6

CIGRAND BREAKS RIBS.

BY EVAN STONE.

Playing a brand of snappy football that kept Northwestern rooters in a frenzy of joy, Coach Murphy's fighting athletes ran up a score of 40 to 0 against Drake yesterday on Northwestern field.

In the first period the fierce attack of the Iowans kept the Purple on the jump, but for the remainder of the game the gridiron became like a running track for Capt. Driscoll and his back field mates. Before time was called Coach Murphy had the last string of reserves in for exercise, but even under those circumstances the Purple continued to score.

It was a costly victory for the Purple, however, as Cigrand, the Aurora boy who was one of the brightest stars in the Murphy constellation, received a kick which effected the fraction of two ribs. The injury probably will keep him out of practice for several weeks.

Penalties Keep Down Score.

Coach Murphy's star back field fairly scintillated. The visitors were totally unable to stop the Purple backs and had not Murphy's men received so many penalties the score would have been larger. Three touchdowns were not allowed, and several marches goalward were retarded by penalties.

But if Drake could not stop the Purple the latter sometimes found difficulty in stopping Coach Glaze's team. Possessed of a big, powerful line and a set of heavy plunging backs, Drake frequently tore into the Purple for big gains. Drake operated a massed attack of off tackle and guard bucks which Northwestern found it hard to stop during the first quarter. The visitors also executed forward passes for good gains.

Purple Line Holds in Pinches.

The Purple line was less effective than against Chicago, lacking the pep displayed last week, but when Drake threatened to march too far the forwards braced and held the visitors.

In the back field Brightmire, Kohler, Williams, and Underhill caused the spectators the most thrills, but Capt. Driscoll, Ellingwood, and Cigrand were equally effective in a less sensational manner. Mueller and Bradt got into the pastime and gained a share of glory.

Drake showed two whirlwind players in Capt. Smith at left half and Sprong at center. The latter allowed the Irish of his nature to rise too high after a dash for touchdown by Williams. He mixed with Thomas of Northwestern, who had substituted for Babe Smith at center, and both were apprehended by Umpire Schommer and sent from the field. Coach Murphy at once ran onto the field and requested the officials to permit Sprong to continue. Sprong came back crying. From the way he played he seemed to be "mad" about something.

Victors Score at Start.

The Purple scored a few minutes after the kickoff in the first period. After dashes by Driscoll and Brightmire Ellingwood sprinted twenty yards off tackle for the first marker. Drake then made things warm for the Purple and with the ball on the home team's four yard line and a first down the Northwestern stands became uneasy. Drake fumbled on the third down and Ellingwood recovered. After Driscoll's punt out Drake again took the ball into dangerous territory on off-tackle plays and forward passes as the quarter time was called.

Drake scored at the opening of the second half on a forward pass to Hoffmeister but failed at goal. Drake's score was its unuoing for the Purple got "pecky" over it and immediately began to rain touchdowns, totaling 27 points at the call of the period.

Reserve Backs Get Chance.

Coach Murphy sent in a new set of backs in the third quarter. The newcomers immediately attempted to outdo the men who performed in the first half, and would have succeeded but for ill luck. Twice Williams sprinted over forty yards for touchdowns, only to have the play recalled because some Purple player was offside. Cigrand made a forty-five yard dash with the same luck.

The fourth quarter became a seesaw contest, the athletes doing ore wrestling and playing foreign to football than real gridiron work. Just before the close of the game Williams leaped into the air and intercepted a Drake forward pass, then made a brilliant dash through the entire Drake team for the last score.

ILLINOIS ELEVEN DOWNS PURDUE IN HARD CLASH

Macomber Gains All Points of Victors in 14 to 7 Scrap.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—In a hard fought struggle featured by Purdue's efforts to make successful forward passes in the final quarter in a dying effort to tie the score, Illinois defeated the Boilermakers today on Stuart field, 14 to 7.

From a football standpoint there were many glaring faults displayed by both elevens, and each must improve before stronger teams are met. At times both gave miserable exhibitions of tackling, while fumbling was directly responsible for one Illinois touchdown in the third quarter, and a similar blunder by Knop of Illinois resulted in Purdue's touchdown in the same period. The blocking and checking were decidedly poor, and in general the plays were run off slowly.

Purdue Forces Matters at Start.

In the opening period Purdue had the better of the play. The ball was in Illinois territory most of the time because of the good punting of Huffine and Van Aken, who outkicked Capt. Macomber. Purdue tried hard to cross the counting line, but lacked the final punch.

In the second period Illinois braced and finally obtained possession of the oval in midfield. Line plunges and off tackle drives netted fifteen yards. Capt. Macomber then called for a spread play and made a beautiful forward pass to Goelitz, who was downed on Purdue's three yard line. Two line plunges carried the oval over the one foot line, then Macomber made a straight plunge between the center's legs for the first score. He added another point by kicking goal.

At the beginning of the third quarter Knop fumbled and Edwards dropped on the ball for Purdue. From this point the Boilermakers made a successful march to the goal. With Huffine carrying the oval on split interference plays through the line and off the tackles, the big full back finally crossed the line. Buechner kicked goal and the score was tied.

Trick Formation Wins Game.

Macomber then kicked off to Allen, who returned to his thirty-seven yard line. At this point a fumble gave Illinois the ball. Sternaman got around Purdue's left end for a neat run and the ball rested on the locals' fourteen yard line. Straight plunges by Knop and Sternaman failed to gain. Macomber then dropped back in punt formation, but instead of kicking he skirted Purdue's right end for a score. He made the final point of the game by kicking goal. Neither team threatened to score in the fourth period. As a result of its victory Illinois is still in the running for the conference title.

For Illinois Capt. Macomber, who scored all of Illinois' points, and Sternaman played good football, while Huffine and Allen starred for the home team. Capt. Hake of Purdue was forced to leave the game in the fourth quarter. It was reported his collarbone was broken.

Fully 6,000 persons saw the contest. The Illinois delegation numbered 1,500, most of whom came from Urbana, accompanied by the band of 100 pieces. Lineup:

HASKELL LOSES IN TEXAS.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 28.—Texas A. and M. college nosed out a victory over the Haskell Indians of Lawrence, Kas., in the last four minutes of the annual football game here today and won, 13 to 6. Up to the last period the score was a 6 to 6 tie. The Indians could not withstand the farmers' terrific drive to a final touchdown.

NEBRASKA COPS WITH SUBS.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 28.—Playing chiefly with a lineup of substitutes, Nebraska gave a mediocre exhibition of football today, winning from Nebraska Wesleyan, 21 to 0. Only in the last quarter did the Cornhuskers open up with ground gaining plays. Wesleyan offered stiff resistance in the first three periods, and in the second and third held its heavier opponents to even terms.

BURMEISTER HIGH AT SHOOT

Charles Burmeister, with 95 targets of 100, won the Bunte Bros. prize at the Lincoln park traps yesterday. The duck shooting season made the number of contestants less than usual. High scores follow:

Bunte Bros. shoot, 100 targets, 16 yards—C. Burmeister, 95; G. A. Smith, 90; A. S. Peabody, 82; L. O. Smith, 80.

GOPHERS RUN UP 67 TO 0 COUNT AGAINST IOWA

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Minnesota ran over Iowa today, winning, 67 to 0. Sprafka's line smashes for long gains, some hair raising forward passes by Wyman to Baston, and beautiful defensive work by Tackles Hauser and Townley stood out as features.

Baston took one forty-five yard pass out of the air, surrounded by Iowa tacklers. He jumped two feet in the air to spear it. Another forward pass, Kingsley to Flynn, for thirty yards, netted a touchdown after Flynn ran twenty yards to the goal.

Shorty Long, quarter back, made a half dozen long gains, some for forty yards, and returned punts with brilliancy. He ran the team with fine generalship. The Gopher scoring machine failed to stop after substitutes poured in in the last half.

Gain Through Iowa Line.

The Gophers started early with terrific line plunges by Sprafka and Wyman. After a penalty had placed the ball on the Iowa one yard line Sprafka dived through the line for the first touchdown. The second score was made as the result of a thirty-five yard pass from Wyman to Baston.

The Gophers alternated with long forward passes, end runs, and line smashes. Substitutes poured in in the last period, Flynn making the last touchdown by a twenty yard run, after a thirty yard pass from Kingsley.

Hawkeyes Make Two Downs.

The Hawkeyes made first down only twice on plays, one of them a forward pass. Bannick returned one kick fifty yards. Becker, at center, was strong on defense as was Davis at half back. Lineup:

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Today's game hinged on the play in the second half, after Beloit had played with a shade of advantage in the first two periods without either side scoring. Ripon came back with a steam roller in the third and fourth periods, scoring a touchdown in each, and winning, 13 to 0. Two hundred Beloit alumni were here for the annual home coming. Lineup:

Harvard Eleven Upsets Dope By Routing Cornell, 23 to 0

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Harvard defeated Cornell on the gridiron in the stadium across the river from Cambridge today, and 25,000 lovers of football went home in a state of wonder and perplexity.

It was hard to judge when the final whistle blew whether the all around effectiveness, alertness, and outstanding smartness of the Harvard eleven or the shocking laxness, dreary fumbling, and atrocious tackling of the Cornell team was the controlling factor. After analyzing the game as carefully as possible, the conclusion is reached that the result was traceable to a combination of both.

Percy D. Haughton and his players command high credit. The eleven gave the impression of being far advanced for this time of the season. It made for confidence in what can be expected later with greater finish and polish.

Cornell Seems Asleep.

The Cornell eleven emphasized 120 degrees Fahrenheit the impression gained last Tuesday. It was so backward in spite of everything that coaches had done that the play was pitifully weak. It is hard to know whether to praise Harvard for winning or to blame Cornell for losing.

One year ago the men from Ithaca came here and won a victory from the Crimson by a score of 10 to 0. The sentiment this morning appeared to lean strongly to a repetition of that score, and this sentiment was not confined to Cornell supporters.

Close followers of Harvard football fostered this feeling because of an honest uncertainty as to what could be expected in view of the looseness of their preliminary games and the defeat by Tufts. The team took the field with Cornell the favorite at odds of 10 to 9.

Close Struggle Predicted.

Dr. Sharpe alone seemed somewhat pessimistic in the camp of the visitors. He was not fearful of the outcome, but he could not see anything but a close, hard struggle. His awakening, however, was none the less shocking. In a few words, Cornell was not there.

Never perhaps has such tackling been seen by a team of high ranking. It was grabbing and patting. Rarely have ends been so easily boxed and so slow in getting down the field under punts.

On the top of these fatal weaknesses was an apparent dread of handling the ball on punts. Many an extra yard was gained by Harvard for this reason. Then, too, six fumbles cost a full sixty yards, cost the ball four times, and two losses at least led directly to two touchdowns by the Crimson.

Sitting far up on the top of the stadium, one could not help but feel that the ball was greased and that Eddie Casey, too, was greased, so often did he slip past the outstretched arms of Cornell tacklers.

Robinson Begins Scoring.

Robinson, who began at the game at quarter back for the Crimson, started Harvard on the upward trend by drop-kicking a goal from the field when standing on the twenty-five yard line toward the end of the first period.

Casey followed this up with a touchdown on the second play of the second period by running sixteen yards through the heart of the Cornell team, dodging two or three men and slipping past three or four others.

Horween made assurance doubly sure by plunging over for the second touchdown early in the third period, while Sweetzer added the final touch by snapping up the ball on a fumble inside Cornell's ten yard line and stepping across for the third and last touchdown just before the game ended. Goals were kicked from two of the three touchdowns.

Percy D. Haughton has brought the Harvard team a long way in two weeks. The men were wideawake and alert in following the ball, tackled sharply, blocked strongly, and handled the ball cleanly. The ends were fast and sure, even with Harte out of the game early and the forwards charged well. There was some looseness from tackle to tackle at times and a general welding is needed in the line, but all things considered it made a most creditable showing. Lineup:

TWO PLAYERS BADLY HURT AS BROWN BEATS RUTGERS.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 28.—Brown defeated Rutgers, 21 to 3, before 5,000 spectators here this afternoon. Rough work by Rutgers was freely criticized. Weeks, Brown's right end, was taken to the Rhode Island hospital. He has concussion of the brain. Kelley, right half back on the Rutgers team, was taken to the Rhode Island hospital tonight suffering with a fractured right arm sustained early in the game.

INSTANTLY KILLED IN GAME.

Ansley, Neb., Oct. 28.—Wilber Gettys, son of the Rev. W. W. Gettys, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here, was instantly killed in a football game today between the high school teams of Ansley and Arnold. He was thrown heavily during a scrimmage, falling on his head and breaking his neck.

GARY DOWNS M'KILLIPS, 14-0

KNOX BEATS LAKE FOREST IN CLOSING QUARTER, 7-0.

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Knox college beat Lake Forest today, 7 to 0, in the first game of the Little Five conference. It was a grueling contest from start to finish. Not until the last quarter did Knox succeed in putting Hamblin across for a touchdown on an off-tackle play.

During the first part of the game Knox had the ball on its opponent's three yard line three times, but could not put it over, twice being penalized. Lake Forest did not attempt an offensive game, but played a strong defensive game. Its only spectacular feat was a thirty yard run by Woods. Most of the time the ball was in Lake Forest territory. MICHIGAN BEATS SYRACUSE 14-13 IN HARD BATTLE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Two penalties for Syracuse and a series of successful passes from Smith to Dunne and Capt. Maulbetsch were enough to give Michigan a one point victory over the Orangemen in the most exciting battle seen on Ferry field. The score was 14 to 13 and hundreds of fans who gave up hope and left the field early missed an exhibition of luck and last minute recovery that probably will not be duplicated in Michigan football annals in many years.

Syracuse started off the clash by ripping up the Wolverine line at will and with the exception of the time it took Michigan to make its two counters in the last division the Maize and Blue was fighting desperately and hopelessly in its own territory.

Meehan put over a field goal from Michigan's twelve yard mark before five minutes of the game had elapsed and came dangerously near doing it again shortly afterwards.

Michigan in Last Ditch.

In the second period Meehan succeeded in getting over another field goal, this time from the twenty yard line, and with the beginning of play a fumble by Smith in the middle of the field and a forty yard run by the big full back, Rafter, over the goal line brought the visitors' total up to 13 points, where it stayed until the end of the clash.

The crowd of 12,000 disappointed fans then regained hope when Wieman recovered a fumble on his thirty yard line and Zeiger and Dunne went straight to Syracuse's five yard line in five tries. A wail of dismay followed the wild cheering when an attempt to get over the line with a pass went wild and the period ended with Michigan still scoreless.

Wolverines Take a Brace.

The final period looked just as hopeless as the first three until the Wolverines got their passes working. This came toward the middle of the quarter, Smith, Peach, and Capt. Maulbetsch carrying the pigskin forty-five yards to the Syracuse twenty-one yard mark.

At that point a Syracuse penalty for failing to report a substitute moved the oval to the eight yard mark, and Zeiger went over. A forty yard run by Dunne and another penalty for Syracuse was enough to put the ball within striking distance and three minutes before time was called the Wolverines took the victory when Zeiger got the final touchdown and Capt. Maulbetsch added the necessary point.

NOTES OF MAROON GAME

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Stagg didn't use many substitutes, in fact, none at all, in his line, so far as we know.

Enthusiastic Wisconsin undergraduates shot fireworks between the halves.

Capt. Meyers played a beautiful game for the Badgers, and just about cinched an all-western position.

Coach Stagg switched Brelos and Higgins, using the latter to carry the ball on offense, and placing Brelos at end on defense.

Hanisch played a nice game for the Maroons and shared honors with Higgins in the two parades in the third period.

Some money changed hands on the result, but not much. The Chicagoans wanted 2 to 1, and the Badgers were not too willing to give it. The boys from Riverside cleaned up considerable.

Jack Wilce, former Badger and now coach at Ohio State, watched the game and took notes on his alma mater's team, which plays the Buckeyes next Saturday.

Among Badger stars who saw the game were Slam Anderson, the old end, and Joe Fogg, quarter back fifteen years or so ago. Slam is now living in Stoughton and has the darndest overcoat you ever saw.

Coach Withington made numerous substitutions in the second half. One of the fresh athletes was Simpson, who was supposed to be so hopelessly crippled that he couldn't walk. He kicked pretty well for a paralytic.

A young man told us we would have to get out of the vicinity of the Maroon dressing room between halves. We had no intention of eavesdropping, and did not tip off Wisconsin to what Mr. Stagg said. What he said was: "How can you expect to win if you don't use your heads?"

ARMY TOYS WITH VILLA NOVA MEN

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The army buried Villa Nova, 69 to 7, today. Oliphant scored six touchdowns and kicked nine goals for a total of forty-five points. He skirted the ends, smashed through center and hurled the forward pass. McEwan ranged himself alongside Vidal and Oliphant in all their long dashes, taking out tacklers on the way to the goal line. Villa Nova's score was the result of a long pass, McGuckin to McGeehan. McGuckin's two attempts at field goals failed. Lineup:

Lack Punch When Attack Nears Wisconsin Goal; Make One Real Bid.

LONG RUN BY EDLER.

BY RING W. LARDNER.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The University of Indiana football team should be awarded a medal. It is the only football team in the world that has managed to lose to Chicago this year. The University of Indiana football team is in a fair way to spoil a perfect record for Chicago, for if Mr. Stagg's Maroons continue to pastime as they did today, they won't beat any of the teams they still have to meet.

A reporter's duty is to tell the result of a game in the first or second paragraph. So, being in the second paragraph, I am bound to record here and now that Wisconsin won today's football game by a score of 30 to 7. The outcome makes Wisconsin look good, better than Northwestern.

No Feat to Beat Maroons.

As a matter of fact, the game showed that Northwestern didn't accomplish much when it beat Chicago 10 to 0. The Maroons probably were at their worst last Saturday. Today they were a trifle better, but still were licked, and by a wider margin than a week ago.

The team that lost today is the team that gave more early promise than any squad Stagg has had in recent years. It is composed of six or seven varsity veterans and four or five wonderful sophomores—that is, they were touted as wonderful when they were freshmen.

The team that won is a better Wisconsin team than last year, but it is a team that will have to play way over today's form to make things interesting for Minnesota.

Profit by Staggs' Weakness.

For Wisconsin didn't win today so much by its own ability as by the inability of its opponent. Chicago brought along her attack; that much was proven by her showing in the third period, when Wisconsin backers were scared stiff. But Chicago left her brains at home. Chicago was fooled on defense by plays that had been explained to her, and on offense she tossed away at least one touchdown, which, if she had made it, might have changed everything.

The Badgers had a versatile attack, but it was an attack that had been tipped off to the Maroons in advance. The Chicago ends and tackles ought to have stopped three-quarters of the Badger plays, plays that resulted in touchdowns. These included plain end runs from kick formations, straight off tackle plunges, and forward passes.

Prep Plays Work on Chicago.

Tricks that were used in high schools years ago went big for Wisconsin, just as did the old style criss-cross that Northwestern displayed last Saturday. There was an example of this near the end of the second half, when Edler, who doesn't do much kicking and hadn't done any at all up to that time, dropped back as if to punt, and carried the ball fifty-three yards, from his own forty-seven yard line to a score.

Mr. Edler ought to have been stopped. The right wing of the Maroon defense should have spilled him before he got a fair start. But said right wing was boxed out of the play and Wisconsin's dandy band of interferers and blockers saw that nobody in the secondary defense had a chance at him, and that Pershing, who was Chicago's safety man, didn't even get near enough to say "Hello."

Badgers Halt Spurt.

Chicago played great football in the third period, better than anything previously shown this year. One touchdown was scored on a parade straight down the field after the kickoff. Another touchdown seemed a certainty when the Maroons got inside the Wisconsin ten yard line with a first down.

But the Badgers held, not so much because of their ability on defense as the inability of Pershing, or whoever was directing the Maroon attack, to call the right play. A forward pass on the fourth down seemed the logical thing, but a play between tackle and guard was attempted, and the Maroon carrying the ball was thrown before he went past the scrimmage line.

If Chicago had scored this touchdown heaven knows what would have happened. The Maroons would have been but two points behind the Badgers and the renewal of pep might have altered everything. But Chicago didn't score its touchdown, and the rest of the game, especially the last quarter, was all Wisconsin.

Grand Stand Play by Meyers.

The outstanding features of the battle were Edler's 53 yard dash for a touchdown and a forward pass catch by Capt. Meyers late in the second half. The Badger leader almost had to turn a somersault to get the ball. Whatever was necessary was what he did, and it meant a touchdown and snuffed the remaining flicker of Chicago hope.

The heroes of the game, I might add, were Harold Olson, Ray Edler, and Capt. Meyers for Wisconsin and Hanisch and Higgins for the Maroons. Higgins played a peculiar game. He was roped in and boxed out of several plays in the first half, which he should have stopped. In the second half, he played remarkable offensive football in Chicago's two parades, one of which resulted in a touchdown and the other one of which came just short.

Play on Soft Field.

The day was the sort that is so aptly described as being just right for the spectators but too warm for the players. The playing field was soft, owing to lack of turf and superabundance of clay.

The crowd was late in arriving, owing doubtless to the difficulty encountered in getting lunch. Madison's restaurants are probably adequate as a general rule, but on a big football day they are not. Half an hour before game time there were lots of vacant seats. When the pastime started everything was filled up except the bleachers back of the west goal. None of the bleachers fell down, which is another remarkable thing.

Cardinals Win Toss.

Capt. Meyers of Wisconsin won the toss and elected to kick off, as there was no wind to speak of. Agar punted on the first play. The Badgers made a first down and then punted back. Agar immediately kicked again and the Badgers had the ball at midfield. A neat forward pass and plunges by Berg and Olson conveyed the so-called pigskin to the Maroon ten yard line. There the Badgers' attack failed three times in succession and Olson drop kicked a goal.

The rest of the period was a punting duel between Agar and Taylor, in which Agar had the better of the punting but also in which the Badgers did better running back.

Duel of Toes Second Period.

When the second quarter started the ball belonged to Wisconsin on the Maroon twenty yard line. Olson went back to try a drop kick, but his opportunity was spoiled by a bum pass from Center Carpenter, who is an Alpha Delt from Racine. The attempt went as a touchback, and then there was more punting.

The Maroons were encouraged by a pair of five yard penalties for off side and proceeded to make a first down, their first of the game. They were stopped, though, before they got out of their own territory, and Higgins punted into Wisconsin lands.

On the first play Edler took the ball from his own forty-seven yard line clear across the Maroon goal line. There was no deception about the play and Chicago should have stopped it, though hats must be taken off to the Badger interference. Mr. Hancock kicked the goal.

Maroons Fall for Fake.

Graham went in for Schafer and the tremendous pastime proceeded. For a while the ball was in midfield, Chicago punting on first and second downs. Then Wisconsin got away with a dandy forward pass, Taylor to Meyers, that landed the ball on the Maroon fifteen yard mark.

The Badgers tried an end run for a gain of two yards. Then there was a fake end run and line buck, which deceived nobody but the Maroons. Olson went through the middle for thirteen yards and a touchdown, and I could have told Chicago in advance what the play was going to be. But Chicago didn't ask me. Hancock's try at goal hit the cross bar.

The Maroons then made some nice forward passes, but were no farther than midfield when time was called for the half.

Overhears Stagg's Sentiments.

Between halves I went downstairs to get a sandwich and the room I got into was right next to the Maroons' dressing room. I heard Mr. Stagg tell them, and Mr. Higgins in particular, that he could not expect a victory unless somebody did some thinking. Mr. Stagg talked in a high tenor voice and seemed rather disgusted.

He must have got under their skin with some of his remarks, for they certainly played football when they took the field again; that is, they played football for a few minutes. With Higgins and the backs carrying the ball, they marched from their own territory to Wisconsin's one yard line, whence Hanisch drifted over for a touchdown. At least we agreed to call it Hanisch. Higgins or somebody kicked the goal.

Both Lose by Errors.

The Maroons started another parade and got the ball down to Wisconsin's seven yard line, where they lost it on downs because they insisted on trying to bust through the thickest of the Badger defense with four yards to go on the fourth down.

Then the Badgers pulled a boner that should have cost them dear. With no excuse for anything but a punt, they tried a fake play which resulted in a fumble by Olson. Higgins got the ball for Chicago on the Badger five yard line, and another touchdown looked like a cinch, but the Badgers held for downs. That was the Maroons' last hope.

Simpson, the alleged cripple, finally kicked this time, and Pershing was downed on his own 35 yard mark. Chicago immediately fumbled and Simpson punted to the Maroon ten yard mark.

The next two Chicago plays were great for Wisconsin. The first one lost five yards and the next one two, and Agar had to punt from behind his goal line.

Olson Races for Touchdown.

The kick was partially blocked and Harold Olson caught it about twelve yards out and ran for a touchdown. Simpson kicked the goal and Selzer replaced Agar, who had done darn good work.

The last score followed a forward pass from Simpson to Meyers on which the Badger captain showed his basketball training by making a bear of a catch.

After that the Maroons tried forward passes galore in an attempt to count again, but the Badgers had a nasty habit of catching the balls that weren't for them at all. The glorious pastime wound up with the ball in Chicago's possession on the Badger forty yard line.

Won't Guarantee Summaries.

I cannot vouch for the summaries. That is, I have no idea who made the touchdowns and kicked the goals, because Mr. Withington refused to number his players and Mr. Stagg tore the figures off'n the backs of his'n. So none of us common reporters knew what was going on as to individuals, but we agreed to give credit to those whose names you will see in the vital statistics.

We wish Mr. Withington all the success in the world, but we would like him a whole lot better if he would pin numbers on his perfectly good athletes. We presume the reason he doesn't do so is that it was thought of out here before it was thought of in the east, and is therefore a ridiculous system. Lineup:

INDIANA HOLDS TUFTS ELEVEN TO 12-10 SCORE

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Ten thousand people, including more than 3,000 rooters from Indiana university, cheered the Hoosier team wildly today when it held Tufts to a 12 to 10 score after the eastern team had defeated Harvard and held Princeton to a 3 to 0 score. Coach Stiehm's men are the only ones to make a touchdown on Tufts this season, and the result was hailed as a great triumph by the Hoosier rooters, who marched off the field with band playing and banners flying.

The game was regarded as the greatest gridiron battle ever played in Indianapolis. It showed the wonderful improvement made by Indiana since the Chicago game.

No Scoring in First Half.

Indiana nearly scored on Coach Whelan's protégés in the second quarter, when the Hoosiers carried the ball to the one yard line, only to lose it on downs when an attempt was made to penetrate the center. The first half ended 0 to 0, but the honors were all in Indiana's favor because its opponents were on the defensive most of the time.

Tufts' first score was made possible when the Hoosier quarter muffed a returned punt, which the opposing team recovered on the fifteen yard line. Stiehm's men received two penalties for offside play, and with only five yards to go the ball was carried over by Jeffrey.

Erehart Scores Touchdown.

The same player scored again in the fourth period after Tufts had worked off several successful passes. In the last period the visitors tried many passes, one of which was intercepted by Erehart, Indiana's fleet footed left half, who raced thirty yards for a touchdown. Goal was kicked. Later Full Back Hathaway added three more points for Indiana by a field goal from the fifteen yard line.

The easterners went into the game with the odds greatly in their favor, as their eleven has nine veterans, while Indiana has eight sophomores. The Crimson was much lighter but faster. Indiana played without its captain.

NOTRE DAME HAS 60 TO 0 ROMP; WABASH VICTIM

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Notre Dame gave Wabash its worst beating in five years on Cartier field this afternoon, the Little Giants wilting before the mighty attack of Harper's great machine. Playing straight football most of the way, the Hoosiers trampled the visitors under a 60 to 0 score.

The game was replete with brilliant end runs and off tackle smashes, Capt. Cofall, Bergman, J. Miller, Slackford, Fitzpatrick, Malone, and Grant dividing the honors at carrying the ball.

Makes Ninety Yard Run.

Cofall made the greatest run of the day at the start of the second quarter. Bacon kicked over the Notre Dame goal line.

The ball was brought out to the 20 yard line and on the first play Cofall, aided by excellent interference, squirmed his way ninety yards for a touchdown. Grant sprinted a similar distance later in the quarter, but the ball was called back and Notre Dame penalized for offside play.

Harper Uses Second String.

Coach Harper used almost every man on his squad. Shortly before the end of the first half there was not a regular in the lineup. The coach sent back his first team, with the exception of McInerney, at the start of the second half, but replaced the regulars with substitutes in the final quarter.

Wabash did not make first down once during the game. The Hoosier defense was impregnable.

Capt. Caldwell and Thompson starred for Wabash. The entire Notre Dame line played great football. Notre Dame suffered heavily by penalties. Lineup:

SOME CLIMAX TO THIS GAME

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—With the score 0 to 0 and less than two minutes to play, Williams of Eau Claire dropped a field goal from the twenty-five yard line. Then La Crosse, with a minute left, started from its own twelve yard line, gained about thirty yards in three line smashes, and then sent Reget around Eau Claire's right end for a forty-five yard run to a touchdown and goal, winning, 7 to 3. The defeat eliminated the locals from the state high school championship race.

ST. AMBROSE VICTOR, 17-6.

St. Ambrose college of Davenport, Ia., defeated De Paul university, 17 to 6, in a whirlwind game at the north side school's gridiron yesterday. PENN ELEVEN FALLS BEFORE PITTSBURGH IN 20 TO 0 CONTEST

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 28.—Outplaying its opponents in every period except the third, the University of Pittsburgh football team defeated the University of Pennsylvania, 20 to 0. Hastings was individually responsible for most of the points, scoring a touchdown and two field goals. The attendance was nearly 35,000.

Pitt scored first in the opening period when, after working the ball down to Penn's fifteen yard line, Hastings kicked a field goal. The period ended with the ball on the visitors' four yard line, and De Hart carried it over for a touchdown a few minutes after play had been resumed. Hastings kicked goal. Pitt scored again when Hastings booted a field goal from the twenty-two yard line.

Pennsylvania strengthened in the third period, and although most of the playing was done in its territory, Pitt was unable to get near enough to score. Hastings attempted a kick from placement from the nineteen yard line, but the ball struck a goal post and bounded back on the field.

The nearest Penn came to scoring was in the final period. Quigley, who had relieved Berry in the previous period, failed in a try for a field goal from Penn's twenty-five yard line. Pittsburgh scored a touchdown in this period on a forward pass. Morrow, who was on Pennsylvania's eighteen yard line, shot to De Hart, who heaved to Hastings. Goal was kicked by Hastings. Lineup:

AGGIES OF MICHIGAN SCORE 30-0 VICTORY OVER NORTH DAKOTA

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 28.—Special.—By a score of 30 to 0 the Michigan Aggies defeated the North Dakota Aggies today. The two teams were evenly matched in weight, but the Michigan eleven was better on defense. The visitors were unable to puncture the M. A. C. line for substantial gains.

Movald attempted a place kick from the forty-five yard line in the first quarter and the ball hit the cross bar. On straight football North Dakota could not gain consistently, and resorted to the forward pass. Until the last quarter, when M. A. C. was composed mainly of substitutes, Dakota failed to make substantial gains by the aerial route.

Kelley and Movald were the best ground gainers for Dakota, while Freddie Jacks was the individual star for M. A. C. Jacks ran through the Dakota eleven for long gains on several occasions. Lineup:

DRIGGS' SPRINT WINS 7-3 GAME FOR PRINCETON

Sixty Yard Run Beats Dartmouth After Green Team Takes Lead.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Princeton defeated Dartmouth in their thirteenth annual contest today by a score of 7 to 3. With the betting 10 to 6 on Princeton, Tiger followers of the Orange and Black were treated to a score in the first half of the game, when Gerrish kicked a goal from placement from the twenty-eight yard line, making the score 3 to 0 at the end of the half.

Princeton's chance came in the third period, when Driggs intercepted a forward pass from Gerrish to Emery on Princeton's thirty-eight yard line and ran sixty-three yards along the side lines for a touchdown. Tibbott kicked goal, and the score was 7 to 3.

Princeton Reserves Its Tricks.

In the first quarter Princeton tried to conceal any trick plays it might have, and failed to show anything at all. The ball was exchanged by punts, most of the time, with a gain for Nassau. This period ended with the ball in Dartmouth territory and the score 0 to 0.

In the second period Eddy fumbled a punt from Thielscher on his own thirty yard line and the ball was recovered by Trier. Eddy immediately was taken out and Ames went in. This fumble put Princeton on the defensive throughout the period. After an exchange Tibbott attempted a drop kick from the forty-seven yard line, which failed by a few feet.

On forward passes Dartmouth advanced the ball to Princeton's sixteen yard line, then Gerrish made a kick from placement with the ball on the twenty-eight yard line. The half ended just as a forty-five yard forward pass from Driggs to Winn was completed.

Driggs' Sprint Wins Game.

The third period opened with Dartmouth kicking to Tibbott on his eleven yard line, and he advanced twenty-six yards. Driggs kicked to Cannell, who advanced after several forward passes and end runs to Princeton's thirty-eight yard line. On an attempted forward pass, Gerrish to Emery, Eddie Driggs came through, intercepted the bean, and ran the sixty-three yards to a touchdown. Tibbott kicked goal. Later in the same period, with the ball on Dartmouth's twenty yard line, Tibbott attempted a pass to Ames, but threw the ball over the line and the chance for another score was gone.

The last quarter was fiercely fought. Dartmouth tried in vain for the goal that meant the game. Of the twenty-one forward passes tried by Dartmouth thirteen were made in the last seven minutes of play. Princeton seemed satisfied with the score and merely played for time.

Tigers' Ball at Finish.

The game ended with the ball on Dartmouth's forty-seven yard line in possession of the Tigers. Princeton lost sixty yards through penalties while the Green team lost seventy.

YALE GETS REVENGE ON W. AND J. ELEVEN BY 36-14 TRIUMPH

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Yale today avenged itself handsomely for its failure to defeat Washington and Jefferson in any of its three last annual gridiron meetings by humbling the Pennsylvania eleven, 36 to 14, in a game featured by brilliant Yale line hammering and end running and by persistent although frequently incomplete passing by the visitors.

The visiting rush line was unable to stem the tide. Five times the Yale backs ground over the Washington and Jefferson goal line, and once Harry Legore, Yale's most brilliant backfield performer, booted a field goal. Three times Charley Comerford kicked goal following touchdowns.

Twice Lloyd McCreight, the all around Washington and Jefferson star, went across the Yale goal line. He registered the first touchdown against the Elis under the coaching régime of Tad Jones. The W. and J. backs were unable to gain consistently. During the entire game they did not register a first down by rushing. The forward pass was played by the visitors as their trump card and twice a brilliant series of passes netted consistent gains.

Both W. and J. scores were earned by the cleanest kind of clever forward passing. The visitors escaped scoring another time by only two scant yards when Nuss, after receiving one of McCreight's brilliant passes, was run out of bounds at the very portal of the Yale goal line and was injured so badly he was carried from the field. CAL SIGNS TO MANAGE PIRATES AGAIN NEXT YEAR.

Reports that James J. Callahan was to be deposed as manager of the Pittsburgh team after a one year trial were set at rest yesterday by Callahan himself, who disclosed the fact he had signed a contract to manage the Pirates another season. In re-signing the former White Sox pilot, President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club said he realized Callahan did not have "the makin's" of a championship team when he started the last season, but believed the changes made during the year gave the manager a promising lot of material with which to build up a winning team during 1917.

C. F. THOMPSON HEADS WESTERN GOLFERS' TICKET

Chicagoan Believes National Association Is Too Narrow in Scope.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Charles F. Thompson, president of the Western Golf association in 1909, has been placed at the head of the regular ticket which will be voted on in January. Mr. Thompson, who for several years was president of the Flossmoor Country club, is known as a progressive who believes the United States Golf association, as at present constituted, is not sufficiently national in its scope. Other men on the regular ticket are known to possess similar views.

In view of the proposition by President Frank Woodward of the U. S. G. A. to have the sectional and state associations made subservient to the national body it is certain the proposed new officials of the Western Golf association, who are practically sure of election, will oppose such a move.

Westerners Oppose Minority Rule.

Clubs in the Western Golf association are on an equality as regards voting powers and a majority of western golfers are opposed to a minority rule such as exists in the national body.

President George R. Balch of Cincinnati, who has held office in the W. G. A. for two years, declined renomination and so was not considered by the nominating committee, consisting of W. W. Harless of Chicago, J. S. Hall of Indianapolis, Hamilton Vose of Milwaukee, A. W. Warren of St. Joseph, Mo., and D. S. Henderson of Chattanooga.

Ticket Picked by Committee.

The ticket named by the nominating committee is as follows:

For president, Charles F. Thompson, Flossmoor Country club, Chicago.

For vice president, Trustin B. Boyd, Bellerive Country club, St. Louis.

For secretary, Charles M. Smalley, Olympia Fields Country club, Chicago.

For treasurer, Guy F. Gregg, Blue Mound Country club, Milwaukee.

For directors: H. F. Smith, Nashville Golf and Country club; Arthur B. Caldwell, Country club of Detroit; S. P. Jermain, Inverness club, Toledo; S. G. Strickland, Westmoreland Country club, Chicago; Charles W. German, Blue Hills Country club, Kansas City.

For nominating committee: Albert R. Gates, chairman, South Shore Country club; Arthur J. Hood, Detroit Golf club; R. H. Baugh, Country Club of Birmingham, Ala.; Sidney A. Foster, Des Moines Golf and Country club; J. D. Lowman, Seattle Golf club.

NO RIVAL RACE MEETINGS

New Orleans, La., Oct. 28.—Prospects of rival racing meets in New Orleans this winter vanished today, when the Business Men's Racing association purchased the City Park track from H. D. Brown for $400,000. The Business Men's association agreed to race only between Jan. 1 and Mardi Gras day, and Mr. Brown agreed not to operate a track in New Orleans or neighboring parishes during the next eight years.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

By A. R. Metcalfe

Defensive play of the first order is rare, and the fight for the deciding trick which is illustrated in the deal which follows introduces an entirely new play. The hands:

North:
S.—7, 4.
H.—K, J, 10, 6, 2.
C.—10, 8.
D.—A, 9, 4, 2.

West:
S.—A, J, 9, 8, 2.
H.—7.
C.—7, 5, 4, 2.
D.—Q, 7, 5.

East:
S.—K, 10, 6, 3.
H.—Q, 5.
C.—A, J, 9.
D.—K, J, 10, 3.

South:
S.—Q, 5.
H.—A, 9, 8, 4, 3.
C.—K, Q, 6, 3.
D.—6, 8.

Score: 0-0, rubber game. North dealt. The bidding:

	1st round.	2d round.	3d round
North	1 heart	4 hearts	double
East	double	4 spades	pass
South	3 hearts	pass	pass
West	3 spades	pass	pass

North had the opening lead.

THE PLAY.

1	H 10	H Q	H A	H 7
2	H 2	H 5	H 3	2 S
3	4 S	K S	5 S	J S
4	7 S	3 S	Q S	A S
5	D 2	D 10	D 6	D 5
6	D A	D 3	D 8	D Q
7	D 4	D J	H 8	D 7
8	D 9	D K	H 4	2 C
9	10 C	9 C	3 C	4 C
10	8 C	J C	Q C	5 C
11	H 6	A C	6 C	7 C
12	H J	10 S	H 9	8 S
13	H K	6 S	K C	9 S

West secured but nine tricks and lost 100 points.

The final rubber was being played and every player was working hard. The play of west was perfect throughout the deal. He realized that it was necessary to capture the queen of spades and lose but one trick in clubs. He accomplished his first object, although north had shrewdly doubled in the hope that west would place some trump strength with north and finesse toward south.

After drawing the trumps, west managed to get two rounds of diamonds, so that south had no card of exit in that suit, and the game would have been won had north, at trick 7, led through the club suit in dummy, as most players would have done.

Had west known exactly how the club suit was distributed he might have won by throwing the lead to his own hand with a trump, leading the club and finessing the nine. The lead of the nine of clubs, however, would have won in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, but failed in this instance because of the beautiful play of south in refusing to win the trick, although holding both the king and queen of clubs.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—Was told today that a new rule in auction bridge forces a dealer to bid whether his hand is worth a bid or not. Is this correct? Have you issued a book on auction bridge later than that of November, 1915, and, if so, where can same be purchased? J. J.

Ans.—There is no rule such as you mention. "Real Auction Bridge" is the latest book.

FULTZ ISSUES NEW DEMANDS UPON "COMISH"

Johnson and Herrmann, Two-thirds of O. B. Board, Take Up Requests of "Frat."

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Consideration of a new set of demands made on organized baseball by President Fultz of the Players' fraternity was the occasion of the sudden conference between Ban Johnson and Garry Herrmann, two-thirds of the national commission, in Chicago last week.

This fact was disclosed yesterday by a dispatch from New York, the meat of which follows:

David L. Fultz, president of the Players' fraternity, announced that the fraternity had made certain requests for favors in legislation of both the national commission and the national board of the minor leagues. These requests are now before those bodies for action, but he said he was not informed as to what progress had been made.

What the nature of the requests was President Fultz said he preferred not to state at this time, but he thought they might be made public soon.

Ban and Garry Mum.

When confronted with this statement by Fultz, Messrs. Johnson and Herrmann admitted the national commission had received a set of requests from the players' union, but declined to be any more specific than President Fultz about the nature of the requests. The nearest to any definite information that could be obtained from the two commissioners was that the requests were "foolish."

From individual ballplayers during the season the writer learned the players' union was preparing to demand some sort of legislation whereby the salaries of players under war time contracts could not be reduced at the expiration of said contracts. This action by the players was in anticipation of united action by the club owners to reduce salaries to somewhere near the scale paid before the Federal league war.

Finds Out Players' Stand.

President Fultz called meetings of the major league teams during their visits to New York last August with a view to ascertaining the attitude of the members of the fraternity along these lines. Another demand talked of at that time was a modification of the player's contract so as to give the club owner and manager less authority over his actions off the diamond.

Whether or not Messrs. Johnson and Herrmann reached any agreement as to the position to be taken by the national commission regarding these demands could not be ascertained from them and their conference was concluded yesterday morning. President Johnson motored to South Bend in the afternoon to join President Comiskey of the White Sox, who went to the Indiana town to visit a niece and nephew who are Notre Dame students. Chairman Herrmann of the commission expected to return to Cincinnati last night.

How do your cigarettes treat you AFTER you smoke them?

(This is a test that few cigarettes can stand up under)

Many other good cigarettes besides Fatimas taste mighty good—WHILE you are smoking them. Fatimas are not the only good ones. Although Fatimas taste so good that they continue to outsell every other high-grade cigarette.

But Fatimas are a blend of such pure tobaccos that they deliver something more than good taste. They will give you cigarette comfort—comfort while you are smoking them and comfort AFTER you smoke them.

While you are smoking them, they will feel cool and comfortable to the throat and tongue.

And AFTER you smoke them—even though you may smoke more than usual—they will leave you feeling keen and fit with none of that "mean" feeling of having smoked too much.

All this is the reason why Fatimas are called a SENSIBLE cigarette.

Yes—some day you will try Fatimas. Why not do it today?

HYDE PARK NEAR TITLE; BEATS HARRISON 20-7

ENGLEWOOD COPS, 96-0

BY OTTO A. ENGEL.

Hyde Park shrapneled its way through the Harrison Tech team yesterday on the loser's field, 20 to 7, and practically cleared the way to the southern heavyweight sectional championship of the Chicago High School Football league. For about three minutes Hyde Park was given a terrible scare when Besta broke loose for a thirty yard run which brought the ball to the three yard line. On the next play he went over for a touchdown, and Drije kicked goal.

Harrison spent its efforts with this outburst and thereafter was comparatively complacent. Near the close of the period the visitors worked the ball down the field by means of small but consistent gains and Ludwig went over for a marker. McGrath booted the goal, which closed the session, 7 to 7.

THE DIARY OF A SIREN

OCT. 24.

DIARY we are going to find a new home, as I have made up my mind that I cannot stand it any longer living with my brother and his wife. Harry is all right and he and I have always been very fond of each other, but, as for Ruth, she is so terribly jealous of me and the things I have to wear and my appearance and everything that she acts very spiteful and makes things as unpleasant as she can.

It was last evening, while Harry was at a lodge meeting, that I came to my decision. He went out right after supper and Ruth was in the kitchen doing the dishes as usual. I was trying to pick up a few cords on my ukelele when she came in and asked would I help her with the dishes.

"What do you think I am, a servant?" I said. "I guess I pay my board here and do not have to earn it by being your hired girl."

"Yes," she said, "you pay $3 per week and you are about $300 worth of trouble."

"You had better not talk like that when Harry can hear you," was my reply.

"I am not afraid of Harry," was her reply, "and, besides that, he and I were talking it over last night and both said we would get along better if we lived alone without a boarder even if you are his sister."

"I bet Harry never said any such a thing," I said.

"Wait till he comes home and ask him," was her reply. "We were both tickled to death when we thought you were going to get married and have a home of your own, but you made a fool of yourself and threw that chance away and now it loo. like you would be on our hands forever if we did not speak our mind and tell you we cannot accommodate you any longer."

"I am too much o. a lady to quarrel with a person like you," was my reply. "You may be sure that I would not stay here a minute only I know my brother wants me to."

"Well, he don't want you to," she said "and you can get ready to go by the end of this week."

"I will get ready to go when I feel like it," was my reply.

I sat up till Harry came home and then repeated the conversation between Ruth and I.

"I knew she was lying when she said you wanted me to go," I said.

"No, she wasn't," said Harry. "I think it would be better for you and us both if you found some other place to board. You can easy find one on a week's notice."

"I know what the matter is, Harry," I said. "Your dear wife has been poisoning your mind with lies about me."

"We will not argue about it," was his reply, "but you better look up another boarding house."

So I made up my mind that I would not live in the same house with Ruth another week if possible and tomorrow I am going to try and find a congenial place where there is no women not blessed with good looks to be jealous of me and spiteful, and I will not stand for a place where there are any young unmarried men, as I am through with the opposite sex for life except when I meet them in a business way.

OCT. 26.

I am leaving my brother's apartment tomorrow. I hate to leave on his account, for I know it must be terribly dull for him to live alone in the house with a woman like Ruth, but I think it best for me to move away from the surroundings where I have had so many sad experiences.

My new home is an exclusive boarding house on Indiana between 34th. and 35th. St. I am to pay $7 per week, which includes breakfast and supper and lodging. I was determined at first to not go anywhere where there was young unmarried men, but this place looked so attractive and is so exclusive that I swallowed my scruples in spite of the fact that there is only one other girl and four young men staying there besides one young married couple. Mrs. Grant, who runs it, says that if I choose I will not have to have anything to do with the other boarders, but can be alone by myself as much as I like. That is all I ask is privacy and to be alone every evening and read to myself, as I am through with society and its heartaches forever.

While Mrs. Grant and I were talking [illegible] a young man [illegible] through [illegible] said good morning to Mrs. Grant. She told me he was one of the boarders named Mr. Cooley. He was awfully good looking and gentlemanly looking and a man I might of liked to know before all this bitterness against his sex entered my heart. It is too late now and I will let Mr. Cooley see from the first that I do not desire more than a mere speaking acquaintance with him, though he looked at me like he was more than interested.

FINN RETAINS 10 MILE HONORS

New York, Oct. 28.—Hannes Kolehmainen, who a few days ago decided to run no longer for the Irish-American Athletic club of this city, today won the National A. A. U. ten mile championship race from a field of eighteen starters. He ran unattached, cleverly defending his title, although pushed in a close finish. His time was 52:5. 4-5, forty-two seconds faster than he made a year ago, when he won this event.

Another Finn, Willie Kyronen of the Millrose A. C. of New York, was second, ten yards behind the winner. James Henigan, Dorchester club, Malden, Mass., finished third, fifteen yards away, after leading the field up to the final lap.

Richard F. Remer, New York A. C., won the National A. A. U. championship seven mile walk in 53:39 3-5, said to be the fastest time ever made by an American amateur. George H. Goulding, Toronto, Canada, who won last year in 50:40 4-5, did not defend his title. William Plant finished second and W. J. McFadden, New York A. C., was third.

AITKEN SETS RECORD IN WINNING 100 MILE AUTO RACE AT GOTHAM

New York, Oct. 28.—Johnny Aitken of Indianapolis added to his laurels as an automobile speed king by winning the gold trophy race of 100 miles on the Sheepshead Bay track today.

His time for the distance was 56:37.65, establishing a new American record, and is only seven seconds behind the world's best time. Aitken's average speed was 105.86 miles an hour.

Frank Galvin finished second in 56:45.31, and Howard Wilcox was third in 57:10.53.

Aitken Stops Only Once.

Aitken made only one stop, when he went to the pit to change a tire, delaying him about thirty seconds. He led at ten and twenty miles. Dario Resta then took the lead, holding it to the fifty-eighth mile. Resta then went to the pit and changed a wheel tire in twenty seconds, but when he reached the back stretch on his sixtieth mile he was forced to retire when a broken crank shaft disabled his car.

Galvin drove a careful race all the way and was leading at eighty miles, but from the ninetieth mile to the finish Aitken outpaced him. Wilcox went to the pit in his forty-sixth mile to renew a tire. He had been in third place for the first forty miles and regained the position at seventy miles and retained it to the end.

Henderson was fourth, Devore fifth, Benedict sixth, and Hughes seventh.

Prize Money for Leaders.

The cash prizes for the first six drivers were $4,000, $2,500, $1,500, $1,000, $600, and $400. In addition lap prizes amounting to $3,000 were awarded to the leaders from the tenth to the ninetieth miles.

After the main event eleven cars started in a consolation race at fifty miles, which was won by Jules Devigne, the French driver. Milton was second and Meyer third. The winner's time was 28:40.50, an average of 104 miles an hour. The cash prizes for this race were $1,000, $600, and $400.

JOHN W. SCHORR'S SON IS TIED AND ROBBED OF $3,500.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—With drawn revolvers and threatening to kill him if he made a move, two robbers entered the room of Eddie Delling, adopted son of John W. Schorr, wealthy Memphis turfman, in the Gibson house tonight and, after robbing him of $585 in cash and diamonds valued at $3,000, bound him to a bed with a torn sheet so tightly that the blood gushed from his mouth. The robbers escaped.

In the room at the time of the hold-up was Frank Munse, a bellboy of the hotel, who had been summoned to perform some minor service for Delling, and he met the same fate.

Delling had just returned from the Latonia track and it is his belief as well as that of J. W. Schorr, that the robbers thought he was carrying the bank roll of the Memphis turfman which he usually does. This sometimes amounts to as high as $20,000, but luckily he had placed it in the safe in the hotel before he went to his room.

BIG SCORE FOR GEORGETOWN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—Georgetown defeated Albright college, 80 to 0, today. The team that won from Dartmouth last week romped with the western Pennsylvania eleven. Jimmie Gilroy kicked one field goal and scored eight of the eleven touchdowns.

Kid Thomas Outslugs Azvedo.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Charley [Kid] Thomas in his bout with Joe Azvedo at the National A. C. tonight got off to a good start and at the end of the six slugging rounds was awarded the popular decision. Both men threw science to the winds and fought like teamsters.

LOYOLA BLANKS KEEWATIN, 20-0, AFTER A SCARE

BY PREP.

Loyola advanced another step in its battle for the central west prep championship by downing Keewatin academy of Waukesha, Wis., 20 to 0, before a crowd of 4,000 on the Loyola gridiron. Versatile football was responsible for the locals' victory. The opening touchdown came after a perfect forward pass; the second the result of a fumble, while the third was manufactured from a mixture of old and new football.

Keewatin Strong at Start.

Keewatin presented its strongest front at the start of the opening period, when the visitors came near getting the jump. They started a march down the field and were halted after proceeding forty yards on the five yard line, where Loyola's defense stiffened. Thereafter they were outclassed and never threatened seriously.

Loyola's first touchdown came in the second period, when Loftus shot a forward pass to Martin, standing behind the goal line. Loftus dodged three tacklers and Martin in turn also evaded three men. The second score came in the third period, when Soloway picked up a Keewatin fumble and raced sixty yards for the goal posts.

Loyola's Attack Varied.

The final marker was made in the third quarter after a march of sixty yards goalwards, featured by end runs, off tackle plays, and one forward pass, Loftus to Martin, good for thirty yards. Hardy went over from the five yard mark, shooting through tackle. Lineup:

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Oak Park kept pace with Evanston High school by taking its third game in the Suburban Prep league, defeating New Trier, 14 to 0, at Kenilworth. Previous to the contest the losers shared first place with the other leaders, each having two victories.

After two scoreless periods Oak Park opened up in the third quarter and by means of a fifteen yard forward pass, Bell to Wilcoxen, made its first touchdown. Wilcoxen also made the second score in the final quarter when he intercepted a forward pass and raced fifty yards for six points.

Phelps Makes Long Run.

Bell and Phelps of the lightweight team joined the major eleven and played brilliant ball. Phelps showed championship form by getting off for a fifty yard run at the start. Later he made one for fifteen yards. Lineup:

FUMBLES HELP DENVER COP.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 28.—Two costly fumbles and an offside play aided Denver university in defeating Creighton university, 19 to 13. Platz intercepted a Denver pass and ran fifty yards for a touchdown, but was called back for offside play by Payne, a Creighton guard. This play and two fumbles aided Denver's victory. Denver's backs, especially Anderson, played good games. Platz and Flannigan were the most consistent ground gainers for the local eleven.

NEW PROMOTER TO STAGE NEXT BIG RING BOUT

Sherman Lines Up Dillon and Gibbons Despite Many Obstacles.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

Now that a match between Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis light heavyweight star, and Mike Gibbons of St. Paul, generally acknowledged as champion of the middleweights, has been clinched for St. Paul for Nov. 10, there are a number of details concerning the matchmaking which, when put into print, will prove of interest to the fans who follow closely the game of fisticuffs. In explaining how it happened that this pair of classy millers were lined up for a contest there is shown once more what new blood means to the sport of pugilism as well as to any other game.

In this case the new blood is Harry Sherman of St. Paul. Sherman has only been in the promotional end of boxing for a short time, but he seems to have the right idea about matching scrappers, which is indicated by his success in signing Dillon and Gibbons. The question often had been asked: "Why doesn't some promoter get Dillon and Gibbons together?" It was not satisfactorily answered until Sherman busted into the game and accomplished the trick, so, naturally, Harry is carrying a big feather in his cap.

Promoters Fear Cost of Match.

For more than a year enterprising boxing promoters in various sections of the country have been looking at a Dillon-Gibbons match with longing eyes. But most of them believed that in order to get the signature of this pair they would have to offer the equivalent of the United States mint, and so they didn't even make a move towards bringing them together.

Then Sherman started something. He was willing to take a chance on winning or losing a little jack by offering big money to the millers. But Sherman didn't make up his mind that he wanted to stage the bout until he accidentally ran into Gibbons in the street in St. Paul one afternoon.

"How'd you like to box Jack Dillon?" asked Sherman. "I'll give you two fellows pretty good money to go ten rounds right here in St. Paul. If we can get Dillon to agree to make the weight 160 pounds for the contest, I am sure he can get down to that figure without weakening himself."

Gibbons Says "Go Ahead."

"All right, go ahead and get him, and I'll lick him for you," replied the St. Paul Phantom. "If he'll scrap me at 160 pounds you won't need to worry, and if he will accept the terms you offer him you won't need to worry about my end."

With this start Sherman got busy and came to Chicago, where he had arranged a conference by wire with a representative of Dillon, this being none other than Tommy Walsh. The promoter informed Walsh he would guarantee the Hoosier scrapper $7,500 for his end, which was perfectly satisfactory, but when it came to agreeing on the weight the first real trouble cropped up. Dillon's representative would not stand for the notch of 160 pounds asked by the Gibbons party, and finally a session of wrangling resulted in a decision to make the figure 161½ pounds. One of the funny things about the negotiations at this time, too, was the fact that there was more argument over the half pound than there was over the first pound conceded by the Phantom. But with the wrangling over and the agreement on the weight reached, everything looked rosy and everybody concerned seemed satisfied.

Then Jack Dillon Balks.

The next move by Sherman was a trip to New York for a final talk with Dillon. When he reached Gotham and hooked up with the Hoosier battler the promoter found out that all the trouble he had gone to in Chicago wasn't worth anything, for Dillon repudiated the agreement made by his representative here, and averred if there was to be a match with the St. Paul phantom it would not be at 160 pounds, or even 161½ pounds.

"You fellows will have to raise that weight a bit or I don't meet Gibbons," is the way Dillon greeted Sherman, according to reports from Gotham.

That certainly made the sledding awful tough for the promoter, for he had to engage in another conference with Dillon and his manager, Sam Murbarger, to find out just what were the lowest weight terms the Hoosier would agree to. When he found that out he had to wire Gibbons and plead with him to accept the demands made by the light heavyweight.

Holds Out for 163 Pounds.

Dillon didn't waste many words in informing the promoter that he wouldn't think of mixing with Mike at a poundage lower than 163. That was a raise of one pound and a half over the terms set at Chicago, but the Phantom is willing to take the chance, which he will have to take by conceding a lot of weight.

In allowing Dillon to come in at 163 pounds the Phantom will be conceding anywhere from five to twelve pounds, which would be some handicap.

PLANK ASKS FOR TRANSFER

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 28.—Eddie Plank, veteran pitcher of the Philadelphia Americans, and now a member of the St. Louis Americans, has asked Manager Jones to be transferred to some eastern team. Plank's reason for wanting to be sent east is believed to be because of his desire to be in closer touch with his business interests in Gettysburg, Pa.

THE VIGIL · · · REPRODUCTION OF A PAINTING BY John Pettie

"The Vigil," by John Pettie, R. A., In the Tate gallery, London. (1839-1893.)

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT

A NEWLY created knight is passing the night watches in solemn vigil before the altar of the church. At daybreak, according to the process of the inauguration of a knight of high estate, he will confess to a priest, hear matins, and communicate in the mass. Then the older knights will dress him in distinctive garments and they will ride away to the hall where he is to receive his final orders of knighthood. The ceremony will end with the knight being struck by a sword and the creator saying impressively, "Be thou a good knight." And then, to the accompaniment of soft music, the new knight will lay his hand on the altar and promise to defend the church and to support it.

From the rapt devotion on the man's face it would seem that he must belong to the golden age of chivalry, that period in which it lived up to its ideal in spirit and in action, and when, not yet grown old nor decadent, it infused in each new knight something of its divine spark of heroism. Most historians place this golden age as early as the thirteenth century, and it was then that it "taught the world the duty of noble service willingly rendered." It upheld courage and obedience to rule; it consecrated military prowess to the service of the church; it glorified the virtues of liberality, good faith, unselfishness, and courtesy to women. If modern civilization endeavors to remove the social barriers which chivalry so rigorously upheld, chivalry in its turn exercised a great and tremendous influence in raising the medieval world from barbarism to civilization. And if it stayed in the world too long it did not, for the benefit and advancement of mankind, come any too early.

The painting is done in subdued, impressive tones and its only lighting is from above and seems to bathe the kneeling figure in a brightly suffused radiance. There is about the canvas a mystic spirituality which is not of this age nor clime. The soul of the man is in his eyes and with the passing hours he is dedicating it to the cause of knighthood.

The picture was first exhibited at the Royal academy in 1884 and was later purchased by the Royal Chantrey trustees for $5,000. From the beginning of his career Pettie adored the romantic. The first picture he painted was when he was only 19. He called it "The Prison Pet," and it showed a prisoner sharing his dinner with a rat. The picture was accepted by the Royal Scottish academy and hung on its walls.

In 1860 Pettie went to London and there took active and successful part in the renaissance of book illustration, which was the art feature of the '60s. He always painted with strength and speed, this latter quality due in part to the fact that in his early life he did much illustration. He was only 35 when he succeeded Landseer, the British animal painter, as Royal academician.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

THE WOMAN IN THE ROOM

by ZONA GALE

There Never Had Been a Woman in His Lonely Life, So He Made of His Life a Kind of Game, and the Whole Game Was to Get for Himself a Sense of Companionship of "The Woman in the Room." Then the Pretense Became a Reality.

BARING went up the first flight of stairs—the flight with the Brussels runner—and past Mrs. Wheeler's door with its streaming transom light; and up the second flight—the one with the matting; and the third flight, of bare, brutal boards. And there was his own door waiting for him with its eternal, mocking air of: Really, am I the best you can do for yourself?

He unlocked the door with a jab of the key as if he would make that door say something else, if it was only a lonely welcoming to a place where he did not wish to be. The key was not even a latch key—it was a door key, big, and long, and bent—a dreary implement to an amateur domesticity, an implement which it somehow inexpressibly mortified Baring to chance on among his pocket stuff. As, night after night, it mortified him to go in that lonely room of his.

Therefore, as he entered, he instantly wrapped himself in his groping, indeterminate sense of the woman. There was no woman; there never had been a woman who really counted; but life pricked and hurt Baring all over and he slipped away from it into a kind of game which was half pretense, half plan; and he played the game every time he came home. It went somewhat like this:

She did not hear his key. Sometimes he actually inserted it softly so that he might surprise her. She was at work in the next room—though, save in the game, there was no next room but that of another lodger; and she came to the doorway, by some chance of her task, and saw that he had come home. And then she cried some glad, surprised word and ran to him—and ran to him—Baring always rather prolonged that moment. There was something so—prolongable about her hurrying toward him.

Then they sat by the fire, which in reality meant that Baring turned on the heat and absently spatted his hands on the top of the radiator. And they talked. O, about things which had happened that day in his absence. He never bothered her with business—anyway, he liked to keep his affairs to himself; but she told hers: A man had been there washing windows; she had been shopping in a taxi and he was to like her hat when it came home because it suited his general taste and her special face and did not suit the hideous style; and there was in the new magazine a wonderful article about the stars—or the elements—or immortality; and he never could guess what she had made—made!—for dessert.

On that he slipped to the mere restful sense of himself and this not impossible but far, far woman sitting at table together—a table round and small and blurry white, with dainty dishes. She was chief in consciousness, talking, silent, smiling, pretty—Baring even was banal enough to entertain the usual anticipatory figment of some one in blue, with abundant hair. And always, as he dreamed it, there was that encompassing sense of her being there, a distinct quality of thereness, which was like the emotion of being alive. And the whole game was to get for himself this sense of companionship, to feel himself somehow fellowed by her presence, the presence of the woman in the room. Baring, you see, was horribly lonely, and by other means as well, life hurt him and pursued him instead of letting him be the exultant pursuer of life.

The shutting of a door brought him back. He knew the door—it had helped him before in his dreary play. It was Miss Beacon's door. And sometimes when he had heard the scratch of her match or the creak of her window pulleys, he pretended that he had got home first and that now she had come in and was moving about the room; and sometimes when he had found the stairway air faintly sweet with orris, he said to himself that she had come home before him. Then it was as if a wick had been turned up somewhere and more of something pleasant, like light, had escaped.

Baring suddenly closed his eyes and made his shoulders high.

"Great heavens!" he said, "I want the stars, and the elements, and immortality, and the dessert she made—made!"

He was messing about the papers on his table when some one knocked at his door. This, he thought that he knew, would be one Gilliland, come to talk over with him the inundating possibility that Miss Emily Earl might be in love with him. Even as he was with Miss Emily Earl.

But when Baring opened the door he saw a white muslin apron, which was to him incredibly cloudy and satisfactory and remote from Gilliland. The maid, palpitating a bit from stair climbing, was the bearer of a note, from that Mrs. Wheeler of the lower story of Brussels carpeted stairs and over-transom light.

"Will you come down and dine with a little old lady if she owns up that you are a makeshift?" the note said. "I mean that I was to have had two guests, to come an hour ago, and we were going afterward to the opera. But they haven't come and they haven't come, and the roast is such a big, hot, brown gravy roast. I have caught Miss Beacon on her way up, and she and her mother will be here. Could you join us—nearly right away?"

Baring scrawled a word of acceptance, dressed, left a direction to Gilliland to pick him up at Mrs. Wheeler's, and ran downstairs "nearly right away." Even if he had not heard Miss Beacon's door shut and if the letters under her door had not been missing now, Baring would have known that she had passed through the hall, because of that sweet, uncertain fragrance.

"It smells like orris, or iris, or Osiris," he said to himself, "and violets on a thousand hills. And some day I shall miss it."

He entered Miss Wheeler's sitting room with the pleasure which he always felt in meeting the little, unconventional, mothering creature. But though, between curtains, stood the waiting table with its yellow dome, and a fire of real hearth wood quickened the air, Mrs. Wheeler was not there at all. And the white muslin apron which had admitted him was handing him another note as if it had not left off handing him the first one.

"To Whoever Arrives First," the note was addressed. And "My poor friends," it said, "had been somehow stalled on the marshes and they've wired me from Jersey City to meet them at the Metropolitan lobby. What else to do? I dare say they are there even now. I must go, and you three must lay a cover for my sigh and forgive me and dine without me. That roast is—or was—host enough. Dinner is served!"

It was disappointing, partly as Mrs. Wheeler was always in the most unique difficulties, and told about them delightfully. But she had left as host not only the roast but the open fire, and Baring sat before the hearth and, as one who understands open fires, he sank miles and miles in its light and warmth and friendly advancings.

He said to himself that it would be pleasant, this dining with Miss Beacon and her mother. For two years he had passed Miss Beacon on the stair, mechanically noted her presences and absences, vaguely become used to her being there. He was always indefinitely glad when he heard her come in, half aggrieved if she was several days away, in that inevitable and pathetic and half unrecognized relation of all fellow lodgers.

Then there were those weeks of an illness of his, when she and her mother had brought in jelly and bouillon and had read to him.

He rose at the touch of the bell and stood before the fire as Anne Beacon came in. Something in her hair was sparkling, and this indeterminately pleased Baring. So did this meeting with her in a domain of evening and leisure and a pretty gown, rather than in one of bare stairs and thick boots and haste. So did her momentary shyness please him. And she was alone.

"Miss Beacon," he said, "do I impress you as any kind of host?"

"You . . ." said Anne Beacon only; and Baring wondered vaguely whether that meant very much yes or only a little no.

He gave her Mrs. Wheeler's note and watched her while she read it. He was glad that she did not look up, startled, with an exclamation and parted lips and lifted brows. He disliked women who prettily go off like that merely because a situation suggests it. The soft glowing of her face Baring laid to the firelight as she gave him back the note and looked down at the red log.

"I accepted for my mother," she said, "and when I got upstairs I found that she had been called over to New Jersey."

Baring, murmuring something, still watched her. He had sometimes said to Gilliland that the way in which a woman receives an inescapable unconventional moment is that woman. Anne, through a barely perceptible interval, was still looking at the red log when the white muslin apron announced dinner—in the well trained tone of a short, straight line.

"Shall we go in?" Baring asked quietly.

"I think we may as well," said Anne Beacon.

She was quite perfect, Baring thought; and yet as they sat at table—a table round and small and a thing of white and of dainty dishes—Baring was conscious of a definite feeling of homesickness. Homesickness, so to say, that she was not some one else. Baring had no idea whom he wanted her to be. He only knew that he wanted the woman, the one with whom he ought to be sitting in earnest, the one whose presence was an outline in his consciousness, and never, never had been properly filled in. And for him the moment had suddenly the tragic significance of all moments which seem right and fair and potential, save only that the one who shares them is simply—not the one.

He did not deliberately plan to pretend. Somehow the pretending began itself. He found himself slipping easily into a make believe that this moment, which men without number were having in earnest, was his at it was theirs; that this was not a dinner, but dinner; that this was home. Momentarily his consciousness of Anne Beacon's presence merged in that vague, cherished outline, and for one fleet instant the boy knew what that hour might be.

In his silence Anne spoke gravely, yet with a lightness which did not mask her quite attractive embarrassment.

"What kind of day was today to you?" she asked; "has it been behaving?"

"It has not," Baring replied, simply. "It has been a sort of brute day. A regular tooth and claw day. A day," he added, as if he were dumping it, bound, at her feet, "that has been a-lashing of its tail ever since 9 a. m."

"They do that sometimes," she accepted this. "I think maybe Time just storms now and then on its own account. Why shoudn't there be time storms just as well as sky storms?"

"Well, that was the way with today," Baring agreed. "What did you do? he asked, and laughed a little and added: "Did you shop?"

"I believe I did," she admitted.

"In a taxi?" he wanted to know—just for the little joke with himself of asking it.

"They don't let taxis in the shops," she told him, merrily, "and for that reason I always walk. Why—if you don't mind?"

"I rather thought you shopped," Baring explained himself luminously. "What else did you do?"

Ever so briefly her look questioned him, her face glowing a little in the warm light of the dome. And while she answered her look still questioned him.

"I did what ten thousand or so other fourth floor lodgers did today," she said. "I sat curled up in a cold dining room full of furniture while the woman swept the sitting room. Then I dusted it and tried to change things 'round, though there is nothing to change and no room to change it in if there were. At noon Mrs. Wheeler let me help her a little. Then I washed some lace and took back a library book that was overdue, and shopped for something I decided not to buy, and looked in a window for a long time at some orchids, and made a call, and came home tired to death. And now is now."

Baring nodded. "Was it the right kind of call?" he inquired, briefly. This was it—this was the way she would be telling him of her day.

"The call," Anne went on, "was on a woman in Pearl street. Yes, Pearl. On the fifth floor. Her husband is a helpless cripple. There are six children. The woman scrubs offices from 6 o'clock at night until 3 or so in the morning. By daylight she washes clothes—and carries the water by the pailful up the five flights of stairs. She has lived downtown since she was 7 years old and she has never been above Twenty-third street. Do you see what that means? I mean the little, commonplace things she has never done and seen: she has never been in a carriage. She has never had a hothouse flower—or smelled fragrance—or seen a jewel—or a woman's beautiful gown—or a wild animal—or the park. It's quite true. I saw her and talked with her."

Baring looked down at Anne.

"Good Lord," he said, "those things——"

"Don't they?" she answered.

"I had a little girl with me," Anne went on, after their silence. "She had on a white cloth cloak, and the woman knew she was lovely and tried to say so. But all she could say was: 'Ain't the little thing clean? Ain't she clean?' To be clean was the chief ideal and absolutely the only beauty she knew. Doesn't that make one——"

"I know, I know," said Baring.

Anne looked at him meditatively.

"I was afraid," she told him, "that you might tell me that I ought not to go 'round to these places!"

"Heaven forbid," said Baring. "I'm not much good, but I am alive. There was a little girl in our office today," he added, "the door 'boy's' little girl. He is 40 and he has tuberculosis. He took her 'round to all of us, and he apologized and made her shake hands with us and do some nice little things she does. When she had gone he came to each one of us and told us why he had had her down. He hoped that one of us might adopt her so that he could know she had a home before——"

"Oh," said Anne, "isn't that——"

"Isn't it?" said Baring.

They looked at each other across the blur of white and of dainty dishes and for a moment their eyes clung, merely as if one person alive had met another person alive in a vast, otherwise manless waste; merely as if, to each, the fact of the other being there was a fine, incomprehensible thing to be hugged, with all the intricate waste as a dim background. But to Anne, as she looked at him, the background was one of the cheery, leaping, homey hearth; and to him, as he looked, the background was a window, and the black windowed vista of other men's homes.

Presently the white muslin apron brought in the dessert. It was a delicious dessert, all feathery yellow dressing, on a creamy, fruity surprise within. And as Anne Beacon served it a welcome sense of well being came flower-like from soil of a long and lonely preparedness and filled Baring's consciousness, and he sat watching the little ornament shine in her hair and watching her hands that looked firm and warm and—busy; and he was thinking about nothing at all. It is well known that a man has to be very well content to achieve thinking about nothing at all.

"Mrs. Wheeler's maid," said Anne, "is going back to Sweden to be married. She told me all about it while I was in the kitchen this morning. She said she didn't believe she would be any happier on her death bed, when heaven sets in."

Baring smiled and nodded. "Go on," he commanded.

Anne laughed out. "You said that," she told him, "just the way you used to say it when I was reading to you when you were sick."

Baring looked startled. "I didn't order you around, did I?" he asked horrified.

She nodded, so that the little star in her hair glowed and twinkled, and whatever was the recollection of having been ordered about by Baring, one would not have said that she had greatly minded.

The talk went on, but now Baring was not thinking of his own part in it. That she had cared for him that time had come like a sudden link between them. He looked past Anne at the uncurtained window—a vast living picture of roofs and lights and black sky, and within the frame, beating and pulsing and being, was the life of which they had talked: The life where women care for men who are ill, where both go without things, struggle, love children, fight death, crave life, hold out their hands to one another. As he looked, it seemed to Baring that abruptly Anne had flowered from the great window of the city, like some one had begun to be—— This was the same stretch of roofs on which he looked down from the window of his lonely room. There were the yellow lighted panes which he fancied looked from some man's dining room, the ground glass of a hall door behind which lay some man's welcome, the cheery, commonplace of lights in the upper windows, and all just as he saw them from his little window in the midst of his dreary game. And suddenly he sank back into the present with a good sense of warmth, of realization, of not being alone. And at that, Baring stared over at Anne Beacon. Why, he said incoherently to himself, she was making a kind of thereness——

On this high moment Gilliland arrived, and so did coffee. Gilliland was short, with a little head, so that his appearance was irresistibly triangular. Tonight he was, in addition, radiant.

"How nicely like Mrs. Wheeler," Gilliland commented when he had heard, "how deliciously, extravagantly like her. Wasn't it?"

When Miss Beacon had poured the coffee she rose.

"Now," she said, "I'm going to leave you two. I shall sit up for my mother and I shall write five hundred letters. And when Mrs. Wheeler comes perhaps you will all come up for a sandwich."

Baring took her to the door. As she went beside him through the shadow haunted, firelit room, he caught again that fragrance of "violets on a thousand hills," and he turned to look down at her in something like astonishment. To that sweetness of odor which he had long caught on stair and hall, had known that some day he should miss, he perceived now that he bore a certain accustomedness with which, for the first time, he identified Anne herself. He looked down at her—a slight, white thing moving beside him, talking, silent, smiling, pretty—and he felt a sudden, overruling satisfaction in the mere fact that she was there.

Because he wished that she were not going and because he cast indefinitely about for some way to keep her for a moment, he said the first thing which occurred to him and the last thing which he had expected to say.

"You didn't happen," he put it almost wistfully, "to buy a hat today, did you?"

She disclaimed it merrily enough, but with the restful absence of bewilderment at any irrelevance which is the soul of the most intimate talk.

"This isn't my new hat year," she told him.

"I almost wish you had bought a hat," said Baring—but now the little joke with himself was less a joke than before. "A woman," he explained impromptu, "is never so much a woman as when she is describing the pursuit of her latest hat."

"All my hats—I mean both my hats—are early. Early Renaissance," she informed him, gayly, from the stair.

Baring turned back to the firelight haunted room. And about the emptiness of the room there overswept him a certain dreary sense of familiarity—as if it were his own empty room in the moment of his losing her—the her of the game—losing her absolutely. And presently, when he did not come back to the dining room, Gilliland came in and found him by the open fire, staring down miles into it past the red log.

"You didn't drink your coffee," said Gilliland.

"I don't want it," said Baring. "Bring yours in here."

"I don't want it," said Gilliland. "Baring, old man, I'm engaged."

Baring looked at him with new interest.

"Splendid," he said, with enthusiasm. "It's Miss Earl, of course?"

"It is," said Gilliland, reverently, "and the curious thing about it is, Baring, that it always was Miss Earl."

He sat by the fire and looked solemnly at Baring.

"Baring," he said, "Emily Earl is the one woman in this whole world for me. I know it now. If I hadn't met her—just think, Baring, of the chances I ran of not meeting her!—if I hadn't met her I should never have looked at any woman. It was planned for us somewhere—back and back and back. It had to be. I believe," said Gilliland modestly, "that I'm the one man in this universe for her."

Baring listened.

"Baring," said Gilliland, "now that we have found each other, it makes me shudder to think how easily we might have missed each other. I met her at my aunt's in Rio. And my uncle nearly moved to Montclair instead of to Rio. Isn't it wonderful that out of the whole wide world we two should have got to Rio and have met?"

Baring listened.

"Baring," said Gilliland, "we're going to have a little home. We've got the house—it's on Wood Walk street—don't that sound like a home? Yes, sir; 19 Wood Walk street, there in Rio. O, Baring, it makes me wild to earn money. To fix up the little place. To get her the things she wants. To begin to lay a little by. To think ahead to the time——"

While he listened Baring looked in the fire, miles down, and for a flash and remotely he understood Gilliland, and something about other men, and, last of all, about himself.

"Gilliland," he said to him in the first pause, "suppose your uncle hadn't moved to Rio. Suppose he had moved to Montclair?"

"It was fate," said Gilliland with simplicity.

"I remember you told me at the time," said Baring brutally, "that it was so your aunt could be near a special hay fever doctor."

Gilliland, who had risen to take leave, looked at him doubtfully, and past him to the great window toward the city with its lights of homes—and homes—and homes.

"I'm blessed if I understand life," said Gilliland gloomily. "I wish I did. But there's one thing I know, Baring," cried the little man. "When I'm with Emily Earl I feel as if something that had meant to be all along is. I feel as if something big that was planned somewhere away off had come true. And I bet it has—I bet it has!"

"God bless you, Gilliland," said Baring. "I bet so, too."

When Gilliland had gone Baring walked to the window and looked deep, deep down the way that it opened. Down the way that reaches round the world, roofs and lights and homes where men care for women and women for men, where both go without things, plan things for each other, struggle, love children, fight death, crave life, hold out their hands to one another. Hold out their hands to one another. That was it. Waiting for no impossible standard to be fulfilled, obeying the dominant seeking, the sharp need to be near an understanding heart; obeying the dominant urge toward others who are seeking, too.

"Was the roast spoiled?" she wanted to know. "And I could have wept in the cab when I thought of the dessert. Wasn't it too bad about Mrs. Beacon? She came in with me just now and I've asked her and Anne to come down for some scraps. And we're all going to get supper."

Baring, who had settled before the fire opposite Mrs. Wheeler, sprang to his feet.

"I'll go and fetch them," said he.

"Tell them to hurry!" Mrs. Wheeler admonished. "There are cold roast beef and some of Anne's dessert and all the properties of a debauch——"

Baring turned in the doorway.

"Whose dessert?" he demanded.

"Yes, Anne. Mercy, how abrupt you are!" said Mrs. Wheeler. "She came down and made it for me this noon. You had it for dinner. I know it was good."

Baring looked down at the figures of the rug and smiled—and smiled.

"A dessert she made—made!" he said inanely.

"Wasn't it good?" Mrs. Wheeler persisted.

"It was," said Baring, and closed the door. "It was!" he repeated as he raced up the length of matting and the bare, brutal boards.

The Beacons' door stood open, and at his knock Anne, who was in the room alone, turned from the window. And it was a window like Baring's and like those of Mrs. Wheeler's, looking to that same big vista of city lights and roofs.

Baring strode across the floor.

"Anne Beacon," he said, "I want to tell you something I know."

She glanced up at him—a slight, white thing, with the star shining in her hair, and behind her the great tapestry of night and the world.

"You—look as you looked when you were cross—when I read to you," she said uncertainly.

"A kind of boy and a kind of brute," Baring put it. "That's it. You'll think so more than ever when I've done. But you've got to hear. Because I've had it all wrong. I've always thought there was somewhere a woman—the one woman, you understand—living and waiting around for me. Well, I don't believe it. I believe she—the woman—might be one of a good many women, and that any one of them I might have wanted to be with always if I had happened to meet her first, see her often, and all that. But it happens that of them all I've met only you. I know now there must be others—I know it. Why, a man's got to know it if he thinks at all. But I've met you first. And you will be the only one—ever—if you want to be. Does that mean anything to you? Do you want to be told—like that? Will you be the one?"

She put up her hand; and she said quite the last thing that Baring had expected.

"Don't!" she said. "It's—it's telling."

"Telling?" Baring repeated stupidly.

"Other men don't tell," Anne said. "Some of them must know. Lots must know. But they all make the woman think it never could have been anybody else. Maybe sometimes—it couldn't. But your saying it out is like—like being disloyal to the way the world has agreed on."

He stared down at her in the grip of his bewilderment. She knew! Do women know, then? he wondered gropingly. Do they know all the time, and just try not to believe?

"You know it is so——" he tried to say.

"Yes," she answered, "I do know. I don't think a woman ought to know—unless it can make her do her part, make her keep the man loving her, make her keep herself the one woman, because in her place there might so easily have been another—or another—or another. O, I mean it doesn't matter whether a man makes his whole ideal his wife. But it matters everything whether his wife can make herself his ideal. What does it matter what woman it is who—is the one—so long as she can make him happy and help him to do their share?"

Baring stretched out his hands.

"It would be you—that way—with me," he said.

He could see the star in her hair shining as if it were one with the stars in the huge, dark beyond.

"I would like to be the one—to you," she answered.

But when he would not have let her talk she drew away from him with a great, new glow in her face. As if, in the surprise of it all to them both, door lay beyond door, and there was yet one more to be unlocked.

"There is something else," she said. "More—more than we've said. More than that."

He waited, expecting any new marvel.

"I mean," said Anne Beacon, "would you mind very much—if it was that way with me, too? The way we said? Would you mind very much if I knew that if I hadn't met you it might—some time—have been somebody else—who wasn't you?"

If daylight had streamed from the heavens it could not so essentially have altered the aspect of things for Baring. Within what had been warm presence and fellowing and infinite prophecy, and an honesty which was like the wings of a great wind to carry life, here was something chill and sinister, abruptly alienating him from all that he thought he had. And yet why not? Why should he not face this as truth, too, and know himself for one of many men who might have won her?

"Would you understand—would you?" she asked again. "You see the other so clearly—and I do. I do, and I accept it. Haven't we both got to make the best of it all—see that for us both it is chance, and each be glad and grateful for the chance?"

But Baring, looking past her at the window of homes, stood silent, his arms by his sides. Absurdly enough, Gilland's words—at which Baring had smiled—came back to him and besieged him with meaning: "I believe that I am the only man in the universe for Emily Earl." And Baring's heart gave a great, surprising, sickening throb of understanding, of homesickness for her—for the woman in the room to whom he would have been the only one—the only one, as he had always been to her the only one in his dreary little game.

Then, amazingly, Anne Beacon laughed. And it was a good little laugh, a glad laugh, a laugh that had in it a kind of pride and triumph, and a tenderness that went to Baring's head as nothing in the game had ever done. Before he could speak she came to him, had his face in her hands.

"O, you would mind!" she cried. "You dear, you dear, you would!"

Baring looked down at her, and looked. And she met his eyes in the pride and the humility of the thing that she knew.

"But you ought to mind," she said. "I wouldn't love you if you didn't mind. And it isn't true. From the days when you were sick and I came to read to you I've loved you. I loved the boy in you—and the big, dear man in you. And you've got to know it as I know it, and believe it, because there isn't anything truer—that it could never, never have been anybody else in this world, only you—you—you!"

SPOOKS, BLACK CATS and TEA LEAVES

Woman Always Must Keep Silent and Wait—But This One Did Not, Though She Did Not Know She Did Not.

DeALTON VALENTINE

OF course, had any one known it was Jintz Edgington instead of a real, sure enough gypsy half of the fun would have been spoiled, and if Jintz Edgington had known Tom Douglas was in town! But you must figure out the consequences for yourself. For one thing, Jintz never would have had the courage to have said what she did, and, for another, Tom never would have had the chance to have listened, and right there are two good reasons why Jintz should have posed as the fortune teller, and why Tom should have come to town.

Jintz's real name was Jane. Perhaps you have guessed that. Nowadays we are so intent upon calling a spade a spade that we almost banish nicknames from the family circle, and thereby miss a lot of fun. We say Elizabeth to every syllable, and Margaret is Margaret, and Jane is Jane.

The Edgingtons were different. Perhaps it was because they lived in an old fashioned house, which stood in an old fashioned yard, which was a landmark in an old fashioned town. It was more than a landmark—it was an heirloom, and so regarded by the residents of Columbia, a quaint Massachusetts village, snuggled down in the curves of an ambling stream.

With the Edgingtons, Elizabeth never was anything but Betsy, just as Margaret was Peggy and Jane was Jintz. The names had passed, as the property, from Edgington to Edgington. The three boys were Tom and Mike and A. J., shortened from Alexander Jackson, who had been named in a moment of parental aberration, or perhaps of admiration, for the past president. A. J. never stopped to inquire. He considered the name as sufficient burden without adding the weight of investigation. Collectively they called themselves "the half dozen." When Tom's "college twin," Tom Douglas, honored them with his presence, as he did some several vacations yearly, they changed it to "the baker's half dozen." If, in the opinion of the neighbors, "the half dozen" were enough, "the baker's half dozen" just escaped being a crowd, but the vacations will live in the memories of many.

Tom Douglas was not the only vacation visitor to the Edgington place. Betsy and Peggy and Jintz, as well as Mike and A. J., regularly came home with a friend in tow. Every guest was received with open arms by the family, but to Tom Douglas alone the hearts opened as well. There was something about Tom that made him "fit in." His own home was far on the western coast, and after the first visit or two, when he had gone home with Tom Edgington because Tom had refused to leave him stranded in that most soulless of all places—a school in holiday time—it had seemed quite the most natural thing in the world to pack when Tom packed and trail along. He knew he was more than welcome—he was expected.

Now had come the end of the last summer's vacation before the Toms burst forth as lawyers. Tom Douglas had dropped off at Columbia on the way back from the coast to pick up his chum for their return for "the last lap." The few days of fun had outraced the seven leagued boots in swiftness and here they were ready for the good-bys again.

"You're a horrible example of hospitality, Mother Edgington." Tom took her hand in a tight parting clasp. "You make a man want to stay at home forever."

"Behold a senior! This time I am afraid it is fare thee well for I don't know how long, but I do want you to know that always this place will be precious in my memory. Here endeth summer vacations for Tommie. After next June—what? Those romantic years known as 'lawyer's starvation.' Happy thought, isn't it? Good-by and good luck!" He ran, laughing, down the steps.

"There's Thanksgiving, Tommie," called Mrs. Edgington.

"Promised to Aunt Julia, in Washington."

"Then Christmas?"

"Dad and mother are coming from Seattle to meet me in New York."

"But, Tom, this isn't your last visit?"

Jintz, standing in the doorway, was not aware of the startled tears in her voice until the words were out. Tom not coming back? Swift realization struck a discord in the music of her life!

"Not on your life, Jintz," Tom shouted, as the motor car carried the two boys away, "not on your life. Not if I have to walk from Seattle to Massachusetts!"

He was gone. He had come and gone so many times. Why should this going be so different? Jintz knew. She told herself she knew. There was nothing subconscious in the suddenness of the discovery. But no one would know that Jintz knew. Youthful girlhood may talk much of its flirtation. It never speaks of its real heartaches.

September passed and with October the leaves on the Edgington maples began their journey from green to red and red to gold. The scent of the holidays in the air, always so invigorating to Jintz, was growing stifling with memories. In this gathering somberness came Maud Elliot's letter.

"Dear Jintz," it read. "Throw some things into your hand satchel and run over for Halloween. The man who made the calendar was good enough to tack it onto the end of the week this year, so Brother Bob is coming from Harvard with some of the boys and we're going to have an old fashioned, look for your lord and master, spooky Halloween party with an over Sunday tag-on. Doesn't it read good? Every one is to be masked. Bring a sheet and pillow case along with you. I may not have enough to go around. Everything is to be in white—all but the gypsy fortune teller, who is coming from Boston. She is to be the big card of the evening.

"I forgot to tell you why I want a sheet and pillow case. No, you needn't bring the bed, too. As everything is to be in white, I want all of the girls to dress as spooks. I don't know how the boys are to fix up. I've left that to Bob and the rest of them. We probably will have the same old Puritans and knights and pierrots and clowns and such, but who cares?

Every one is to stay masked until after the gypsy has told all the fortunes. Don't you think it will be fun, Jintz?

"Mother and father are having company next week and they—the company—won't take wings until the night before the party—meaning Thursday, so don't come until Friday. Bob and the boys can't get here until just before the party, so they will dress at Billie Aiken's, next door. Don't know who is coming, but we can trust Bob to bring the right kind. Be sure to get here on Friday morning. I'll want you to help decorate the house and cut the pumpkins. Heaps love.

"MAUD."

It was like Maud to go ahead and order all her friends' plans to fit into her own as if she were the original groovemaker!

"Maud, dear," Jintz replied. "Regardless of your petticoats and the antis, I am quite sure you are destined for the presidential chair. No one but a president, present or future, could so command the presence of the favored and get away with it. I come. Sheet, pillow case, hand satchel, and all. Truth is, you have quite saved my life. If the pores of my skin had been sieves, the 'pep' couldn't have sifted out of me as it has this fall. And, if an 'old fashioned, look for your lord and master, spooky Halloween party' doesn't fill in the box known as me, again, I'll put on a lace cap and begin to knit. Yours for the spooks. JINTZ."

By the honking of an automobile horn and a shout of: "Hello, Jintz. Look to the right of the water tank!" Jintz heard her welcome to Edgewood.

"Welcome to our town," laughed Maud, as Jintz climbed over tracks and wires and found her way to the water tank. "Can you beat a little burg like this for having its streets all torn up every time one of its chief citizens gives a party? Couldn't get near the station with the car, but I knew no one could miss this fresh beefsteak water tank—really, doesn't it look like a piece of raw beefsteak in its new red paint?—so I marooned myself here. Getting mixed in my shades? Well, maybe, but how's Jintz?"

"Thanks for the opportunity." Jintz laughed. "She's fine."

"And the pep?"

"Already returning. How's the party?"

"Great. Every plan going along on rubber tires. Wait a bit. I'll have to run in to the postoffice for the mail. If ever we acquire the convenience of free delivery some of our most progressive oldest residents will collapse. Back in a minute."

But she had forgotten that the train from Columbia carried mail. Following the arrival of the mail trains, the citizens of Edgewood gathered just outside their glass fronted "boxes" and surreptitiously watched the postoffice clerks distribute the haul. The curtains at the "general delivery" and "stamp" and "money order" windows always were tightly drawn, but this did not hide the workers from view. It was a pleasant reunion of Edgewooders, usually, each eying his own little stall, the while quips about the weather or local gossip passed about. Maud, with the Elliot box unlocked, snatched the letters as they were slipped in and glanced at the postmarks. Jintz saw her brows draw down in puzzlement once. Then the curtains went up, the company crowded around the windows calling out their box numbers or their names, the plutocratic owners of lock boxes got out their keys, and in a short time the reunion was over.

"Now for home," she announced. "There's a queer looking letter from Boston, Jintz," handing Jintz the pack of letters. "Find it and read it as we spin along. I don't recognize the writing."

Jintz tore the envelope and skimmed the letter hastily.

"Maud," she exclaimed, "Maud, the fortune teller can't come!"

"The fortune teller can't—what?"

"Can't come. She's sick."

"The fortune teller can't come?" drawled Maud, the light gone out of her eyes. "Jintz, she's got to come."

"No," Jintz shook her head. "Here is where command availeth not. The letter says she was taken to the hospital today. Therefore she can't come. That's obvious."

The speed of the Elliot car had slackened. It turned into the driveway leading to the big, old brick house in which the Elliots lived.

"That's what I get for depending upon a gyp——" began Maud. "Why, Jintz, she was to have been the whole show. I haven't another novelty planned for the evening, and if I had, what's Halloween without fortune telling? Mother," she called as the two girls ran up the steps to a waiting woman, "Mother, here's Jintz, but don't stop for kisses. Come up to the room right away. While Jintz washes her face we got to think and think hard—you, Jintz, me, everybody!"

"But I've just ordered Mary to bring some hot tea to the morning room," interposed Mrs. Elliott, a mild mannered little English matron. "I thought Jintz would feel the need of something——"

"All right, we'll drink while we think."

"Welcome, Jintz," Mrs. Elliott turned to give the young girl greeting. "I'll do it better after a while; but do tell me, what has happened?"

"The gypsy," began Jintz.

"Can't come," finished Maud, dropping into a wicker chair. "The gypsy can't come, mother. Now here is where three heads have to get to work. Tell me, what am I going to do?"

"There are the old games," ventured Mrs. Elliott timidly. She always so wanted to help, but never having quite caught up with the procession of which her daughter was a leader she had the timidity of those who follow.

"Too old," asserted Maud, with finality.

"You can dance," Mrs. Elliott suggested, as if the thought were new. "Young people always enjoy dancing. We can take up the rugs——"

Maud shook her head sadly. "You mean well, mother, but neither the old games nor the new dances fill the aching void. Jintz, where are your thoughts?"

"I've just been wondering," Jintz replied slowly, "wondering—Mrs. Elliott, let me have that tea." She snatched the pot and hurriedly turned leaves and tea into a waiting cup. Mrs. Elliott gasped.

Jintz was turning the cup around and around and murmuring to herself.

'I believe I can, I do, I do," she shouted. "It's this way: A long time ago mother taught me how to read fortunes by tea leaves. Did you never do that when you were a girl, Mrs. Elliott? Aunt Jintz, for whom I was named, you know, was a corker at it, and mother taught me because I coaxed so hard to do the things Aunt Jintz had done. I haven't tried it for a long time, but I could make up a lot, you know, and if you can get me a gypsy dress no one need know she couldn't come, or that I'm here and I can tell the fortunes instead." She paused, out of breath.

Two tennis strong arms wound themselves about her neck, the weight of a lithe young body fell against her, and a voice said in worshipful tones: "Jintz, you bully old prop. Atlas gave up his job when you came down!"

It was decided that no one should be told of the coming of Jintz. Mrs. Elliott already was at the telephone ordering red calico and gold bangles. Up in the attic there was known to be an old black silk skirt and an ancient embroidered shawl. Jintz was to be secreted in the den until all the masked guests had arrived. Then the den door was to be thrown open and there, in front of a gypsy tent, the lights shaded to twilight, would sit the fortune teller. Over her bronzed face would drop a veil, indicating that she was the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter.

"Send them all in masked, Maud," Jintz instructed. "If I should look up and see Bob, or Billie Aiken, or one of the girls I know before me I'd never be able to put it over. We'll dig up a lot of romances. When I run out of signs in the cup I can weave in love stories, and no one will be the wiser, you see. When the last one has come and gone, Mrs. Elliott, you can help me get out through the back hall. I'll go upstairs, get on my spook costume, slip down, join the crowd, and you can announce that the gypsy had to go back to Boston right away. Then we can unmask. No one need ever know. That must be a promise—forever?"

"Forever," agreed Maud, solemnly.

A few hours later, up in Mary's room, two women surveyed their handiwork and exclaimed together: "Jintz, you're perfect."

"But there's fifty of them. Fifty! Think of it! Suppose my stock of romances doesn't hold out? What then? Gracious, what's that?"

"It's only me, ma'am," called Mary from the other side of the door. "I just wanted to say I see somethin' white walkin' this way and I think they've begun to come."

Jintz scurried down the back stairs and into the twilight den. From the other side of the curtain of white which had been draped over the den door she peered out into the darkened rooms. Maud had succeeded in her attempt to make it an old fashioned spooky party. Everything was in white. Tarpaulin covered the floors, cheesecloth draped the pictures, the chairs were in their summer casings—it was a snowy scene relieved only by the two midnight black Negro boys who twanged banjo and guitar over in a corner. The gathering ghostly guests moved about silently in their sheets and pillow cases.

"They act as if they were afraid of each other," whispered Jintz to herself.

Suddenly there came a chorus of me-ows and into the room burst a whole company of black cats! The ghosts screamed. The cats joined hands and danced about gleefully. The men had arrived. They had seized upon the opportunity to dress as they chose. Jintz laughed suppressedly until her sides ached. Spooks and black cats! She thought of the succession of them to pass before her! At any rate, there'd be no possible way to tell them apart. She wouldn't know to whom she had talked even after the unmasking!

"Ready," answered Jintz, and took her place.

The den curtain was drawn aside. A chorus of "Oh's" came from the ghosts. The cats clapped their paws and called "Great!" Branches caught against the walls had converted the den into a bit of woods. A battered tent, with clothes strewn about; Sport, the family dog, chained to a stump at the side, and a group of toy horses in the background gave realism to the gypsy scene. In front of the tent sat the fortune teller. At her side the steam rose from brewing tea.

A black cat was thrust in. He was not so easy. Then a ghost and again a cat. Over and over again the gypsy steamed her palms and droned her instructions and told her stories. How universal love stories seemed in their application! Apparently they always fitted. And every one felt his to be original! Wasn't it funny? Jintz was learning a great deal.

Thirty times, thirty-five. Would the romances hold out? Jintz wasn't thinking deeper than the roots of her hair. She knew she wasn't.

A man absorbed Maud's story; a girl, Peggy's. Then once again a man for Betsy's, and the last girl—the last girl, thank fortune—took her mother's. Just one more—a man. Jintz liked the way he came in. Even dressed as a cat he had some distinction. Queer how clothes make some people and others are just themselves no matter what they wear. Somehow she felt that behind those cat's eyes were bright ones that might peer into depths. She was glad she wore a veil. What could she tell him? She had to say something after she had droned those instructions for the fiftieth time and had taken the cup with its straggling leaves from his hand. She began to talk.

"You love," she said simply. That was usually a safe guess at his age. "You will not let yourself realize this. But it is true. Why do you deny it? You cannot fool your inner self. It is wrong to try." She studied the cup carefully. "I see companies. Gay little groups. Just a few close friends. And a great yard. I see big rooms in a big house. And pleasant faces. Your company is well chosen. You are often with them and are loved"—the man started—"by them," she added. The man sagged back less hopefully.

"There are boys—one, two, three." She counted slowly. "And girls. Let me see—one, two, three, also. It is a happy family. You are not one of them, but"—she stopped impressively. The man waited. "But—you—might—be," she drawled, as if she were dragging the words from the cup. "There is one—the first of the three—who loves you. You have been her brother, her playmate, until now. She has dreamed rare dreams of you. You, too, have dreamed, but you have not dared dream aloud lest a precious friendship might be broken. Is this not so?" The man did not answer.

"Is this fair? What of her? Woman always must keep silent—and wait. Sometimes she misses the heaven of her life because she may not speak. Is this right? Has a man the right to love without telling his love? Is it not the privilege of the one he loves to know? Again I press my dampened hands upon your head. Take a gypsy's blessing. Got to your love—and speak."

"O, what did I do, what did I do?" whispered Jintz as the curtain dropped and the man had gone. "I told my own love; I spoke my own dream! I laid bare my heart! Black cats, black cats, all of them. He does not know. Who has been my father confessor? Who knows, maybe there is some girl who waits for him? If I have sent him to her—God be with them!" She uttered the words as if they were a prayer and sat with hands clasped.

That was the way Mrs. Elliot found her when she came to help her through the back hall and up the stairs.

"Jintz, you poor child, are you worn out?" she asked in motherly affection when they had reached Mary's room again. "Here, take some tea——"

"Tea!" Jintz laughed a bit wildly. "I never want to see a leaf or smell a cup of it again. Did it go well? It did? They thought I was the real thing? They're all talking about it? O, isn't that too bully for words? Mrs. Elliot, I'm going on the stage. Yes, I am. Tired? Not very. You won't believe me, but the last man rested me. I was fearfully tired for a while. I though. I never could tell the fiftieth one, but he was the nicest chap! I don't know how I came to do it, but I told him a fortune that interested me so much it actually rested me. It was good to get it out of my system and into sympathetic ears even though they didn't know they were being sympathetic. My, but that warm water feels good to my face. By-by, gypsy; you've given me a lift," Jintz held the gypsy toggery aloft. "Now for the spook. Talk about your Mrs. Jekylls and Mrs. Hydes!"

No one noticed the extra spook enter the room—no one, but one.

"Unmask!" came a quick command. The voice was Maud's.

Off came pillow slips and cats' heads with many shouts. Friend recognized friend, and some one called: "Music, you fellows! Everybody dance!"

Suddenly an erstwhile cat and an erstwhile spook looked straight across the room into each other's eyes.

"Jintz Eddington!" shouted the cat.

"I judge you two people have met before," said Maud.

"Met? This is Tom Douglas, Maud, 'the baker's half dozen.' Tom, this is Maud Elliot, your hostess. Shake hands, if you can. Come with Bob, Tom? Why, Maud, Tom's my—my—fourth—brother, aren't you, Tom?"

"Yes," he answered slowly, looking into her eyes. "That's what I have been."

"Then find a cozy place for your reminiscences," announced Maud. "When two old playmates meet I refuse to be a party to the conversation. Get some comfortable seats. As soon as I can halt these whirling dervishes we're going to eat. Jintz is tired, too. I know she is. She's been working hard all"—Jintz scowled ominously—"day," finished Maud.

"If the gypsy's gone," said Tom, "let's go into the den. That's a dandy place for a nice talk. I never was so glad to see any one in my life, Jintz Eddington. You're a star from the skies, that's what you are."

"I'll admit my career is somewhat meteoric, Tom, but let's not go to the den. It's a perfectly nice room, but I prefer that pile of soft cushions in the corner of the library there."

"The library cushions it shall be. Evidently your one visit to the den tonight was enough. Did you go in?"

"Yes, I went in," she answered, and added hurriedly, "Brother Tom didn't come with you, did he?"

Tom shook his head.

"Had a dance on. That gypsy was a wonder, Jintz. Didn't you think so?"

"Y-e-s, in a way. She did something I would have said was impossible for her to do——"

"That's what I thought, too, Jintz. I always called such things a hoax before, and I tried to get out of going in tonight. No escape, Mrs. Elliot had us all spotted tagged. As it was I kept out until the very last one—O, Jintz, did I knock that cup from your hand? Awkwardness, thy name is Tom Douglas. Now there's coffee all down the front of your——"

"Spook sheet," laughed Jintz hysterically. "Never mind, it will wash. Go on. You were saying you went in last. I was one of the first ones in the room. Did she tell you anything worth while?"

Jintz watched his face.

"She told me something I wanted to hear and hadn't had the nerve to tell myself, although I knew it all the time. Was that worth while? How she hit it I don't know. Maybe most men's stories are alike and women get to know that, but she got skeptical me all right. I'm going to tell you what she told me, Jintz. That was her advice," he smiled. "Anyway I want your opinion. Funny thing your being here tonight on top of it, too. I think I'll tell you right now. I might get kidnaped before tomorrow. She told me I loved—you."

"That you loved me? She mentioned my name?"

"That wasn't necessary to me, Jintz. What did she tell you?"

"You see, Tom, I've talked with her before. She told me weeks and weeks ago that I loved you."

"Did you believe her, Jintz? I know she's right—for me."

"She always tells me the truth about myself if I listen to her, Tom."

"Did you listen—then?"

"I did."

"And a crowd of gibbering idiots on every side of us! Jintz, I think I'll cut that invitation of Aunt Julia's for Thanksgiving. Am I welcome at Edgington's?"

"Always."

"And forever?"

"And forever."

"Suppose we hadn't come to this party tonight, Jintz. Or just suppose the gypsy hadn't come!"

"Just suppose!" said Jintz with feeling.

THE TEENIE WEENIES

SPEND THE NIGHT IN A PAPER BOX.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

THE smooth rail made a fine place to walk and the Teenie Weenies hurried along the railroad track, for they had been away from home for a long time and every one was anxious to get to their little home as soon as possible.

"Gimminie, but I wish the boat hadn't busted," remarked the tired Dunce as he limped along under the weight of two heavy suit cases.

"Cheer up, Dunce," laughed the Clown. "We'll soon go into camp for the night and by tomorrow evening we'll be at home."

"Tomorrow evening is a long ways off," muttered the Dunce. "If-if-if I see a pinchin' bug I'm going to catch him and make him carry one of these suit cases. That's what I'm going to do, and you can just bet your life on that!" And the Dunce trudged along looking carefully along both sides of the rail for the desired bug.

The Indian, who had gone ahead to select a camping place for the night, presently came into sight around a curve in the track and shouted to the little people that he had found a wonderful place.

"Him heap fine place to camp" announced the Indian. "Heap fine pop-corn box to sleep in. Plenty water near. Him good camp."

The Teenie Weenies followed their little guide down the frack quite a distance, then leaving the rail they made their way through the long grass to a wire fence that stood near by. An empty Snapper Snap popcorn box lay in a snug little hollow near a fence post, and everybody was much pleased with the Indian's choice for the camp.

"I like it," said the Lady of Fashion, "because it is hidden from the sight of tramps who might be walking along the track."

The box was quite clean, except for a few ants that ran about, but these the Teenie Weenies soon chased away, and in a short time the busy little people had things snug and comfortable. The Teenie Weenies propped up the flap at the opening of the box with two poles and carried many soft leaves into the place for beds.

The Old Soldier brought up several logs and the Scotchman chopped them into short sticks for the Cook's fire. The Dunce and Gogo found a vineyard near by and the two little fellows, after a lot of hard work, cut off three heavy grapes and brought them into camp, to the great delight of the Teenie Weenies, who were fond of sliced grape. The little people ate a hearty dinner and afterward sat about the camp fire, told stories, sang songs, and had a most glorious time.

Before the sun had time to peep over the eastern hills the next morning, the Teenie Weenie Cook was up and had a wonderful pot of porridge boiling over the tiny camp fire. After breakfast the little people once more climbed onto the railroad track and commenced the last half of the trip to Shoehurst. Late in the afternoon the Teenie Weenies left the railroad and after a tiresome tramp through the long grass they at last arrived in sight of the beloved shoe house.

Grandpa, who had been left at home to look after the house, was nearly beside himself with joy when he saw the little people, and almost fell off the front steps in his hurry to greet them. Mrs. and Mr. Lover came running over from the bungalow with the twins and for some minutes there was a great deal of hugging, kissing, laughing and crying. In the excitement the Dunce kissed Grandpa, which made the old gentleman so angry he chased the foolish fellow all over the yard.

"Say!" shouted the Cook, popping his head out of the kitchen door, "I've got to have some help here if you people expect to get any dinner tonight. Things are in a fine pickle here."

"What's the matter?" asked the General.

"Matter enough," growled the Cook. "I don't think Grandpa has done a single thing but eat and smoke since we've been gone. Why, the kitchen sink is stacked up two feet high with dirty dishes."

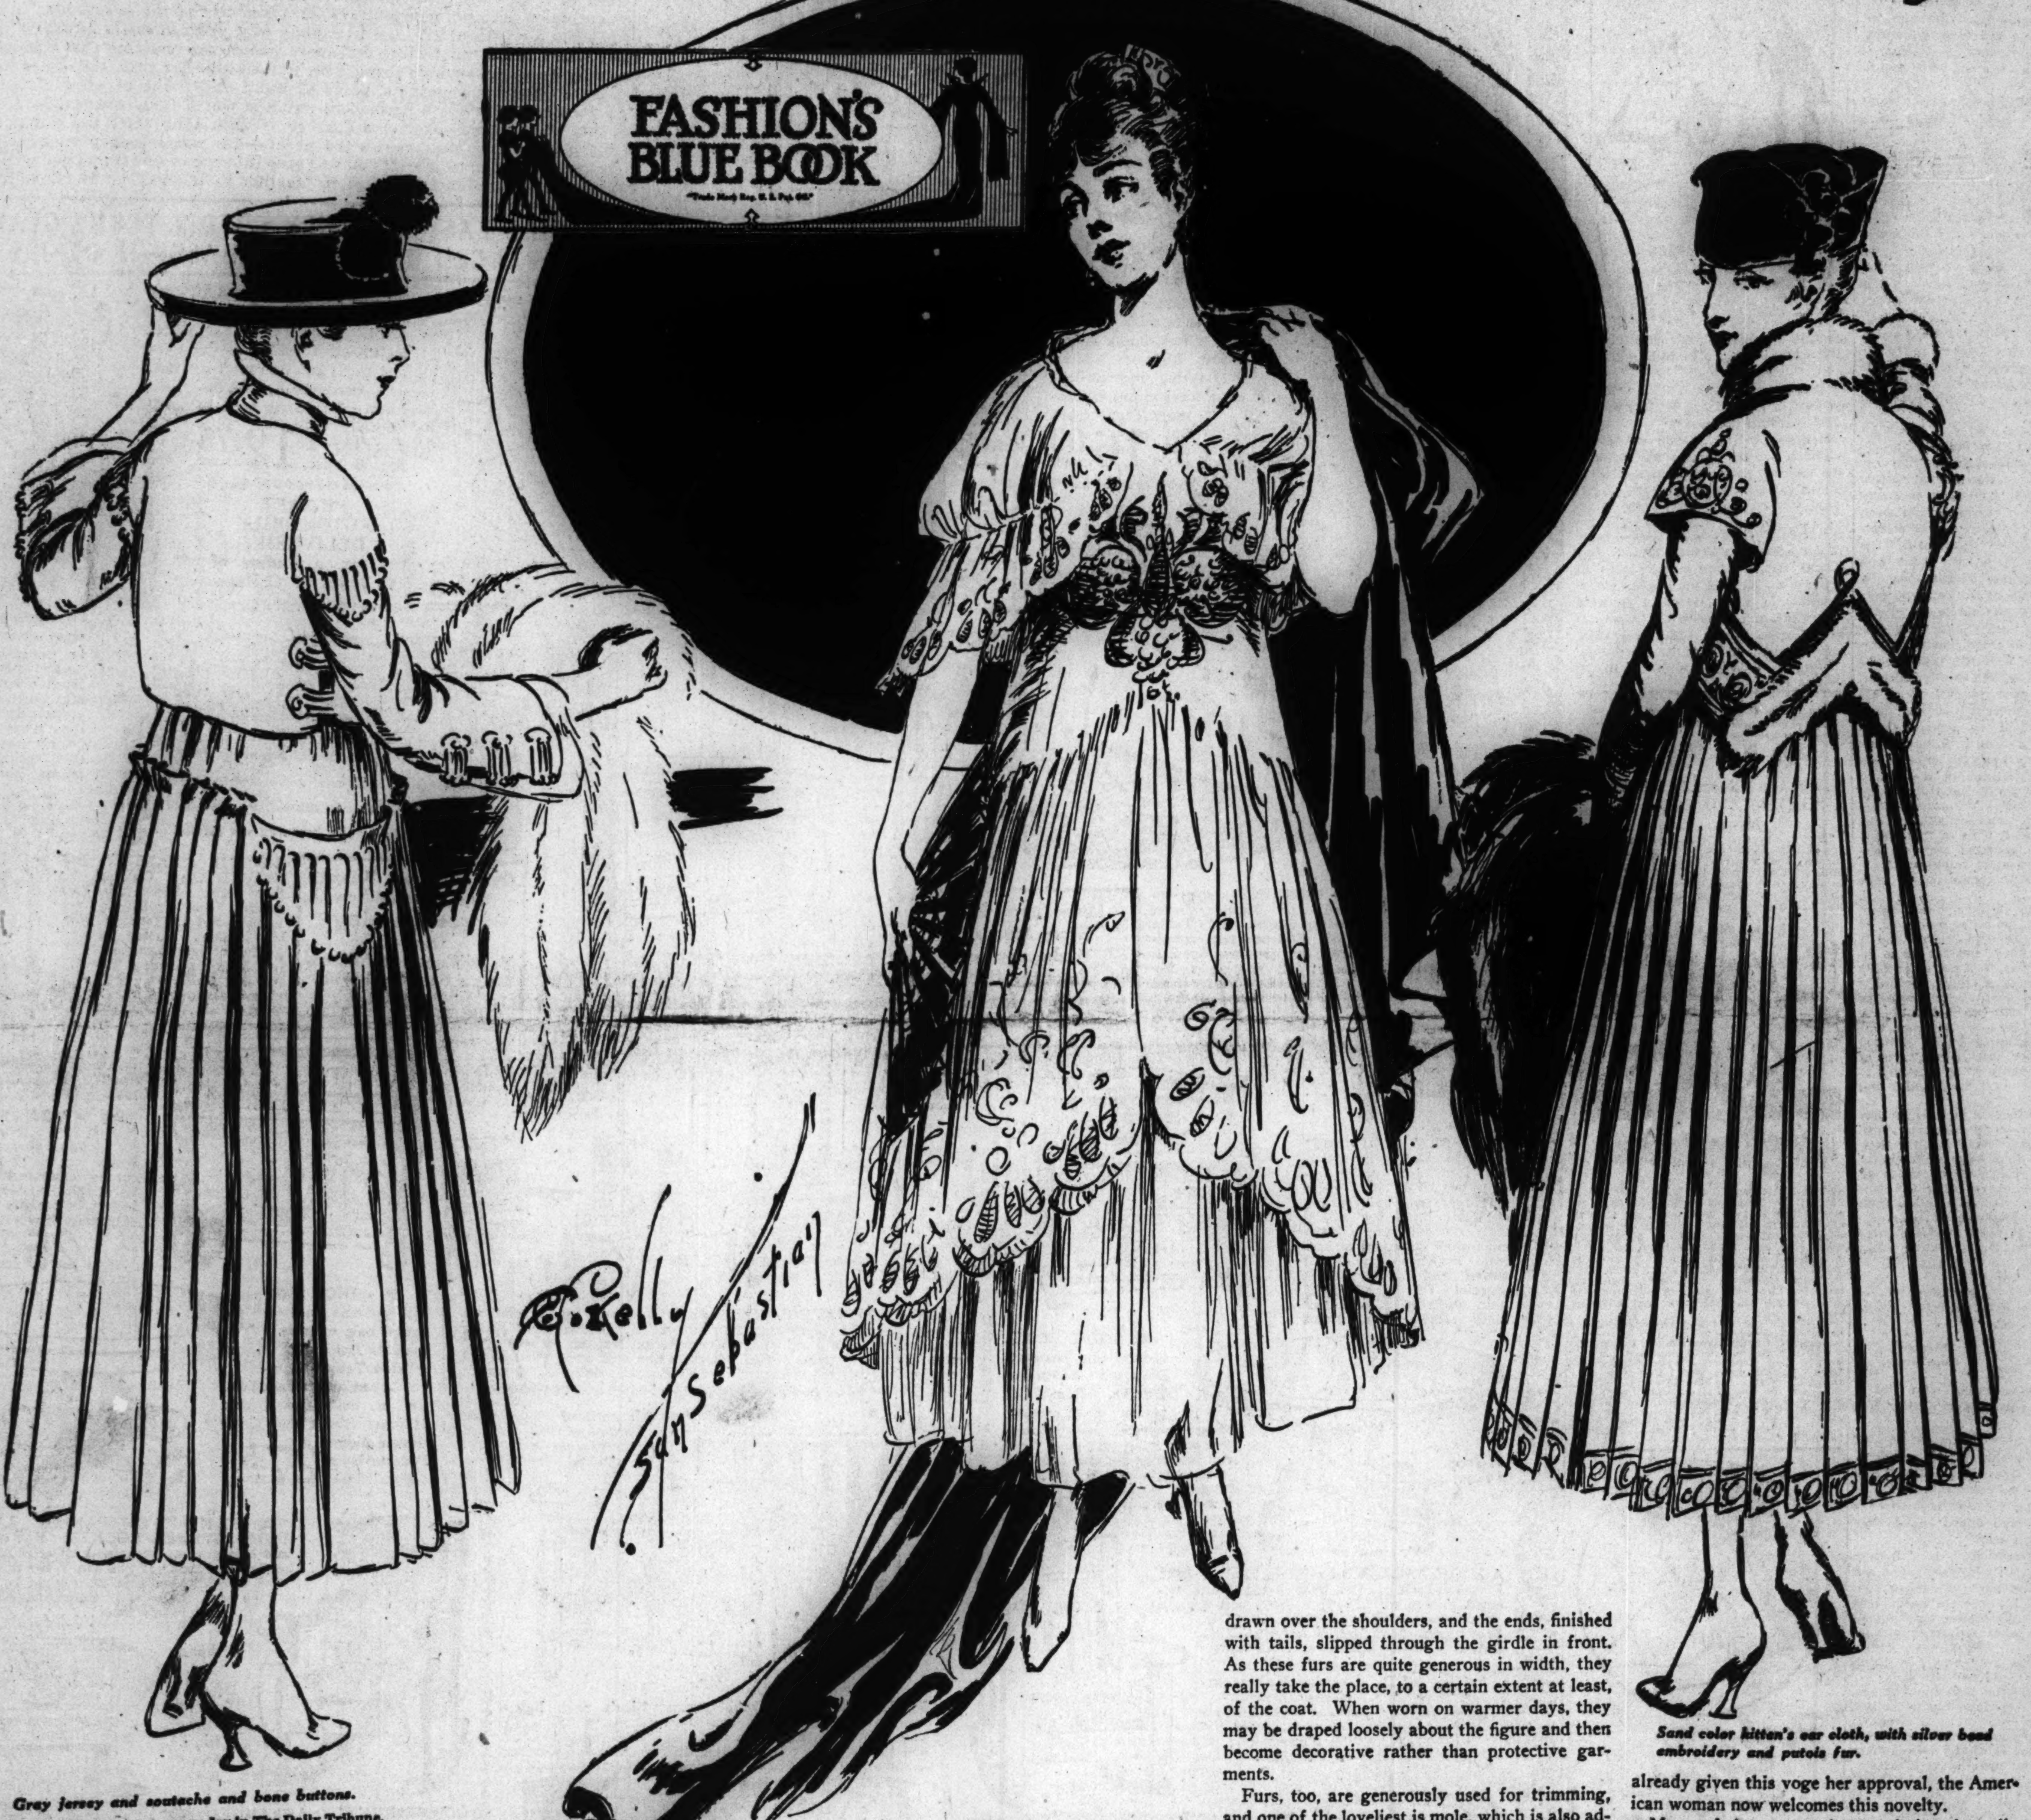
New Furs Are Being Worn In Odd Ways

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK



Gray jersey and soutache and bone buttons.

ALTHOUGH the frost tipped leaves speed quickly downwards when the winds of fall murmur softly in the forest, the country still retains its fascination for many women. To satisfy their needs charming new models are created, and these may be donned with equal grace when she returns to town and all the interesting and varied events that occupy a place on her calendar.

Three attractive originations that possess pleasing style features are depicted on this page. Prominent is the evening gown which is developed in rich cream faille and Spanish lace. As if to add to its richness a handsome motif of pearl embroidery is placed on the lower part of the corsage and top of the skirt. Exceedingly simple in design, this frock shows a pleasing arrangement of the lace on the bodice, which is cut with a wide spread V shaped decolletage.

To the right is a charming costume for daytime wear, for the modern woman gives much thought to the simple toilettes which she dons when going for a promenade or to indulge in the pleasure of shopping. Kitten's ear cloth in a soft sand color is favorite for this model, which is decidedly youthful looking. The skirt is closely kilted all around the figure, and a touch of brightness is found in the embroidery of silver beads which gives a novel finish to the hem. The upper part seems to suggest the Spanish bolero, and wide bands of bead embroidery add much to the beauty of the origination. On the rather picturesque epaulettes that crest the sleeves appear dainty embroidered motifs, while a band of fur is introduced near the waistline. The collar and cuffs are also fashioned from ermine, a finish that always seems to be approved by Dame Fashion. The hat of black velvet is trimmed with a cluster of soft silk pompoms that fall prettily down the upstanding brim.

At the extreme left is another decidedly attractive costume. Particularly suitable for the young woman, it is developed in a fine gray jersey, adorned with soutache braid and buttons. The skirt reveals a clever arrangement of plaits, while the soutache and button trimming is effectively used to define the pockets that are adroitly place on the sides. This trimming is also introduced with good effect on the little jacket, and the hat, with its broad brim and large pompoms—decidedly Spanish in style—harmonizes well with the costume. A handsome fox fur scarf and muff complete this toilette, for furs are lavishly favored in the dress of the hour.

Only the finest and most lustrous pelts are chosen by the fashionable women this year, for when prosperity holds the land, she delights in choosing the richest and most beautiful furs that she may obtain. Many of the muffs that are now appeariing with the cool days of early fall are exceedingly small. Some of the quaintest are designed with ruffles that are gathered at the ends. Other picturesque shapes seem to have been inspired by Japanese lanterns.

The new stoles also are beautiful, and perhaps an added reason for their popularity is the fact that they may be worn in many novel ways. A rich sable, chosen by a well known society leader, is draped about the waistline. Then the long ends of the stole are crossed in the back, drawn over the shoulders, and the ends, finished with tails, slipped through the girdle in front. As these furs are quite generous in width, they really take the place, to a certain extent at least, of the coat. When worn on warmer days, they may be draped loosely about the figure and then become decorative rather than protective garments.

Furs, too, are generously used for trimming, and one of the loveliest is mole, which is also admired when developed in fascinating wraps and sets. This short haired fur, as well as ermine and Hudson seal, is also chosen for the handsome dress, as it lends itself to the graceful folds that are essential in the smartly fashioned gown.

The same idea of richness is carried out in every department of woman's attire. The new evening gowns are made of magnificent brocades enriched with filmy tulles wherein much metallic embroidery flourishes, as well as scintillating sequins and many other novel trimmings. Among the new modes presented by some of the leading French houses one finds that the slim silhoutte is quite prominent. Hems are uneven and often are developed into short pointed trains. One particularly good looking dancing frock is fashioned with a transparent scalloped hem, while another is made with an uneven front, as the material comes down on the bias.

Wraps, too, are extremely gorgeous, and while they are frequently collared and cuffed with fur, sometimes the entire upper portion of the wrap is made of rich pelts. An interesting development in blouses is the favor shown to peplum modes. Women now realize that the shirt waist and skirt with rigid lines of demarkation really spoil the lines of the figure, and as Paris has already given this voge her approval, the American woman now welcomes this novelty.

Many of the new modes are designed to slip on over the head and require no fixing at the waistline. Some show the square cut neck and are fastened at one side. Trimmings are varied, although embroidery in dull colored metals and in beads is much liked. As a rule, a belt is combined with these models, but the placing of it is usually left to the wearer's judgment. Frequently such belts are generous in length, so that they may be draped around the figure twice and the ends held in place by a quaint clasp or sometimes they are merely knotted.

Occasionally fur is used, but it is generally confined to the peplum and the sleeves, while decorative little pockets also add to the interest of these models. Varied indeed, are the fabrics from which they are fashioned. There are sheer Georgette silks and satins in any shades that harmonize well with the tailored suit, while velvets are also chosen for winter wear, and metal motifs are ofttimes found on these, or gaily colored wools are embroidered with novel motifs. Other blouses are fashioned with sleeves of Georgette crepe, the fronts and backs being of silk or satin, for indeed, now that the peplum has been accepted by fashion's leaders, one may expect to see many fascinating developments of this really beautiful and practical mod

MEN AND WOMEN

SEATED at his own comfortable board, the average American has little comprehension of what food economy across the water actually means. Elimination from the daily fare of the better cuts of meat, of ice cream and cake and salads, a reduction in the quantity of butter used, and perhaps the complete abstinence from milk is the picture he draws in his mind. Nothing more enlightening on the subject than the following order issued by the burgomaster of Eckernforde, Schleswig-Holstein, has come to our notice:

Real Economy.

"Any one discovered peeling potatoes before boiling or throwing away peelings will be punished by three months' imprisonment or a fine of $360." Again, in a Berlin paper we read of the table manners there being revolutionized to aid in food economy:

"In peace time one left the remains of the gravy on his plate. But war time and the scarcity of fats has produced a change, and now the gravy may be absorbed with bits of bread. Leaving pieces of bread on the plate, which used to be a rule of polite society in many places, now is not justified. Gnawing at bones, if it is not done in too ugly a fashion, provokes no disgust."

Bernhardt's Farewell.

Undoubtedly to her the most tragic rôle to which she ever lent her art was enacted at the initial performance in Pittsburgh a couple of weeks ago, when Sarah Bernhardt, the most famous woman alive today, and in many ways one of the most remarkable persons of her sex who ever lived, played to an audience of 100 people, fourteen of whom were dramatic critics and their guests. At performances that followed, it is recorded, she played to even smaller crowds.

Nothing is more pathetic than approaching or present old age of a famous theatrical or grand opera star. If they go into retirement they are apt to become reminiscent and see little but degeneration in the art of the hour. If they do not retire there are most foreboding things to reckon with—a public which is fickle, chameleonlike, and with little of "that sentiment which remains forever kindled." And, greatest bugbear of all, there is the new generation to cope with.

The gratitude of the public for past favors is not to be relied upon, for, as the French cynic said, "Gratitude is for favors to come, not for those received. Moreover, it is not essentially American to buy a noble sentiment with the price exacted for seats for performances such as those of the Divine Sarah.

The pleasure going public is intolerant of vitality that shows signs of lessening, of beauty when it begins to atrophy, or of anything indicating physical decadence.

The lesson of other famous failures in comebacks, with Adelina Patti heading the list, seems to offer little in the way of discouragement. On the other hand, the reverence that is attached to the names of those who have retired permanently before their voices became shadows of their former quality and their bodies showed signs of physical decay should evoke more imitation.

* *

Two Women Gossiping.

Two women were gossiping, as two women have a perfect (birth) right to do, even though the subject be less alluring from the gossip angle than the Heil-Moore scandal. One was a friend of the poison-type victim. The other wasn't.

Said the former: "It's a shame that Mrs. Moore should get any unpleasant publicity over this thing. She certainly is to be commended for her stand in facing the limelight to save other women who might be likewise hounded by this man."

Said the pessimistic one: "I have my doubts as to whether any other woman is in any especial danger from that source. My private opinion is that the woman's motive was not as noble as the press reports might indicate."

"I can't see how you can think such a thing," said her friend.

"Well," said the doubting Thomas, "I have my opinions about women who seek the limelight in a situation like that. You never know a woman whose conduct is above reproach to find herself in such a predicament. She must have given the man some encouragement in the early stages of the game."

"But she didn't, though; she said she didn't," protested the one with faith in her fellow woman.

"Well, I have read his letters, and while I am not trying to defend him I don't believe there could be the continuity of events and expressions there is in his sequence of letters were he repulsed as the lady said she repulsed his every advance. Why did she accept a birthday gift from him?"

"The gift was flowers," scored the friend of the woman, "and she couldn't return them."

"She acknowledged them, and evidently had written a friendly note about them," was the rejoinder of the other. "She admitted writing him at Detroit."

Just then they had to get off the car, but on the way out the cynical one, the friend of neither Mrs. Moore nor Mr. Heil, said: "It hasn't been proved yet that the man wrote the letters, anyway."

"Well, why didn't he deny it to Mr. Loeb, then?" asked the other.

"I don't know. He might have had a more decent motive than one might credit him with."

"At any rate," continued the latter, "I don't care whether he did or he didn't. The point I'm trying to make is that a woman who goes along minding her own business and rebuffing advances immediately they spring up will never find her name the cud for the gossip monger to chew on."

And then they alighted, and probably changed the subject to the fur trimmings they were going to have on their winter suits.

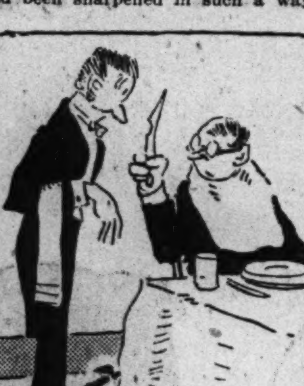
One from the Waiter.

Went into a restaurant one evening and ordered a steak. When I came to use the knife the waiter had put down at my place I discovered that it had been sharpened in such a way as to leave a curved edge, due, no doutb, to the blade being of a poor grade of steel.



I called the waiter and said: "Bring me another knife; I am liable to jerk a tooth out with this one."

He replied: "Sir, if you would use the knife for the purpose for which it was intended there would be no danger of your jerking out a tooth." T. J.

Pretty Hair, That's All.

I have been an artists' model. One painter said, "I like to have Miss K. pose for me because she has the measurements of Venus, classical features, refinement, and poses well." A woman who boarded where I did and knew nothing about me nor my work said, "Miss K. has rather pretty hair, and that is all." M. L. K.

"Goodnight Corns! We Use 'Gets-It!'"

3 Drops in 2 Seconds. That's All. "GETS-IT" Does the Rest. Never Fails.

"Really, I never could see how some few people use the most difficult and painful way they can find to get rid of corns They'll wrap their toes up with bandages into a package that fills their shoes full of feet and makes corns so painful they've got to walk sideways and wrinkle up their faces. Or they use salves that eat right into the toe and make it raw and sore, or they'll use plasters that make the corns bulge, or pick and gouge at their corns and make the toes bleed. Funny, isn't it? 'GETS-IT' is the simple, modern wonder for corns. Just put 3 drops on. It dries instantly. No pain, fuss or trouble. The corn, callus or wart loosens and comes off. Millions use nothing else."

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are

Paradoxical.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

IF your birthday falls during the week beginning today you are a true child of Scorpio, whose meaning, it might be well to explain, isn't to be intimately connected with the dreaded insect of that name other than through its qualities of tenacity and attachment. Your tribe is Simeon, meaning, "He who hears or obeys"; your planets, the Asteroids and Mars. The former are the lungs of the solar system and give strength to the breathing powers and added vitality to the system; the latter, the planet of patriotism, love of humanity, and of the family, so where it is strong it gives a maternal love that is unusual.

You will make an excellent public official, as the public ideas are your laws, and love of work thoroughly done is second nature to you. You have a great respect also for persons of wealth and high position, and with this quality comes a high regard for appearances and good taste in dress.

People get the idea that what you don't know isn't worth knowing, for you are naturally possessed with a remarkable faculty for learning and retaining much valuable knowledge, and you have no hesitation whatever about spreading this abroad. In fact, you have untold assurance in your own abilities, so much so that you make a good many enemies who have no scruples about denouncing your egotism. All this is really because you can'e accept criticism about yourself, whereas you are ever ready to condemn the faults of others.

Perhaps this attribute is due to the fact that you are like the element with which this sign is associated, for you love the ocean and are often found as sailors or in other transportation work. You seem to keep the coolness of your native element, the water, always with you, and if in excess, it makes you seem cold, unsympathetic and unfeeling. As one writer expresss it: "You Scorpio people are quite like our Puritan forefathers, stern, forceful, dealing out severe justice; industrious, but having no patience with those who are not like him; harsh in his criticism of others, but brooking neither criticism nor interference himself."

But more often than not all this is softened and beautified by a devoted love of home, where your tender helpfulness far outshines all your other traits. So it is that many call you a paradox! And if they also find that underneath what they thought was such a stormy exterior you are sensitive and easily hurt, they will put all the more emphasis upon this term. You are just as much of a puzzle to yourself as to others, and as a result periods of great depression often come upon you. Then you want to hide like your prototype, under a big stone, and say bitter things that may sting to any one who dares disturb you. Come out into the sunshine, that's what you should do.

Mystery fascinates you; no labyrinth is too dep or winding for you to investigate; you are absolutely fearless when it comes to getting at the source of things. Even if you stand in danger of being blown up you're going to know the real composition and nature of the substance you have in hand. If a physician, you will look beyond the physical symptoms of your diagnosis, so it is more than likely that you can reach your greatest heights as a physician or surgeon, adding, as you do, to this power great magnetic presence, remarkable skill with your hands, cool, clear headed judgment, indomitable will, immovable self control, and an absolute belief in your own powers.

Yours is a great field, for besides your talents in the medical profession you may also succeed as a chemist, jurist, lawyer, clergyman, musician or orator. In the line of music, however, you so dislike the technique side that you are not apt to set the world on fire; you may get there in your own way, but there will be such a dash of weirdness about your music that it won't interest many.

You are apt to marry young, and if your partner dies you will marry again. A union with Virgo, Aug. 24-Sept. 23, will be a sympathetic one, or, possibly, an equally satisfactory partner might be found in Cancer, June 23-July 22. You Scorpio women will also find a congenial life companion in Libra, Sept. 24-Oct. 23, and in your own sign.

Your two most fortunate weeks are those beginning Feb. 19 and July 3, and you should be careful during the week beginning April 13. Your colors are scarlet, golden brown and black; birthstone, the topaz.

She Was Childish.

"Dear Miss Blake: I was a true friend to a fellow, and about six weeks later, I had a quarrel with him. It wasn't so serious, but still I refused to speak to him. Any time he came to visit my brother he said hello to me, that was for about four weeks; now I kind of like him again. Will you please advise me how should I start to speak to him in order to keep friends with him again. C. S.

Too bad, "C. S.," that you were so childish as not to speak to the young man. It seems to me that if he has very much spirit he will not be very responsive now since you have changed your mind again that you would like to speak to him. An apology from you would seem the better way to renew the friendship.

* *

Here's a Hot One.

"Dear Miss Blake: Your remarks anent 'A Red Head—Beware' show conclusively that you ought to be in some other line of business than making such falsifying assertions. It is evident that it is 'sour grapes' or some personal grievance that caused the malicious reference. You have a great deal to learn and more than one red headed person pities your ignorance.

"A WHITE HEAD."

I am sorry, White Head, that you took my remarks about the red headed disposition so seriously. Let me assure you there was no malice meant, nor was it a case of "sour grapes," since I have been for many years the poor but honest possessor of locks of the color you accuse me of maligning, so you see I ought to know the disposition pretty well.

* *

The Ways of Women.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man and am in love with a young lady, but she seems to like me sometimes and sometimes she does not. She will go with me for a while, break up with me and stay away a little while, and then come back. Please advise what I should do to keep her or what I should do. Should I take her back each time? P."

Don't lose heart, Peter, if the girl is worth winning. Keep in the race until you are made to believe that some one else is preferred above you. Faint heart never won fair lady, you know.

* *

It Means a Lot.

"Dear Miss Blake: What does it mean if your birthday is on the 8th of December? M. K."

It means a lot, so much that I haven't space here to repeat; if you really wish to know, you'll have to send me a stamped, addressed envelope, and don't forget to repeat your birth date.

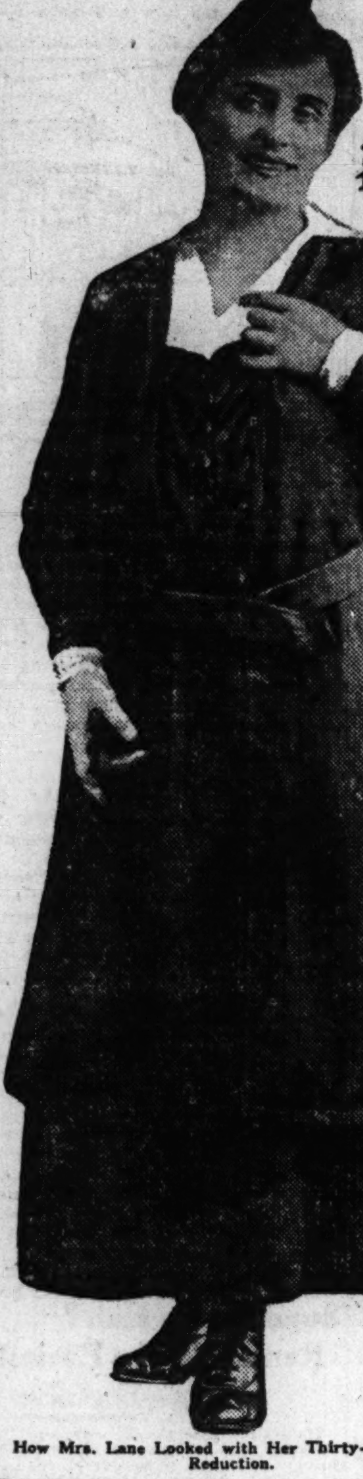
* *

Sisters Should Write.

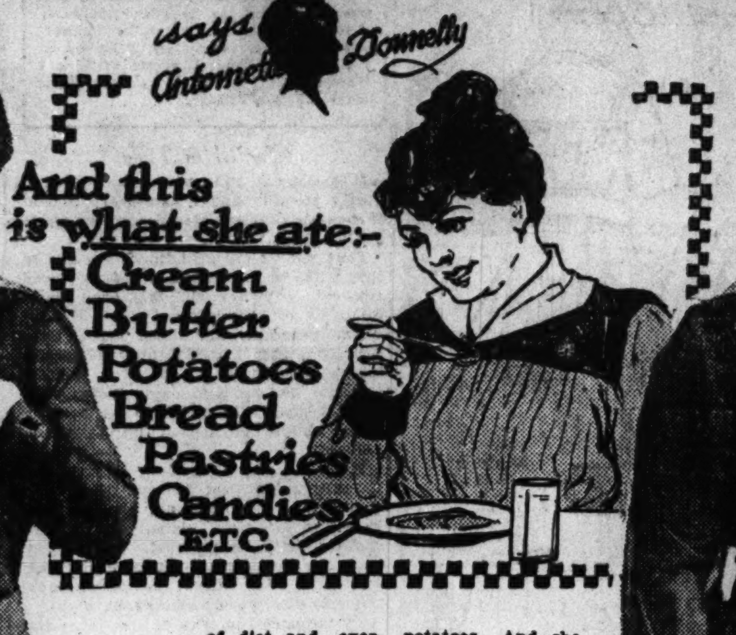
"Dear Miss Blake: I am engaged to a young man whose sisters and relatives live at a distance. Since we have been engaged we have been arguing whether it is the sisters' or the fiancée's place to write first. A.

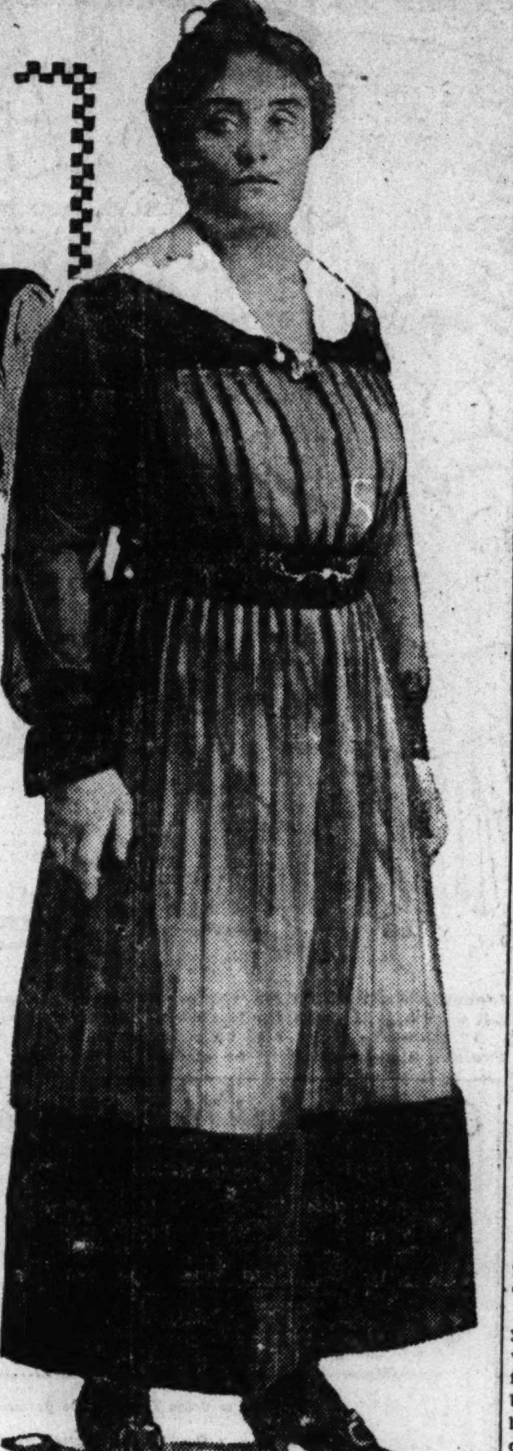
The advances should come from the young man's sisters.

A Willful Diet and a Lazy Summer Cost Mrs. Lane a Woeful Waist and 14 Lbs.



How Mrs. Lane Looked with Her Thirty-six Pound Reduction.





How She Looked with Her Fourteen Pound Gain.

REMEMBER Mrs. Eva Lane, whom I reduced thirty-six pounds in six weeks? Remember she weighed 204½ pounds when I took her in hand, and when I got through with her at the end of six weeks she weighed 168½ pounds? Of all this I told you in a series of articles last spring. Remember her waist was reduced from 37¼ inches to 30 inches?

The six weeks during which I reduced her thirty-six pounds began in February and ended March 14. She looked fully ten years younger and was ten times improved in general appearance because of the reduction. And she felt so well and happy!

For two weeks after March 14 Mrs. Lane kept up the diet and the exercise without my supervision and she accomplished a further reduction of four pounds by her own effort.

But now comes the sad, sad part of my story. 'Tis the old, old tale of human perversity and fickleness of purpose, of which no human is more guilty than the fat woman!

She's willing to work to get herself down to a certain weight because her husband has expressed himself violently on the excess avoirdupois or because she realizes the general disapproval of heavy femininity. She's willing to go without the food that lays on pounds thickly until a desirable symmetry has been accomplished. Having gained this and her husband's admiration and the general approval of a critical public, what does she do? She slumps on her job. Nine times out of ten that's exactly what she does! And eight times out of this nine she blames the course of diet and exercise for her own laziness and willful appetite.

Take our friend, Mrs. Lane, for instance. She looked so much younger and so much better when she lost her thirty-six pounds you'd think she would have made a break-proof resolve not to let herself get back one pound of that excess flesh she carried about before.

Her gain was fourteen pounds since March—seven months ago—which amounts to two pounds a month. Think of it! How easy it would have been to keep that two pounds off. And, incidentally, you must realize when it took seven months for fourteen pounds to accumulate, the original work of reducing must have been an effective process. If her muscles hadn't been hardened by the exercises I gave her in the work of reducing her in the first place she probably would have been back to pretty nearly her original weight by now, instead of which she still can boast a loss of twenty-two pounds from her original 204½ registration.

If Mrs. Lane had depended on a diet alone to reduce her, without the assistance of any exercises to replace with muscle the fatty accumulations, by this time she would have with her summer's lazy course of food and exercise many more pounds' gain than fourteen to report.

It would have been the simplest matter for Mrs. Lane to have kept at bay the two pounds a month. The very fact that the gain was so slow proves this. A half hour exercise daily and the elimination of the fat producing foods would have done it.

Instead this is what my model did: She gave up practicing any exercises at all, even developing a too indolent spirit to take her daily walk. I gave Mrs. Lane at the close of my work with her instructions to practice daily the four most important exercises that I had prescribed in the work of reducing her, it not being necessary to do all sixteen embodied in the original work of training down. Altogether fifteen minutes morning and evening would have been all that was necessary to effect desired results. The daily walk, of course, was in addition.

Then I gave Mrs. Lane a list of foods which she should eat sparingly of—the foods that make fat—and I supplied her with a list of foods to substitute. These latter were appetizing and healthy. But just because it was easier to cook potatoes instead of preparing some other less fattening vegetable Mrs. Lane ate potatoes. And she drank at each meal two cups of coffee with generous supplies of cream and sugar. She ate breakfast foods with cream and bacon almost every morning for breakfast, and white bread thickly spread with butter; whereas she might easily have eliminated the cereals with cream, eaten toast thinly spread with butter instead of the white bread thickly spread, and the bacon could have been substituted for eggs in various forms or other meats less fattening.

Even through the day Mrs. Lane committed offenses against every common sense rule for keeping weight down. Her self-indulged passion for ice cream during the warm summer months no doubt contributed a couple of pounds, and her love of chocolates and bonbons was pampered outrageously.

For luncheons and dinners not a bit of her old time caution did she observe. She ate anything and everything she wanted to, and when she wanted to, with the result that potatoes, corn, rice, macaroni, milk, butter, cheese, rich gravie, pastries, and rich desserts were all too frequently employed in the preparation of her meals.

Now, all one has to be possessed of to realize that weight will not stay down without a degree of care is common sense. Once weight is gotten down by good exercising, it doesn't require the same vigilance as during the process of reducing. But vigilance is necessary after reduction. And that's why I am telling you, my readers, of the indiscretions of my model, Mrs. Lane.

In other words, your work of maintaining a symmetrical figures does not end with a course of diet and exercise. If you are inclined toward flesh, you have to keep your eye constantly on your diet and your body sufficiently exercised to give the flesh no chance to "set."

Answers to Inquiries.

MAE B. F.: If your system is run down and your hair is falling out, start in to build up your health by blood building foods and right living. At the same time some local treatment is necessary to rid your head of dandruff and to stimulate the oil glands. I have a formula for shampoo for oily hair which I shall be glad to send you if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

* *

IRMA: The squatting exercise is excellent in helping to overcome constipation. This should be practiced for about ten minutes night and morning: Stand erect, with feet apart, hands resting on hips. Rise upon the toes, then sink the body to the floor, bending the knees sharply until the thighs and legs are doubled upon each other and the weight of the entire body is supported by the toes. The trunk must be maintained perpendicular throughout.

* *

CHARLES H.: Daily exercise in the open air sharpens the appetite, quickens the digestion, and greatly promotes the assimilation and subsequent oxidization of the food. In fact, systematic bodily exercise is absolutely essential to the maintenance of good digestion and the proper circulation of the blood. Dyspepsia and despondency are the handmaidens of physical idleness. Good digestion, all things being equal, is the happy portion of nearly all who work and toil with their hands or use their bodies in some form of physical exercise. Outside of the realm of diet, no other physical practice so greatly influences bodily nutrition as physical exercise.

* *

ESTELLE: I suggest that you consult a skin specialist about the blood pimple on your nose. He only could tell you what to do for it after seeing it.

* *

P. L.: Don't you know whether it is a wrinkle or not? How can you expect me to give you advice, never having seen you, if you don't know whether it is a wrinkle or what it is? Facial massage, the movements of which are too lengthy to publish in the column, combined with a good skin food, may overcome the condition if it is a wrinkle, but I shall be glad to send you my instructions if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

* *

OLLIE: The bicycle pedalling exercise will reduce the thighs, buttocks, and hips. with hands clasping knees, thighs fixed on abdomen, foot extended, toes pointed outward, push legs forward alternately with resistance. This is one of the exercises I gave Mrs. Eva Lane in my work of reducing her thirty-six pounds in six weeks. If you are interested in this work I shall be glad to send the series to you if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

* *

PHEBE: I think the yellow, sallow condition of your face is due to inactive liver. The liver must be kept in a healthy condition if you want to have a clear complexion. Try taking a teaspoonful of olive oil every morning three-quarters of an hour before breakfast. If this is distasteful you could substitute the unsweetened juice of a lemon in a glass of water before breakfast.

* *

EVELYN H.: The only effective way to remove hair from the face is by electricity, and by an expert. Don't use a depilatory on your face. Those three pimples are a source of worry to me also, as I cannot tell you what to do with them, not having seen you, but you may rest assured that if they have been there for a couple of years you should see a skin specialist about them.

* *

MRS. C. R.: Bananas as a food more nearly resemble the cereals than they do the fruits, as they contain starch more largely in the place of sugar. They contain a small amount of fat and, in common with most fruits, about 1 per cent of salts, having little cellulose, and are constipating in their effect, whereas the majority of fruits are laxative. The banana must be thoroughly masticated, and is better as a food if baked.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Mary King.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

CONSIDERATION FOR THE BOSS

"WOMEN are inclined to carry consideration for their boss to an absurd extramity, especially if the boss is a man," remarked, in my hearing, a woman who holds an important executive position. Her assistant, to whom the remark was made, smiled and said he didn't think her statement was true, as it was his impression that the average working girl was only too willing to take advantage of her employer whenever it was possible for her to do so with impunity.

So they argued for a while and as I listened my own impression was that this man's judgment was perhaps right, but as individual workers gradually emerged from this general classification and took form in my mind, and the characteristics of the many business women I knew passed in review before me, I was obliged to reverse my judgment and acknowledge that there was some foundation to the statement that working girls possessed an exaggerated sense of consideration for the men who employed them and often this consideration was out of all proportion to the treatment accorded them by their employers.

Most of the girls of my acquaintance, I realized, possessed what they supposed was a high sense of honor in relation to their job and their boss, but which was in reality a distorted idea of duty which, when noticed by their employers, aroused a feeling of annoyance, or at least a surprised amusement.

Of course, it is to be expected that an employé is to act in an honorable manner toward her employer, and tender him the same fair treatment she expects to receive from him; whether she receives it or not, however, should not alter her attitude toward him.

But there are some people who can do nothing in moderation and consequently spoil things for themselves by carrying even their virtues to excess.

As an example I am reminded of a young girl who since leaving school has worked as stenographer in one office for two years. She is bright and capable and before she was in the position long had mastered all the details of the office routine, and was even able to relieve her employer of dictating many of his letters by answering them herself.

Her working hours were unusually long and her duties hard. Her salary as a beginner was not great, but when she failed to increase it after six months she was disappointed, but determined to stick it out a while longer. When after two years of conscientious and hard work she was getting only a dollar a week more than when she started she was discouraged and weary of the job and decided to look elsewhere for work.

She was fortunate in soon being promised a position as secretary to a man who held an official position with a large firm, which firm had a reputation of paying exceptionally liberal salaries to its employés. She asked for a week's time in which to notify her present employers of her resignation. This was granted to her, but it was impressed upon her that she would be expected to report for work in her new position on a specified date.

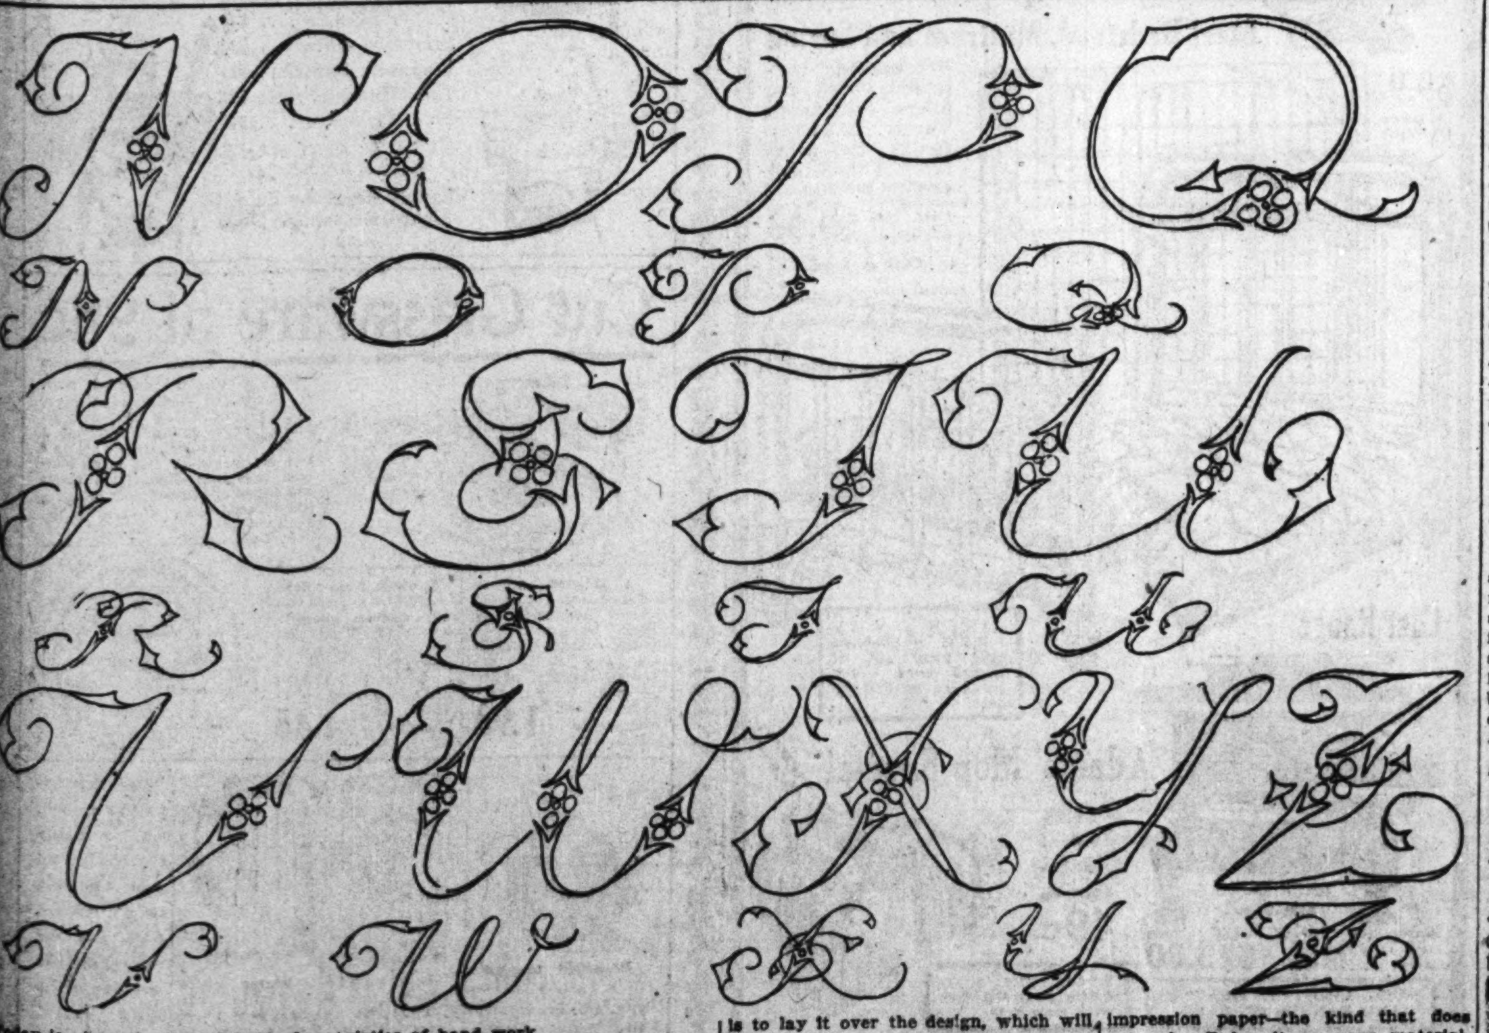
Garrett Price

The day before she was expected to appear at her new post, her prospective employer received a note from her saying that the man for whom she worked was out of town and although she had written resigning her position, she had not heard from him and therefore she could not leave until she was released by him. Her new employer gave her three days in which to settle her affairs and when the three days were up she telephoned him to say that although she had written again she was still waiting to hear from her boss. At this the man who was about to hire her lost all patience and as he was left in the lurch with his former secretary gone and found it necessary to have some one in the position immediately, he hired another woman.

After the second week had passed the girl phoned him to say that she was now at liberty to take the position he offered and was surprised but enlightened to find the place no longer open to her.

When she finally secured another position she was a wiser girl, as she had learned that she could ill afford to sacrifice her chances for advancement in the business world for a ridiculous sense of duty to an unjust and careless employer.

Second Half of Embroidered Flower Alphabet.



Today is given the second half of an embroidered flower alphabet. Such an alphabet is invaluable at Christmas time for the initialing of presents all varieties of hand work.

In using the printed design from the paper the directions are as follows: If the material is sheer, the easiest way is to lay it over the design, which will show through plainly, and draw over each line with a hard, sharp lead pencil. If your linen is heavy, buy a piece of impression paper—the kind that does not rub off—lay it on your material, place the design over it, and trace with a hard pencil. You will find the design neatly transferred.

The Fall on the Horn.

I went to get on a crowded street car with a horn I had bought for our automobile. I got on the car, slipped and fell on the horn, making it honk loudly. I was helped to my feet amidst the laughter of the crowd and my embarrassment. E. S.

He Mixed His Tunes.

It was our first Sunday morning in the small city where we had recently moved. I decided to take my small brother with me to church.

In the opening hymn I noticed him singing lustily and out of tune. We sat in a corner by ourselves and he seemed so happy I did not stop him.

But when the audience stopped singing to my mortification Jackie didn't! "Gobble, gobble, gobble," he sang triumphantly in the stillness. He had been singing his kindergarten song for Thanksgiving. MRS. G. W.

Leapfrog with a Lady.

I was walking down Sixth street in Springfield. Three young ladies were walking ahead of me. I was looking across the street. As we were walking along one of the young ladies stooped over just ahead of me to tie her shoe and to my astonishment and horror I walked right up against her and in order not to fall I had to straddle on over leapfrog fashion. She fell over, I apologized, but I can feel discomfort even now when I think of it. J. B. S.

She Was Reproached.

It happened on a hot Sunday afternoon on a camp ground. I am a girl of 21, and had been staying on the grounds a few days with a girl friend. The auditorium was rapidly filling for the afternoon session, and I told Mabel I would run along and keep a good seat for her while she finished doing up her hair.

I found space for two in a good location and settled myself on the outer edge of the long seat, intending to keep the next inner seat for her. A nice looking elderly woman stopped at my side, saying, "May I have that inner seat, dear?" I explained audibly, "I am sorry, but I am holding that for a friend who will be here in a minute."

Just then I saw Mabel approaching and moved along, expecting her to drop into the seat, when to my horror a large, portly man weighing at least 250 pounds, with a head absolutely bald, sat down beside me. I could hear suppressed giggles around me, and the nice elderly woman turned around to look at me reproachfully.

Just then the portly person leaned over and picked up the fan which was lying in my lap, saying, "Terrible hot day, ain't it? Let me work this for both of us." H. V.

How I Won My Mate.

How did you win the love of your mate? What measures, if any, did you adopt? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Won My Mate." Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

Always Really Dressed.

My ill shaped, skinny arms, and scrawny neck have been the cause of many a severe heartache throughout my life, especially when I contrasted them with the plump arms and rounded necks of my companions. Of course I always covered my defects carefully and avoided the sheer garments that my more fortunate sisters found so becoming. To my astonishment the other day my husband of eight months said to me: "The thing about you that first attracted me was your modesty. I never saw you wear a peekaboo waist even once, and it was so refreshing to see a girl who was always really dressed instead of looking half naked that you bet I kept right after you until you married me!" R. R.

Long Trip with a Grip.

It was on an ocean voyage to Yokohama that I won my mate. Eight hours after receiving a cable from my father requesting me to sail for Japan and spend the summer there with him I was aboard the ship. To my utter dismay I discovered a few minutes before sailing that my steamer trunk had not arrived. I could do nothing then except smile and start on a twenty-six day sea voyage with only a hand grip. I met many charming people, among them a naval officer who is now my husband. He discovered two daye before we reached Yokohama the conditions I had been traveling under. He said he knew at once that I was the companion he wanted if I could be so happy and cheerful under such circumstances. We were married one week after I reached Yokohama. M. J.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Promised to Do Everything.

During our courtship he was a hot headed and obstinate fellow, who wanted me to obey him in everything. Many times I hesitated to marry him, fearing he would be too bossy. Telling him my fear, he promised to do everything for me after we were married, even if he had to carry water a mile, he said. We were living in town then, but after two years we moved to the country and had to carry water not far from a mile. He did this three times a day before we got our well, making good his promise. G. L.

Not for Bridal Parties.

My disillusion came so soon after marriage that it almost took my breath away.

The night of my marriage there had been an awful fire in the neighborhood, and for blocks around all was confusion. The carriage which had been ordered failed to show up owing to the disorder. So we walked to the church.

On returning from the ceremony I saw what I took to be our carriage and excitedly exclaimed, "O, look, there's the carriage, " when my newly acquired husband, with a look that completely withered me, said: "What's the matter with you, anyway? That's the patrol wagon." C. B.

No Curlers Needed.

My hair is naturally curly. Thus it always looked the same whether I was just out of bed in the morning or had spent a half hour before my dresser combing it.

My parents kept a hotel. One day a young doctor came to board with us for a few weeks. As time went on we fell in love and became engaged. Then he told me I first drew his attention by always coming down to breakfast at 6:30 a. m. with my hair curled so beautifully and never appearing with it done up on curlers.

Stupid man! He asked me to promise I would always do that way after we were married, and I promised. E. W.

Still Pays the Fare.

Before they were married he would help her on the car and be polite to her while paying the fare. But now that the knot has been tied he rushes in ahead of her and pays the fare, making for the nearest seat. H. D.

Simple Laxative Remedy Best for Constipation

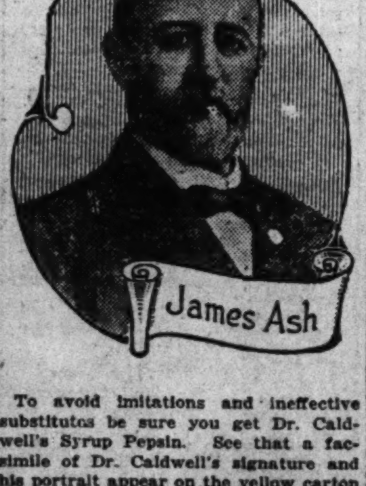
Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Gave Satisfaction When Nothing Else Would.

Nearly every one, at one time or another, suffers from constipation, or inactive bowels, and one of the few conclusions upon which the doctors agree is that regularity of the bowels is an essential to good health.

In the family medicine chest of most well-ordered households will be found one or more of the various remedies recommended for the relief of constipation. In the majority of homes today the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is recognized as the standard laxative. Druggists everywhere report a constantly increasing demand for this splendid remedy which is sold for fifty cents a bottle.

Mr. James Ash, 102 Green St., Cumberland, Md., wrote to Dr. Caldwell that he found Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the most effective remedy for constipation he had ever used and that he always keeps a bottle of it on hand for use when necessary.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, and does not gripe or strain, but acts gently and brings relief in an easy, natural manner. Its freedom from opiates or narcotic drugs makes it the ideal family laxative.



To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure you get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for whom this advertisement is published.

CUTICURA HEALED ECZEMA IN 30 DAYS

Had Been on Hand Three Months, Itched Causing Constant Pain.

"I was affected with eczema on my left wrist. It began in pimples and the skin was red and sore, and crusted and scaled. The pimples got white and itched causing constant pain, and looked awful bad.

"I began to treat it and it spread over half my wrist and the side of my hand. It had been on my hand about three months when I commenced to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days it was better, and in thirty days I was healed sound and well." (Signed) Chas. O. Baker, Shoals, Ind., April 22, 1916.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are not only most valuable for the treatment of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness, dandruff and irritated scalps, but their great mission is to prevent such conditions. Cuticura Soap used exclusively for the toilet and Cuticura Ointment occasionally as needed guard the skin and scalp in most cases against any troubles of this kind.

For Trial Free by Return Mail address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. H, Boston." Sold throughout the world.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

Warned in Time.

A fine young man was calling on me pretty steadily and I had every reason to believe that we would soon be more than friends.

That winter my grandmother came to live with us and while I dearly loved the old lady her old fashioned ways annoyed me sometimes. One evening when grandma had been more than usually fussy I came into the parlor where my young friend was waiting to take me out and said: "My goodness! I simply hate old people around! They should be locked up by themselves."

It was a mean, tactless remark, but I really meant not a word of it. The young man said nothing, but he never called after that night, and a few months later he married.

In the meantime I had learned that he had a dear old mother of whom he thought the world, and as he was her only support she was to live with him if he married. Naturally he did not want a wife that said she hated old people. E. J.

For Love and Money.

I was a junior at college, spending my vacation at a summer resort. There I met a wonderful blonde, tall, willowy, and charming, a well seasoned belle of society. She accepted all my attentions and I fell desperately in love; she was the one I wanted most to win.

I dared not speak, as I had my way to make in the world; but after returning to college I did not want to run the risk of losing her, and so I wrote an impassioned love letter, pouring forth my heart and soul, begging her to wait for me. That finished, I also wrote my father asking for an increase in my allowance. I had many florists' and confectioners' bills to meet.

I directed the envelopes for my two letters and—as I was soon so tragically to discover—sent my proposal to father, the young woman receiving the demand for more money. L. K. D.

Too Much of a Spender.

I was a clerk in a shoe store at $15 per week. For a year Julia and I had been keeping company and I was so "dippy" about her that I sent her bonbons and cut flowers in a way that would make a millionaire feel like a grand opera star on a one night stand. Finally after I was dead sure I had made a proper impression with my lavish atentions, I proposed with the assurance of one whose conquest is certain. Believe me, I was bowled over some when she charmingly and convincingly said: "I'd have even less sense than you if I accepted you, for you have spent nearly your whole salary on me now. When I get married it will be to a fellow with brains enough to keep out of debt." E. L. R.

Telling a Secret.

My suitor had been writing stories for a magazine. His greatest and most recent success was being published anonymously, a fact which made it popular and promised him a large sum of money, so long as the author's name be kept a secret. Of course, I was admitted into the secret, and, thinking an intimate friend of his knew the circumstances also, I started to discuss the story and its author with my suitor's friend. The latter, I found out, was no friend of my lover, but a publisher on a rival magazine. The author of the story was soon made known to the world, and his good fortune "nipped in the bud." I must add that our little romance did not "blossom into a flower" either. M. D.

Too Absent Minded for Her.

I met my best girl downtown late one afternoon and we walked to the car together. There was a crowded rush to climb aboard and I jumped into it in my usual hurry to be homeward bound. After the car had proceeded a few blocks and while hanging to a strap and reading my paper it suddenly dawned on me that I had completely forgotten the dearest one in all the world to me. I got her on the telephone that evening, but when she found who it was on the wire she hung up the receiver. She refuses to answer my notes, she is not at home when I call, and I have not seen her since. M.

Scolding His Stenographer.

I lost the girl I loved by a display of my nasty temper. We were engaged and I was certainly a happy man.

One busy day at the office my stenographer made a foolish blundering mistake, a mistake that the firm would have to make good. I sent for the girl and in my anger my temper got the best of me and I shouted and scolded and forgot to be a gentleman.

The next day I had quite forgotten the incident when the mail man handed me a letter and a small box. The box contained my ring and the letter read: "I just happened to have come into your outer office yesterday and I overheard your conversation with your stenographer. If you can talk that way to your help, I can imagine your language to your wife amid the little annoyances of daily life. I don't care for the job.—Nellie."

Curses on that tongue of mine. H. K. C.

Superfluous Hair? Remove It the Easiest Way—Dissolve It

There's only one simple, sure, quick and thorough way to get rid of superfluous hairs, and that is to dissolve them away. If you have never tried this way before, you will be surprised at the ease with which it is done. Just moisten the hairs with wonderful

Sulfo Solution

Every hair will at once begin to shrivel,—dissolve away. In a few moments, no matter how light or heavy the hair-growth, it will be absolutely and thoroughly removed; and the skin will be as soft, white and smooth as though you never had superfluous hairs.

With the low-cut, transparent and sheer gowns now all the fashion, it is absolutely necessary to have the skin free from all superfluous hair. Why use powders and liquids that irritate and spot the skin when Sulfo Solution will remove every hair quickly and thoroughly without leaving a mark? Use it on arms, shoulders, face, ankles, and arm-pits.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING·HAND

By MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

When an address or other information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to "The Tribune."

Lonely and Wants Letters.

"I AM 15 and live in a little country town, but am lonely and would like some good correspondents. I do love to write and my friends all say I write the dandiest letters. I do hope some of the Cornerites will write to me soon. E. M. K."

Always in printing such requests as these I feel that I must utter a warning. I cannot put young girls in touch with correspondents unless these can show satisfactory records, so to speak. I do not wish to be the means of introducing girls to the wrong kind of friends, even by letter, and although I have no fear of genuine Cornerites, I dare run no risks of wolves in sheep's clothing getting into the flock. I am sure this will be understood and that those who desire to correspond with E. M. K. or others like her will be prompt to write a little account of themselves when requesting her address.

To Make Home Attractive.

"We have a little home we want to try to pay for during the next two or three years. It will take hard work, but we want to be making the home attractive while we are paying for it. I would like much to receive some flower seeds and cuttings. I have little to offer in return, but I think I could send some china berry seeds to any one who wanted them. We think they are pretty. There are four of us in the family, my husband and myself and two little girls. One is old enough to go to school.

"A. L. H."

The china berry seeds seem always to be in demand, but even without those I am sure there are some of the constituency who have flower seeds to give away, especially at this season.

* *

Unable to Walk.

"I am an invalid in poor circumstances, with two children. As I have been sick steadily for seven years I am unable to walk. In order to regain my health it is necessary for me to get out into the fresh air. I am unable to do so unless I can procure a wheeled chair. Has any good friend one I could have? My financial embarrassments make it impossible for me to buy one for myself. I pray that this wish may be granted.

"MRS. A. S."

I am sure some of our Cornerites will be glad to look up this case and see if it is not feasible to procure a chair for her. I have made such appeals as this before and always with good results. I hope this may not prove an exception to the rule.

* *

Not Printed Here.

"Will J. T. or some one kindly inform a reader of how she cured leg weakness? W. M."

I am sorry to say that I have not the address of J. T. and I have doubts as to whether the letter referred to appeared in this department. We do not print medical remedies and I am afraid J. T. will never see this request. I print this explanation for the benefit of Mrs. W. M.

* *

Three Household Hints.

"I have seen many remedies for getting rid of ants, but the best I know is to sprinkle sulphur where they are and strew it around the table legs and under the paper on the shelves. To keep white potatoes from rotting sprinkle slacked lime lightly over them after spreading them out on the floor. I have by this method kept them through the summer and fall and hardly ever found one decayed. Ink can be taken out of white goods by soaking and washing in sweet milk. This is my first time of writing to the Helping Hand. I enjoy it so much and if these items are of any use I will send more. A. B. J."

Such practical hints as these are always of value and we shall hope to have many more of them from the same source.

* *

Some Old Recitations.

"Every one seems to get such good results from the Helping Hand Corner I want to ask for some recitations that I knew as a child but which have been lost from my memory. They are 'The Clock Speaks,' 'Bobbie Shafto,' and 'Green Grow the Rushes.' I have exhausted every means to find these in print for sale. I'll be glad to return the favor in any way I can.

"H. C. C."

The response to appeals of this sort is always so prompt that I have no hesitation in encouraging Mrs. H. C. C. to expect the recitations she desires. Write to me for her address and please do not send the recitation pieces to the office.

* *

Religious Literature to Donate.

"Please state in the Corner that I will be glad to send some good religious literature to any who would like it. It has been a great help to me in the understanding of the Bible and an incentive to follow in the Master's footsteps.

"C. A. N."

I am glad to print this offer, and I am sure it will find ready acceptance. Good religious literature is not always easy to get and those who enjoy it are more than some persons would believe. For the old fashioned persons like myself, who have a prejudice in favor of Sunday reading on the first day of the week, such literature is almost an essential.

* *

Some Things to Give Away.

"I have wanted to write many times and tell of the real happiness I take in reading the Corner and to speak of the help it has been to me and the longing it has created in my heart to help others. I have wondered what I could do and find I have carpet rags I should be happy to give and some new sample silk pieces I would love to pass on to some dear old lady. I also have a large dictionary and many magazines. If you will put me in communication with some one desiring any of these things I will gladly pass them on, providing the transportation is paid. I am sorry not to be able to do this, but times are a little hard for us just now, but I do not despair, and things are never so hard but in some way one may hold out a helping hand. If any one is in doubt on this let that one read what the Cornerites have to say. The work is a blessed one and God will bless and prosper it. I don't know if what I have written is worthy of space, but such as it is I give to thee, hoping the things I have offered may go to those who will really like them. From time to time I will write of anything else I have that may be useful. I may add that I have an old fashioned electric iron, in perfect order, and it would be fine to have in a sewing room where there is a family in which much pressing is done. It would save carrying an iron back and forth.

"G. A. J."

This is another one of our generous readers, and what she offers is sure to be eagerly accepted. I hope the silk samples may go to the "dear old lady" who is sought. I thank the correspondent for what she says of the Corner and the constituency. Such words of encouragement do us all good.

Hints on Making Over.

"Your talk a few weeks ago on making over appealed to me, for I do a good deal of that and love to get 'something out of nothing.' Often if a dress cannot be made over for outside wear it can be converted into a garment for some other purpose. I have some admirable chemises made of the narrow summer dresses of two seasons back. Some have bleached white and other retain the figures, which is not objectionable in these days of lurid underwear. Out of the upper part of an old seven gored china silk skirt I made a dear little empire chemise, ripping out two of the side widths to make the waist, which was pieced with lace to give the proper fullness. Another chemise is an old china silk princess slip cut off at the knees. All are cool and good looking. A good petticoat can be made of a pongee dress, for it is washable. The uses of taffeta and crêpe de chine are obvious to all. I've made dandy aprons of John's shirts, for he wears them out around the neck first and they are perfectly good elsewhere. Some time ago there was a discussion in the Corner on the dishwashing problem. Why have one at all? Did you ever wish when at a sanitary soda fountain, where inside cups of paraffined paper were used, that we women could have the neat devices to fit our dishes at home? I have, and I believe it would be a fine scheme and save lots of time and labor. Is the idea too radical? What do you think? The dishes could be used for every day purposes at least. Here is a hint to fireless cooker cooks: A little vinegar—about a teaspoonful—will improve the old tough fowls, for it kills that strong taste as well as renders the meat more tender. I use it on all tough meats or rabbits when cooking these. Now here is a favor I would like to ask: Have you the recipe for the butterless sour cream cake? It is much like the old fashioned pound cake in texture. I hope you can secure it if you can't supply it yourself. P. M. G."

An interesting and suggestive letter. Our home dressmakers will be glad of the hints of uses to which to put the out of date or worn summer dresses. The idea with regard to the paraffined paper lining to the dishes sounds attractive, but to my mind there are two or three drawbacks connected with it, which I would be happy to have met and answered. In the first place, I am afraid the paper linings are not cheap enough to warrant most of us in throwing them away after a single use—and if they are to be rinsed out and used again there is no gain in having them rather than china or neat enameled ware. In the second place, isn't the fitting them in place as lining and then taking them out more bother than washing the ordinary dishes—especially when there is a chance that something may be spilled on the outside dishes, which makes it necessary to cleanse these? The other day I saw the paraffin jars or cups which can be used for putting up jams and jellies. They are not affected by the fruit being put into them boiling hot and can be used a second time. The paper containers for milk and other fluids are also admirable, but I am afraid they are not quite cheap enough to be bought for the general use of the ordinary family and discarded after a single service. Will some one who has had more experience than I in this matter speak concerning it and let us compare notes on the subject? Dishwashing is undoubtedly a heavy burden, especially when there is a limited supply of hot water, and anything which will help simplify the task would be welcome. I am sorry I can not give the sour cream cake. If some one will send me a recipe for it I shall be happy to print it in the Corner.

HAVE COLOR IN YOUR CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients, and are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects. They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.—Advertisement.

Air As a "Hair Tonic"

There is no better hair tonic, or germicide, than fresh air full of life giving sunshine. The absence of it together with willful neglect, tight fitting hats, etc., is responsible for a large share of hair ugliness and hair loss.

But fresh air and sunshine alone are not enough to correct all these evils. Nature frequently requires the aid of a preparation like "NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE."

HERPICIDE is an absolute necessity to the majority of folks. It prevents dandruff contagion, keeps the hair light and fluffy—the scalp sweet and clean.

Ugly and unsightly hair is quite unnecessary. Begin with Herpicide today. It is guaranteed by the Herpicide Company, Detroit, Michigan, and sold everywhere. Applications at the better barber shops.

Bright Sayings of Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

David came over to play with Dorothy. Dorothy's mother explained to David that she would have to send him home because Dorothy had been naughty and she would have to be punished by depriving her of what she liked best, which seemed to be playing with David. He left, and about fifteen minutes later there was a tiny knock at the door and David said, "I want Dorothy." Dorothy's mother said: "Why, David, Dorothy is being punished and can't play with you," to which David replied, "Well, I wasn't naughty; you needn't punish me." M. D. M.

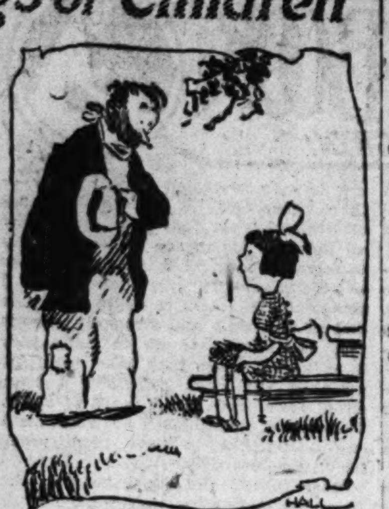
One day as I was sitting on the porch with the twins, aged 4, a teacher came by with about ten little boys. Three of them were tagging on behind playing imaginary drums and horns and so on. When Helen saw them she remarked saucily, "My, them thinks they's a band concert." M. B.

One evening after Robert had missed his accustomed afternoon nap he was cross. His mamma said, "Robert, you must not be so cross." Robert replied, "Well, mamma, if you'd made me take a nap, I wouldn't be so cross. That's what is the matter." A. H.



Mary came in from play and asked her mamma for something to eat. Her mother was busy and told her that she would have to wait a while. Mary, hungry and disappointed, went out the back door, and was sitting on the doorstep. A tramp came up and asked Mary where her mamma was.

"In the house," responded Mary.

"Will you ask her if she will give a hungry man a bite to eat?" said the tramp.

"O, it's no use," said Mary, "I just asked her and she wouldn't give me anything." W. C. K.

Seven year old Dorothy was somewhat homesick while on a visit. When told by her aunt that she had visited there for two weeks when 3 years old and never asked for her mother she replied: "But you must remember I've had four years more of my mother since then." F. B. K.

One day I was visiting a neighbor who has a small boy. The child was asleep when I got there, but soon after was seen coming out of the bedroom, smiling. His mother said, "Why did you wake up so soon, Bobby?" and his answer was, "Well, mother, all the nap comed out of me." L. P.

Isabelle and her brother, between whom there was not quite two years' difference in age, were discussing between themselves how much older one was than the other; "Well," said Isabelle, "I was just going to be 2 when you came, but you came too quick." F. T. Q.

Father, who was shaving himself, said surprisingly: "That's funny that my razor is so dull. It was sharp when I used it the last time." Little Edward, who was standing close by, said: "Yes, dad; it was very sharp when I sharpened my pencils with it this morning." G. B.

Varied Activities of Women.

A woman's thimble is said to have been the means of suggesting the first gas burner.

Miss Jane Stellaine is probably the only woman marine surveyor in this country.

A German professor has proved by actual and delicate measurements that a woman can talk longer than a man.

The Grand Duchess Titiana, eldest daughter of the czar of Russia, and a number of court ladies of Petrograd have adopted a new war style in clothes and have taken an oath never to wear anything but black on every occasion until Russia is victorious over Germany.

There is a woman in Germany who makes a business of funerals, where she takes photos of the mourners and other incidents of the occasion. Those photographs she makes up into albums and then sells them to the family of the deceased. She makes as high as $35 a week from her enterprise.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

Give "California Syrup of Figs" if cross, bilious or feverish.

If your little one is out of sorts, half sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, or has stomach ache, diarrhœa, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs"; then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

Real Love Stories

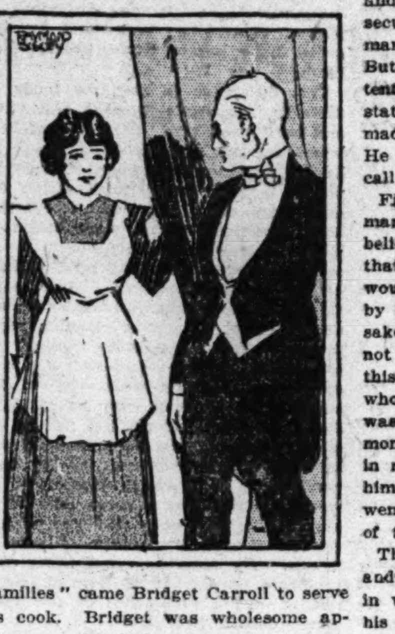
Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

MARRYING BENEATH HIM.

In a state bordering on the Atlantic coast is a town which had an important part in the history of the war of the American revolution. Therefore the members of the "old families" hold their heads high and consider themselves among the elect.



Into the home of one of these "first families" came Bridget Carroll to serve as cook. Bridget was wholesome appearing and light hearted, so it was natural she should attract more attention than usually is paid to a servant in the house. And she was particularly noticed by the only son, who began to try to surreptitiously engage her in conversation now and then. But she paid no attention to him and it began to pique him.

One morning he sprang out from a place of concealment and caught her in his arms and kissed her several times. Then, white with anger, Bridget administered such a slap as the young man had never before experienced. She was sure she would be dismissed for this, but days passed without any evidence that any one knew of the incident beyond the two persons concerned. After a while he met her and tried to humbly apologize, but she would have nothing to do with him. He tried again and again to win her attention without success, then at last he went to his mother and told her he was hopelessly in love with their cook.

The cook was summarily dismissed and the young man sent away. Bridget secured another position and the young man wandered abroad for a long time. But wherever he went the flattering attentions from young women of his own station in life only wearied him and made him miss Bridget all the more. He returned home and tried in vain to call on her.

Finally he wrote her a proposal of marriage. She replied that she did not believe in unequal marriages and knew that all through the future years she would be reminded of her humble origin by his family and friends, and for the sake of her future happiness she would not consider him. The man showed this letter to his father and mother, who were greatly relieved. The father was fool enough to go and offer the girl money if she would promise to persist in refusing his son. Bridget answered him with such cutting sarcasm that he went away feeling like a member of one of the last families.

The young man had never been strong and now he brooded over the only thing in which he had ever been crossed in his life. The family physician warned his parents that he would undoubtedly develop tuberculosis if he continued to worry. In vain did they plead with him. He declared he did not want to live unless he could have Bridget.

The final result of it all was that the old father had to go and plead with his former cook to marry his son. It happened that she really had come to care for him after all his persistency, so she appeared before both parents and asked them first to give their promise that she never would suffer insults or humiliations through being reminded in word or deed of her former inferior position. This promise was never broken.

After her marriage Bridget made every effort to further improve herself in every way and she became one of the most popular of society matrons. Last summer her oldest daughter was one of the prettiest belles at one of the eastern resorts, and her handsome young son is in a fair way to succeed in the banking business, as his grandfather and father have done. 2c Starts this Quaker Valley Masterpiece FROM THE Factory to your Home

You are entitled, as a reader of this paper, to this opportunity to secure one of these magnificent mantel clocks direct from the hands of the makers, on your simple request, without a cent in advance. A two-cent postage stamp is the only expense, and a trip to the nearest mail box the only trouble.

More than twelve thousand of these clocks have now been distributed under this remarkable offer, and the distribution soon must close. Then the price will necessarily advance at least twenty-five per cent, for factory costs have increased tremendously since this great, nation-wide distribution was planned. If you have not yet secured YOUR clock, we urge you, in all earnestness, to sign and return the following coupon TODAY.

We'll send the clock to your home without any money in advance, and you may let it tick off and faithfully record seven hundred and twenty hours before you pay us a cent. During this time you may make any test or comparison you like. If you are not fully convinced that by getting the clock direct from the factory you saved at least five dollars, we want you to send it back at our expense. If it is not in all respects equal to any mantel clock you ever saw in a retail store priced at twelve to fifteen dollars, we don't want you to keep it; for our sole object in making this offer is to show you the great money-saving possibilities of sending to the Quaker Valley for all your home furnishings. If, on the other hand, you are pleased and delighted,—as of course we know you will be,—remit a dollar a month till the special direct-to-you price of $7.95 is paid. No orders from dealers accepted at this price.

This offer means a straight factory-to-home shipment, and is in pursuance of our purpose to make a direct connection between the Quaker Valley and the home of every reliable man or woman reading this paper.

Here is the finest, handsomest mantel clock in the entire Quaker Valley line. It possesses a distinctive, stately beauty. The inspiration for its design was found in the harmony and symmetry of the architecture of the ancient Greek temples. On either side of the ivory-like dial stand two sturdy columns of the Corinthian order, with metal bases and capitals finished in bronze. The metal feet and the ornaments above and below the dial likewise have the rich bronze finish. Elsewhere the finish is a perfect simulation of the finest Italian marble. The delicate blending of light and shade is exquisitely, marvelously beautiful. It is guaranteed a perfect time-keeper, and back of this guarantee stands a successful factory record of more than a hundred years of clock-making. It strikes the hour on the cathedral gong and the half-hour on the melodious cup-bell. Runs eight days at one winding. Height, twelve and one-half inches; width, seventeen inches.

Now, madam, please accept this as a final and urgent call from the Quaker Valley to send for YOUR clock today, before it is too late. All that is neccessary is to sign the accompanying coupon and deposit it in the mail-box.

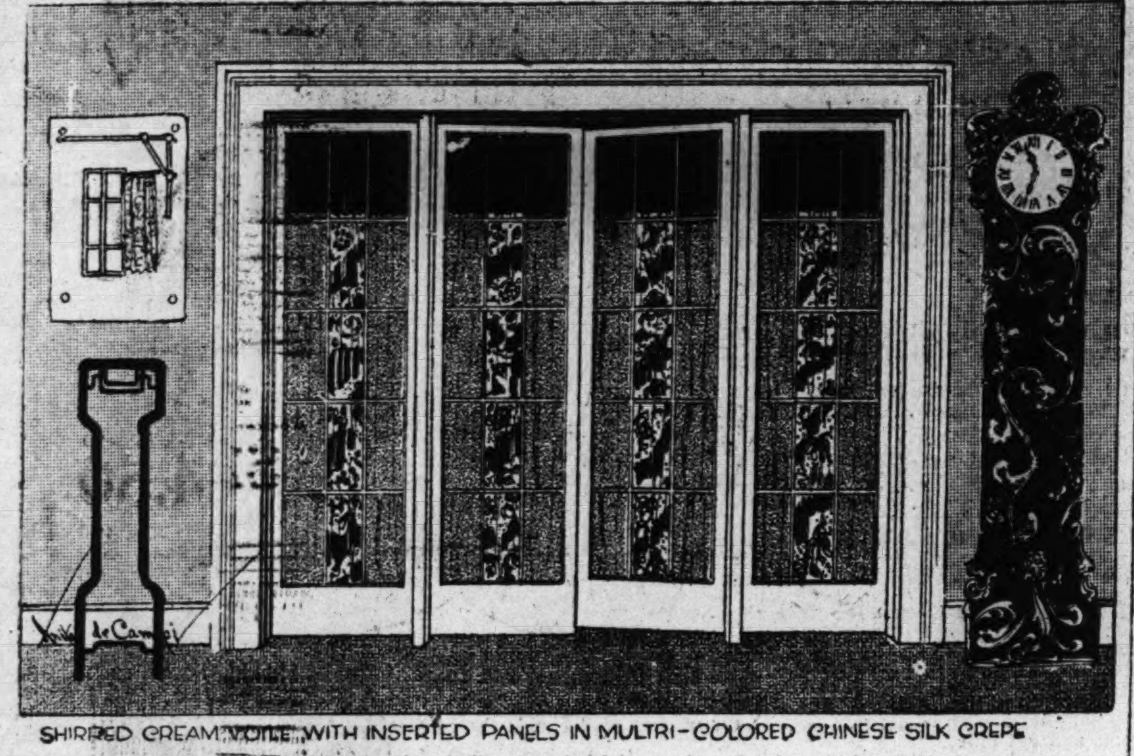
The Home Harmonious

CURTAINING the FRENCH DOORS

Anita de Campi



SHIRRED CREAM VOILE WITH INSERTED PANELS IN MULTRI-COLORED CHINESE SILK CREPE

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

"HOW shall we dress French doors?" is a question that may have various answers. Much depends, of course, upon the purpose in draping. If the need of privacy is urgent, a style of drapery may be used that would not answer at all if the requirements were for something merely ornamental, and vice versa.

French doors have undoubtedly come to stay. They have not only taken the place of folding doors leading into sunrooms but they are built in between other rooms, and by way of disguise are installed in the frames holding huge old fashioned wall mirrors and are further used as screens for closets containing linen presses, bookcases, folding beds, or kitchenettes. Indeed, suspicion that used to be easily aroused over a rather heavy mantel justified by the memory of a similar mantel turned down into a folding bed is now not quite dormant at sight of French doors. One can never be quite certain what may lurk behind them. Goodness knows what collapsible contraption may be concealed back of that lace trimmed glass, but for whatever purpose the door may be, every one wants to know new ways of trimming it.

One puzzling point is which side of the door the silk or other fabric should be draped upon. Our best decorators approve draperies on both sides of all French doors excepting those that open directly to the outside. Most [illegible] the two sides differ in style and color. The choice may be for shirred silk on one side and lace paneling on the other, or a net or gauze on one side and roller shades on the other.

Often the color scheme of two adjoining rooms requires a difference in the color of draperies on the doors that separate them. Where adjoining rooms are the same in color scheme a curtain on one side of the door is all that is necessary.

In remodeling with a view to apportioning off certain spaces French doors are of inestimable value. By their aid old fashioned front and back parlors are readily divided into separate rooms, and are as readily thrown together again by simply folding them back.

Differing from the portieres which they have so effectually superseded, they offer privacy without obstruction and insure against drafts without the sacrifice of that valuable factor in hygienic furnishing, good daylight. In nine cases out of ten French doors are nothing more nor less than indoor windows, and should be treated as windows rather than as doors.

* *

In sun rooms bris-brise curtains are extremely popular. They are little lace or net curtains, not as deep as are sash curtains. They are adjusted by means of tiny white celluloid rings, sewn to the goods rather far apart, so that when the rings are caught up on the small white rods the fabric sags a little between the caught-up points. The arrangement lets clear light in above the curtains and hides the occupants from view only when seated.

When these short curtains are used at the sun room windows they are repeated on the doors, both being supplemented with chintz or silk roller shades that are scalloped at the lower edges and trimmed with fringe and rather large tassels.

Often it is desirable, particularly in bedrooms with French doors that open into the sun rooms, to have curtaining that will exclude the early morning light. This is accomplished by means of heavy portieres, in addition to the lace or net covering.

There are several ways of arranging these portieres. Where there is wall space at either side of the door a curtain pole is used that is twice as long as the door is wide. This is fastened not to the door frame, but across the top of the door frame, with either end of the pole secured directly to the wall with fixtures. The portieres hang then drawn fully back at either side of the door frame during the day and are pulled to hang against the doors at night.

* *

Another way is to use swinging poles. These fasten to the outside corners of the door frames and swing in when the door opens. A glance at the small sketch tacked to the wall on the left in the picture will show the idea.

On which side of the door between rooms draperies should be hung is purely a matter of personal preference. They should, of course, in all cases conform to the decorative character of the rest of the room.

Taffeta casement curtains in blue, rose or corn are effectively used in bedrooms to match inside window draperies. Some striking effects are obtained by combining materials of contrasting colors.

The illustration has been sketched from an exquisite department display of model rooms. The original has been carried out in expensive material, but it could, I am sure, be copied in fabrics of modest price. The curtains are of thin old ivory voile, shirred on to an upper and lower rod, but the novel point is this, instead of being all of voile, a ten inch wide strip of Chinese crêpe, brilliantly colored in purple and Chinese vermilion and pumpkin and olive, is inserted down the center of each curtain. The effect is indescribably lovely. The dyes in this wonderful crêpe are vivid. They fairly stain the light as it falls through them, as though they had seized upon the fine deflecting secret of the spectrum.

It will be noticed that the upper rod is set down one row of glass panes to admit clear light at the top. The windows in the room are similarly treated, though they are not divided into panes, and the curtains are dropped about twelve inches from the window top.

The scheme could be carried out in girls' rooms with insertion of narrow blue and white Chinese stencil toweling, with scrim or cheesecloth at either side or rose or blue charmeuse could be used at the centers, with net or scrim, or any number of other combinations would be good.

Answers to Inquiries.

MRS. M. H. S.: I believe you would be better pleased with monkscloth for your cover than burlap Often one can buy remnants in the upholstery department and these upholstered fabrics make splendid table covers. Inside curtains of soft silk are frequently used in the china closets of combination dining room and living room. I should prefer not having the table cover and curtains in your room alike.

* *

MRS. A. F. S.: Yes, your portieres would do between the living room and the sun parlor. A heavy rajah silk would be nice for the cushions, either that or blocked linen. For the slip covers in the other room use cretonne printed on a gray ground and see that you have in it combined colors that are used throughout the room.

* *

MRS. A. J. G.: Your acknowledgment of the success of the suggestions offered you heightens my pleasure in helping you again. If you use yellow in conjunction with the blue side walls in your mahogany furnished bedroom let it be a light dry mustard color. Make cushions for the chairs of the same material as that which you use for the curtains.

* *

H. P.: I do not know of any other way of making your tents attractive that can compare in price with the cost of the things that you describe. Japanese lanterns, pennants, and pillows are about as inexpensive and satisfactory as anything you can get for the price. Perhaps I do not quite understand what you want, and would suggest that you write more fully.

* *

MRS. H. M.: Amber color sunfast would be well to use throughout in the curtaining of your bungalow, as this color would harmonize with all of the colors of the rooms that you describe.

* *

MISS A. L. H.: It would be almost impossible for me to advise you as to the method of doing over your floors, without seeing the exact state in which they are. A variety of varnish removers is on the market and these are all sold together with full directions as to their use.

* *

MRS. D. C.: I should advise you to watch the advertisements for sales of the various things you desire to buy. All the best department and furniture stores keep these things and you can only tell where to buy to the best advantage by visiting the shops yourself. Yes, I think the rose silk shades on the side lights indicated in your diagram would be good. Gray, blue, and rose are well chosen colors, but see that little rose is used More blue and most gray. The hangings would be suitable in the dining room. Keep to gray for the wall in this room. Use pearl color for your breakfast room and bright chintz printed on a pearl ground. A touch of black in it would not be objectionable. You might use the same cretonne for your lamp cover in the same room.

* *

MRS. E. A. C.: It seems to me what you principally lack is a good bookcase and library table. Use glass curtains directly at your windows and heavy monk's cloth for inside draperies. Velour portieres should go well with your other furnishings. I should like a prune color.

* *

MRS. W. B. H.: Shall I tell you a secret? I made up the things I described, but believe that you could have these ideas carried out by some reliable plumbing and heating establishment and incorporated into the plans of your "dream home."

* *

MRS. B. P.: Your room would be improved by the use of a light greenish yellow in your lamp shades. Select a French floor lamp that will correspond with your French furniture. The large chairs are popular and go with Louis XV. furniture you have. I should think ivory paper, or better still, ivory paint, would be excellent and I would suggest some insert panels in Louis XV. style for your walls. These panels are made of plaster and are exquisite ornaments.

* *

MISS L. D.: I should place the rug crossways of the center of the room and supplement it with one or two other rugs. If your pictures are good use them Pictures are frequently dispensed with when the wall covering is ornate in design. The approved way of placing the furniture is to have the davenport in front of the fireplace and facing it, with the table back of it.

* *

MRS. A. G. H.: I would advise the use of straight line furniture in your bungalow. If the material selected is good gray it should not fade any more readily than any other color. Walnut is more popular now than it has been for years. I would suggest your having your walnut pieces done over in preference to buying new ones. Could you not buy beds to match the other furniture? Use sunfast for your curtains throughout and Austrian cloth for your shades.

* *

S. K.: I would suggest your buying a dropleaf table for your dining room. Select the sort with a square drop leaf, as these can be set back to the wall, as your space is limited, and when opened will accommodate more than the round drop leaf would. Have the table painted, the chairs painted to match it for your dining room. Get a $5 hour glass chair, and Windsor chair at the same price or less, and fire side upholstered chair at $15. You already have a library table. A comfortable sofa would be nice in here. Let your calcimine be neutral. A quiet olive green would be good for one room, greenish gray for the next, and tan for the third. With these have a light cream ceiling.

ETIQUETTE.

By Elizabeth Van Rensselaer

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

TWO CHARACTERS DEFINED.

ONE of the readers of this department wrote to me the other day and asked me to define the difference between a snob and one who is patronizing in manner. I immediately went to the dictionary for a lucid definition of each word.

"Snobbish" is said to mean "vulgarly ostentatious, desirous to seem better than one is, or vulgarly aping gentility." The meaning of "patronizing" is "condescendingly or superciliously favorable, noticing in a graciously stooping way."

A woman who is snobbish is apt to be fundamentally vulgar, and is rather inclined to appear servile towards those whom she considers her superiors and correspondingly haughty towards those whom she feels beneath her. A patronizing woman has a more agreeable air towards the latter genus — that is, towards those she feels to be not her equals. Her manifestation of a sense of calm superiority may be blended with a certain kindliness which, perhaps with some, makes it a more palatable manner than that of the out and out snob; though heaven preserve us from either!

As an instance of these two mental attitudes, take a snob and a patronizing woman, each of whom is buying gloves.

Mrs. Newly Rich assumes an air which would, by its frigidity, freeze a softer person than the clerk who through many years of experience has become used to many kinds of customers. Mrs. Newly Rich demands, in a rather far carrying voice, to be shown several pairs of $4 gloves. "Not those cheap ones advertised today, but your good ones." She expresses her impatience volubly at any slight hesitation on the clerk's part, and does not deign to say "please" or "thank you."

Then there is Mrs. Superior Quality, whose manners are quite the opposite of those of Mrs. Newly Rich and who, although her voice is soft and her words well chosen, does not allow the clerk to feel for one instant that she, the clerk, is anything but an inferior.

The first woman leaves the girl behind the counter burning, inwardly at least, against all that rich "upper crust" of society, while the second shopper spreads about her the soothing balm of soft, courteous words, but a similar feeling that there surely is an upper crust—self-constituted, to be sure.

Both these cases are a little exaggerated to give emphasis to each and in order to show clearly that the fundamental theories are alike, but disguised under different kinds of veneer. To be wise, polite, and kind and sympathetic, too, are the requisites for a real lady. A snob lacks several or all of these qualities, while the patronizing woman lacks the fourth.

* *

M. K. B.: Note paper is really the corerct thing to use for answering invitations, although correspondence cards may be employed as a substitute. May I refer you to this column for Oct. 1 for a copy of the proper answer to an invitation? If you prefer to send me a stamped, addressed envelope I will gladly mail you a copy of the correct form. A formal note of regret would be better than your card when replying to an invitation to a musical. Any good stationer will tell you what the latest fashion in note paper is. A man should wear white kid gloves at a formal dance, no matter how small the dance is. Even though a man has to go some distance in a cab or suburban train, a derby hat is not correct with evening clothes. A black overcoat and a silk hat should be worn with his attire.

* *

HELEN M.: The man should write his name on the girl's dance card. He usually is given a pencil for this purpose.

* *

K. C.: A young woman may accept flowers, candy, or a book from a man to whom she is not engaged. When a man takes a young woman to dinner at a hotel or a restaurant if he asks her she may tell him what she prefers to eat, but should leave it to him to give the order to the waiter.

* *

MRS. O.: Since you are asking such a small number of guests, why not have a stocking shower? Any bride would appreciate such a welcome addition to her trousseau; and if two women gave one pair together the cost apiece would not be great.

* *

H. S.: At an unpretentious home wedding where the bridegroom does not wear evening clothes the bride should wear a simple white dress, not decollete. She may wear a veil if she chooses, but gloves are not necessary. Lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern make a lovely bridal bouquet. It is the bridegroom's duty to furnish the bouquets for the bride and her attendants.

POTATOES.

FEW things excite my disapproval more than to have a friend of puffy skin and drooping muscles and other signs of too much acid in her tissues and blood tell me that her doctor has told her not to eat potatoes. Instantly I find all my expletives signifying foolishness, "pish," absurd, etc., inadequate to express what I feel.

Why so? First, because she needs the potato base to neutralize the acids she is making too freely, and often in a pathological instead of a normal physiological way. The basic reaction of potato is rather high, or 8.6, according to Sherman. Any person suffering with too acid a stomach (I do not speak from hearsay, but from actual experience) is almost sure to benefit by eating potatoes.

And let us lay that ghostly superstition about the potato as being fattening. Foods which contain almost 80 per cent of water, as does the edible part of the white potato, give too small returns in the way of solids to be really good fattening material. They are no rival for cornmeal in this particular.

Any one who will behave reasonably as to exercise and fresh air cannot fatten on any of the fuel foods, but let it be said that what is solid in white potato is almost pure fuel—that is, something to be used up on the day eaten for energy and body heat. It is more than three times as difficult to overeat of potato, unless richly dressed with butter and cream, as it is to overeat of bread.

To speak in more scientific and specific terms, the caloric value of white potato per pound is 378, while bread, with which it is frequently grouped as though they were the same in this respect—that is, as solid food yielders—averages 1,200 calories per pound, varying according as it contains more or less of water. Dry bread and day old bread have higher caloric value than fresh.

This difference in the two foods as fuels is comparable to what soft wood and hard wood give in the way of heat when burned in a stove. Bread is hardly anything else than fuel, while potato is good, bulky stuff which the alimentary canal can grip. It rectifies acid conditions by its contribution to the blood of valuable minerals.

The reaction of bread is acid because of its chemical nature. More than this, and far worse, it is apt to yield acid because of wrong chemical conditons. These conditions prevail or bread chemically misbehaves when it is eaten too fresh or when chewed insufficiently. Since it may be partially digested in the mouth, but not at all in the stomach, just as long as it has to stay in this receptable at 100 temperature it may cause discomfort or ferment, developing a harsh acid to be absorbed by the body and one that is capable of doing many sorts of harm to health. By constantly repeating this process a physical breakdown at length results, strive heroically as the body aways does to heal itself.

It would not take long to learn this simple lesson. Why not do it? Here are two foods which appear daily or three times daily in our diet, why not understand what they do? People are all the time asking me where and how to begin to study foods, yet such lessons as this pass right over their heads. I commonly tell them to begin anywhere and at any time and strangely enough they never seem to me to think they have begun when they take from me some of the vital principles I have sifted down from many years of study. There are a few things I am sure about and would like to have them prove for themselves why.

Other tubers, the sweet potatoe, the Jerusalem artichoke, and some not so well known, are similar to the common potato in chemical nature and rather low caloric value; that is, they yield something to neutralize acids, and not much fuel to make energy and heat for us. The sweet potato contains almost 30 per cent less water than the white, and therefore has higher fuel value per pound. In these days of high white potato prices and bargains in sweet potatoes, if we know how to buy for the day's body fuel, that is, buy calories, we would often buy the latter.

It is a pity that there is such an enormous waste of sweet potatoes because of careless handling and not efficient marketing. More than sixty years ago it was learned that they could be kept all winter if they were dry, and carefully kept so, without the slightest bruise.

The Jerusalem artichoke, which has a little lower food value than the white potato, does not keep well out of the ground but does keep perfectly in. It is not a practical tuber, because small and covered with knobs, but when correctly cooked has a delightful flavor.

Escalloped Artichokes.

Peel and boil the artichokes until tender, but not a minute longer, because they darken and are mushy. This year's specimens are so small that it takes hardly ten minutes to boil them. Drain and slice. For three or four cups of artichokes make a cup of rather thick white sauce. Two tablespoons of butter just melted and three tablespoons of flour stirred smooth and cooked a bit in it, then the cup of milk added, and thorough cooking while stirring all the time will usually make a sauce thick enough. An onion cooked in the butter, which must not brown, and grated cheese to taste, or from two to four tablespoons, will make a sauce of rather exquisite flavor. Put this in layers with the artichokes in a buttered dish, sprinkle grated bread crumbs over the whole, and cook ten minutes in a hot oven.

Caramelized Sweet Potatoes.

To adopt some method of preparing a food which should improve its flavor, and then to get unhappy results, seems to me a travesty on cookery. Of all the ways of sweetening sweet potatoes I believe the following is the one that almost any cook should succeed with, as she does not with some others. For any number up to six it is a practical method and the whole is prepared in a shorter time than it takes simply to boil the potatoes:

Drop the requisite number of medium sized sweet potatoes in boiling water and in ten or fifteen minutes take out, pour cold water over and rub off the skins. Then cut in quarters and drop into the following boiling mixture: Allow for each three potatoes one cup water, three tablespoons of sugar, half a teaspoon of salt, and a tablespoon or a little more of butter. Keep closely covered over a small amount of fire, unless the water boils too slowly, in which case leave the cover off. The water should be almost boiled away when the potatoes are tender, but not too tender. The water should not be so low that a caramel forms on the bottom of the kettle. Transfer gently to the frying pan and brown over a fire not hot enough to blacken the sugar.

These are dainty, delicious, and handsome. They are not half bad cold for a lunch box in which there may be too condensed foods.

Baking Sweet Potatoes.

This is a nice task. If the oven is not hot enough the skin may harden long before the inside is soft. This prevents evaporation and the inside will be heavy. If too hot the skins burn and crumble and too much water evaporates and they are likely to be stringy.

Potato Muffins.

For party service, when a rather nourishing meal is to be served at no great expense, the potato muffin is serviceable with cold meat or hot either. In adding egg or cheese to the potato we make the dish a more completely balanced one. When made with egg these muffins may be used without meat and served with a white sauce, especially when some other vegetable such as eggplant is used, to be followed by a salad.

Cook and mash potatoes and add enough cream to make them as smooth as velvet. Butter small muffin rings, fill them with the potato, and bake for thirty minutes in a rather hot oven.

To enhance flavor and food value, put a tablespoon of cheese in the muffin ring before putting in the potato. To make them light and puffy and almost like angel cake, add one beaten egg white to potato for a half dozen muffins. To make them somewhat like the unsweetened custards used often for garnishing fish especially, use the egg yolk instead. Serve these latter with a white sauce and fish.

Potato au Gratin.

Cook and mash or rice three medium sized potatoes, season, and add butter, and then stir over fire for a few minutes with a little milk if you have not the richer cream. Take from fire, add an egg yolk, and stir thoroughly. If this thickens them thicker than a muffin batter, add a little more milk. Put the potato into a buttered baking dish. Smooth over carefully, and then, if you choose, hold a knife so that the point will remain at the center and go all the way around the dish making spoke-like indentations with the back by pressing down. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese preferably and freshly grated, but rather dry American grated will do; then dot with a few bits of butter and put under the broiler or in a hot oven three or four minutes to brown.

Answers to Correspondents.

If the correspondent who asked me about malted milk some weeks ago will send me her name and address again I shall tell her where she can get a lot of literature, with recipes, etc.

* *

A. M.: Since I do not boil coffee I have no need for a clearer. Thank you just the same, but I never add anything to a food that is not itself a food, except the things that flavor, and I am fussy about those, because I eat first for health rather than to satisfy hunger pains any way or somehow. Also I might say, for the benefit of those who whip cream, that I do not think it best to add anything but the purest of vegetable gelatin or gum to it. The cream whip liquids are perhaps one of these and something else that keeps it in a solution.

The new treatment

for tender skins

Many people with tender skins have been misled by the superstition that washing the face is bad for the complexion.

Dr. Pusey in his book on the care of the skin says, "The layer of dirt and fat that such persons accumulate on the skin is a poor substitute for a clean, clear skin, and is a constant invitation to various disorders."

Dip a soft washcloth in warm water and hold it to the face. Do this several times. Then make a light warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and dip your cloth up and down in it until the cloth is "fluffy" with the soft white lather. Rub this lathered cloth gently over your skin until the pores are thoroughly cleansed. Rinse the face lightly with clear, cool water and dry carefully.

See what a difference this famous facial soap treatment will make in your skin in ten days—a promise of that loveliness which the steady use of Woodbury's brings to a tender, sensitive skin.

Do this today! A 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap is sufficient for a month or six weeks of this treatment. Go to your druggist or toilet counter today and get a cake. Begin at once to get the benefits of this treatment for your skin.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is for sale by every dealer and druggist in Chicago, and, in fact, by dealers everywhere throughout the United States and Canada. Made by The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ont., Canada.

Plutonian Flagons Prove Potent as Elixir of Mercy

By Percy Hammond.

FRENCH LICK, Ind.—Advised by the directors of THE TRIBUNE to refrain for a fortnight from writing long letters about the drama, I hasten to disregard their injunction. Here, under the benign influence of the healing waters which spring from the foothills of the Cumberlands, one yearns and yearns to be nice to the players. He is filled with the pluto of human kindness. The absence of the mimes seems to make one still fonder of them, though they are represented in Senator Taggart's commodious hospice by such collateral celebrities of the theater as William A. Brady, Mort H. Singer, A. H. Woods, Martin Beck, Mrs. Barney Bernard, Archibald Selwyn, Miss Lillian Lorraine, Miss Louella Drew (a movie), and a lady who is a beguiling blend of Sarah Bernhardt and one of the Dolly twins.

So, with renewed eagerness to retain the love and admiration of the actors, I wish to pay my compliments to Mr. Barrymore and to Mr. Ditrichstein without being offensive to either of them or to the other men players who are stars. In their present manifestations, it may be said of Mr. Ditrichstein and Mr. Barrymore that they are two of the three great American actors—the reservation being an adroit bit of praise for Mr. Warfield, Mr. Drew, Mr. Hodge, Mr. Mason, Mr. Bushman, Mr. Hackett, and others.

The late Major Glover, when a dramatic critic, once wrote a fine essay explaining the difference between impersonation and characterization. That difference, I think, has admirable emphasis in the performances of Mr. Barrymore and Mr. Ditrichstein. [The word "performance," by-the-way, was barred from Major Glover's critical vocabulary at the reasonable suggestion of Mr. Mansfield. "Dogs perform," said that irascible authority, "and actors act."] Mr. Ditrichstein's performance of the opera-singer in "The Great Lover" is an adaptation of his ineluctable stage personality; Mr. Barrymore's performance of Falder in "Justice" is a creation from the author's idea, undiluted by personality. Both are as they should be, perfect in their respective ways, though, of course, Mr. Barrymore's achievement with the player's charm extracted is the less popular with the showgoers.

It is the more difficult, too. It is so difficult and so well done that it is the greatest acting I have ever seen. It exposes the superstition that there can be great acting only of great roles; for the character is a mere atom compared with the invisible thing with which it is in hopeless conflict. Mr. Barrymore, unlike the stars who are actors by reputation only, makes an art of truths instead of a trade of mendacities; and you may examine his portrayal in every eloquent detail and find none of the shoddy "business" which ordinarily stuffs the puppets in the drama. As one tries to select a particular excellence for emphasis, he discovers that it can't be done. The first appearance of the hapless clerk; his furtive attempt to escape; his halting confession, and that deep bit when he whispers to his counsel to try to suppress the name of the woman witness—these things may impress you, as they do others, as especially fine. Even if, as in Mr. Lardner's case, you don't care much for acting and the drama, you owe it to yourself to attend "Justice" and see what they are like.

◆

No? We get enough of that stuff in real life? Well, then let us join Mr. Ditrichstein at the Grand, where as Jean Paurel he is both good and interesting. This gorgeous pageant of an amusing temperament is numerously and skillfully populated by Mr. Ditrichstein's facile gifts of impersonation. He is, perhaps, the Great Flirt, rather than the Great Lover; but love among the tenors is said to be more a matter of propinquity than of passion. He is not only great at it but busy, since, according to Mme. Sabbatini, one of his last year's women, he has had a mistress in each opera-house in Europe. Mr. Ditrichstein decorates this attractive person delightfully: even his little flashes of honesty with himself and others are enjoyable. Elegant, suave, rich, quizzical, and operatic, he is precisely as you believe a renowned tenor should be, and you may watch with unfailing entertainment the comfortable tragedy of his career. We are blessed with the simultaneous availability of Mr. Ditrichstein and Mr. Barrymore. Eventually you will see good acting: why not now?

News of the Theater.

THE pictured player, Miss Miriam Folger, is of definite utility in the operetta now to be heard in the Illinois. She is decorative and tuneful in her own part and ready on reasonable notification to assuage the public and oblige the management by assuming that of any other woman principal who, for reasons of health or temperament, may desire to take a night off. Miss Stella Norelle, the duty-labeled diva of "Alone at Last!" has resumed her functions in the piece. Illness took her from the cast in the Chicago opening, a fortnight since.

◆

Irving Berlin, music's principal menace, is willing to sing in the two-a-day for $2,000 weekly. The managers think $1,500 is enough.

◆

Edmund Breese, long committed to the films, is to resume stage-speech in "Scapegoats." This is a play by Carlyle Moore, who wrote "Stop Thief!" an amusing farce of the who's-got-the-necklace-now type. Mr. James Sleegreen, who has for a number of seasons been associated with Miss Margaret Anglin as manager, is to produce the play for Mr. Breese, who says he discerns in the manuscript his long-looked-for chance in another part as good as the masterful millionaire in "The Lion and the Mouse," in which this actor emerged into the joys of black type and electric signs.

◆

N. C. Goodwin, so long absent from Chicago that observations regarding his talents stamp the narrator an antiquarian, goes this week into the two-a-day, where he will tell stories, recite verse, and give imitations. If he retain his early skill as a mimic, he will be discovered by this generation to be as adept as Elsie Janis or Cissie Loftus.

◆

Henry E. Dixey, a co-performer of Mr. Goodwin's back in the days when "Evangeline" was denounced in the pulpit, is to appeal as a conjuror on afternoons when not engaged in his part of Long John Silver in the New York performances of "Treasure Island."

◆

Nazimova [she expresses a desire that she be known as just that, and not as Alla or Madame or Miss] says she will resume her functions as an actress of repertoire, incidentally attending to the management of the enterprise. She lists a new play, "'Ception Shoals," and revivals of "A Doll's House, "The Master-Builder," "Hedda Gabler," and Schnitzler's "The Fairy-Tale." She is in favor at her banker's: she took $30,000 for permitting herself to be filmed into a photo-play based on "War Brides," and added that mite to huge earnings through a long period with that little play in the variety theaters.

Here's an Editorial by Way of a Change

By Mae Tinee.

THE chance remark of the manager of a charming little motion picture theater in one of the suburbs suggested the coming burst of what's coming. I overheard him say:

"For some reason or other my patronage is falling off, and you can search me for what's the matter. I buy the best features obtainable—and pay a stiff price for 'em. And besides I hand out a lot of other stuff at the same time. I——" but I had passed out of hearing. I could have told him something, however.

You see, I know one of his patrons. She's an intelligent business girl who knows considerable about motion pictures. It was her custom to attend the performances at the house managed by the man in question. However, she rarely goes any more. Why? I'll quote her:

"Why in the name of goodness don't motion picture exhibiters give a little thought to their combination pictures? They book a really good feature—something we all want to see—and then spoil it for us by having a vulgar comedy or some other trashy addition.

"When the Billie Burke serial was advertised I always wanted to go. Others went and took their children, for it was a clean picture and the kiddies do love Billie. But unless we were fortunate enough to get there in time for the beginning of this picture we would have to sit through other things that left a bad taste in the mouth. Now I have come to feel this way about the matter: I'll try once in a while and see if I can't be on time for the picture I want to see. If so, all right, I'll see that picture. If not, I'll go back home. I will not tire my eyes, fret my patience, and risk bad air unless I am being pleased, not revolted. There you are!"

There you are!

◆

The Great Uncombed.

It's information I'm asking! What is the peculiar psychic relation to motion pictures and heads of uncombed hair? I have gone to picture after picture and seen heroines, otherwise well gotten up, wandering about with the most horribly tousled coiffures. You've seen them, too, haven't you? And haven't you wondered how in the world they got them that way and how in the world they would ever be able to comb the snarls out again? I'll wager you have, for the subject has fairly fascinated me. It may be, of course, that there were always as many girls with mussy hair, only that one didn't have them served up to one on a screen, so consequently didn't notice them so much.

Some one suggested to me that the idea of being artistic might be behind the phenomenon. Well, maybe. There's Eva Tanguay, who never combed her hair in her life. But when I think of the Barrymores and Illingtons and Anglins, I'm inclined to ask with the divil, "Is it art?"

Photoplay School "Bunk."

We still have several so-called photoplay schools in our midst, and they still seem to be raking in the dollars from ambitious youth that would a-Mary-Pickfording or Francis-Bushmaning go. Some charge two dollars a lesson and some three. Brilliant prospects are held out. One young girl who paid a teacher a visit with the idea of taking up the work was promised a position with a little mushroom company, which I suspect to be no company at all, who, the teacher said, "takes all my pupils."

The inquirer asked if it would not be better to go to a company and learn through actual experience.

"Dear, no!" the teacher, a young woman living in a sumptuous apartment, said, "Why, unless you had experience the best they'd ever do for you would be to give you a part as maid. Now, after I have finished with you, you'll be able to do anything—anything. I teach you every kind of facial expression."

Said the inquirer: "I have studied dramatic art—a little——?"

The beautiful young woman, much made up, shook her coiffed head.

"You'll have to unlearn all that," she said. "Absolutely."

Bunk! Bunk! Bunk!

Tom Forman, the Lasky star, upon being presented with a week's vacation, took his guns and started on a hunting trip. He searched in every nook and corner in southern California for wild animals, but in vain. He then discarded his collection of fine rifles, rigged up a fishing pole, and gathered in many of the finny tribe. But Fortune was against him. He was snowed in and had to throw them away befor he could bring them to the studio for an alibi. Fish!

Earle Fox, "legitimate" as well as motion picture actor, has joined the Metro forces and will support Mme. Petrova in her new production.

Gossip About the Players

◆

G. P. Huntley, an English comedian who may be recalled for his amusing fop in "Three Little Maids," suggests that he ought to be paid $2,000 for coming back to the United States to perform in the variety theaters. Evidently those peace-and-prosperity stories are circulated abroad.

◆

T. Roy Barnes, a jester regarded as more than ordinarily amusing in the Chicago performances of "The Red Canary," is at the head of the cast of "Katinka," the musical piece which will soon replace "The Princess Pat" at the Garrick.

◆

Miss Fritzi Scheff, proscribed by the two-a-day authorities, is to return to musical comedy in a piece called "Husbands Guaranteed." Jefferson D'Angelis will be with her.

◆

◆

Indifference to "Rio Grande" on the part of theatergoers in Boston and Philadelphia convinces Mr. Augustus Thomas and his associates that, in approving the play, Chicago was all wrong; and they have terminated its existence as entertainment.

◆

Miss June Keith, an ambitious and pecunious Chicagoan, is to be the star of a play called "The Right Little Girl."

◆

The most enterprising and successful of the New York dealers in cut-rate tickets for plays in which the public is not interested at $2 a seat is a Mr. Leblang. Nowadays, when a New Yorker seeks repute as a cynic, he hails a manager with "What was your house last night without Leblang?"

◆

"Miss Springtime," an operetta by the composer of "Sari" which is among the few successes of the New York season to date, is to be given elsewhere by a second company. Miss Elsie Alder, an imported soubrette, and Frank McIntyre, one of the most likable of the avoirdupois actors, are to have in the new cast the parts played in New York by Sara Petrase, another importation, and Jack Hazzard.

◆

◆

William Hodge is described by his press-agent as eager to act in his own play, "Fixing Sister," in London.

◆

"Father and the Boys" will have a new title when revived by W. H. Crane.

◆

William Collier is to be Bob Acres in some special performances of "The Rivals," according to a press-agent's blurb. In view of the sound success of "Nothing but the Truth," in which he is acting in New York the part originated in Chicago by Grant Mitchell, it is not likely that he will go to the trouble and expense of reviving Sheridan, in whose plays nobody is just now interested. Mr. Collier about twenty years ago was the Acres of some performances of "The Rivals" given by George W. Monroe, Andrew Mack, and other comic persons who at the time were out of regular employment. The venture was designed to profit by the vogue of the famous cast, then in action, which gave the comedy at $5 a seat in the larger cities. Jefferson, Crane, Goodwin, E. M. and Joseph Holland, Francis Wilson, Fanny Rice, Julia Marlowe, and Robert Taber, then Miss Marlowe's husband, made up that company.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Ruth Chatterton has deserted "Daddy Longlegs" for a new comedy, "Come out of the Kitchen," which was produced this week and which is all about a gentleman who fell in love with his cook, Ruth being the cook.

But this cook, of course, is not a regular cook. She is, in fact, a daughter of the Daingerfields, and the Daingerfields, as you should know, are one of the proudest families in all the so'th, and have been for generations.

The play tells the story of a ruse by which Olivia Daingerfield hoped to avert a disaster which threatened her family. With her father and mother in Europe, where father was undergoing a serious operation, and the family bank account reduced to a few hundred dollars, she determined to accept the offer of a rich northerner to rent the old Daingerfield place for six weeks.

It happens, however, more for the purposes of the story than for those of logic, that he stipulates there shall be a staff of competent white servants provided during his tenancy.

◆

This is the dilemma Miss Olivia grasps in act I. It being imposible to find that many white servants in the south on short notice, and the agent having failed in his efforts to import them from Washington, she decides that she, her two brothers, and her sister shall supply the need and serve the moneyed invader until other help can be secured, for they do need his rent most awfully.

Thus Miss Olivia becomes the cook, Miss Araminta the second girl, Mr. Paul the butler, and youthful Harry the boots. The comedy situations growing out of such an arrangement may be easily imagined, and they lose force as comedy situations only because they are rather obviously preposterous.

The play was extracted by A. E. Thomas from a novel bearing the same title written by Alice Duer Miller, and is therefore by way of being a journalistic achievement, seeing that Mr. Thomas before he turned playwright was a star reporter on the New York Sun staff and Mrs. Miller is even now editor of the woman's page of the New York Tribune.

◆

One of the little plays that has edged its way into the current season without creating half the fuss it deserved to create is called "Hush" and is just now being beautifully acted in Winthrop Ames' little playhouse in Forty-fourth street.

It isn't really a highbrow drama, but, being a bit intellectual, it seems likely to

The Orchestra

EDDY BROWN, violinist, will be the soloist Friday afternoon and Saturday night in the fourth program of the Chicago Symphony. He will play, as the last number in the first part of the program, Tschaikowsky's D major concerto, opus 35.

Mr. Stock's fourth program otherwise will be made up of the overture to Cornelius' "The Barber of Bagdad," Delius' Dance-Rhapsody, and, as the post-intermission music, Cesar Franck's symphony in D minor.

The Orchestra plays tomorrow night in Detroit and on Tuesday in Cleveland.

The second of the Thursday Pops will be on Nov. 9.

Mr. Clarence Whitehill, who again is cast as the Wotan of The Ring in the Auditorium revival, is to be the soloist of the fifth Orchestra concerts, Nov. 10 and 11. An all-Wagner program has been prepared.

Gunn Orchestra Gives Second Concert Today

GLENN DILLARD GUNN'S American Symphony Orchestra will this afternoon, in Cohan's, give the second in its series of ten concerts at popular prices. The soloists will be Miss May Doelling, pianist, and Roderick White, violinist. She will be heard in Rubinstein's D-minor concerto; he, in Paganini's in the same key. The program for the orchestra alone will be made up of the overture to Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor," two excerpts from Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding" symphony, the allegretto from Tschaikowsky's sixth, Dr. Felix Borowski's Valse-Pathetique, and Collins' march called "Young America."

News Notes

That Yvonne de Treville will give Wednesday's 11 a. m. recital in the Ziegfeld theater—the fifth in Mr. Kinsey's matutinal series—is due, he explains, to the illness of Mme. Germaine Schnitzer, pianist, previously scheduled for the occasion.

Josef Hofmann, soloist last week with the Chicago Symphony, will return to Chicago on Sunday, Nov. 26, for an afternoon recital in Orchestra hall.

Charles Dalton is Miss Anglin's chief associate. Tomorrow evening. The engagement is for a fortnight. Miss Elsie Ferguson in "Shirley Kaye" follows, Nov. 13.

CONTINUED ATTRACTIONS.

Cohan's Grand—"The Great Lover," with Leo Ditrichstein. Fifth week.

Cort—"Fair and Warmer." Has been running since Aug. 6.

Olympic—"Common Clay," with John Mason and Miss Clara Joel. Tenth week.

Garrick—"The Princess Pat." This is operetta, the tunes being Victor Herbert's. Fifth week.

Chicago—"The Blue Paradise," with Cecil Lean. Operetta from Vienna. Score pretty. Seventh week.

VARIETY THEATERS.

Palace Music Hall—Melville Ellis, with Miss Irene Bordoni, is the chief newcomer listed for tomorrow's change of bill. "The Models Abroad," a sketch with girls and songs, will have James B. Carson as its cut-up; Moon and Morris will dance, as they did in one of the Winter Garden shows; Miss Natalie Alt, recalled as the chief performer in "Adele," will sing; and Clark and Verdi will repeat their popular drollery as two Waps.

Majestic—Emmett Corrigan, a good actor, is the chief contributor listed for the new week. He and his "company" will give a short melodrama, "The Van Lowe Diamond," new in Chicago. Others will be Sam and Kitty Morton, Miss Clara Morton, the Seven Honey Boys, Leo Beers, and the dancer called Roshanara.

McVicker's—The Kinkaid Kilties will sing, dance, and bagpipe as the chief performers in the continuous program.

Great Northern—Natalie and Ferrari, dancers, will top the bill for the new week.

PALACE.

Stan Stanley and his Relatives:

"My act won't take long and I don't want any interference from you down in the audience."

"You may be clever, but you fail to interest me. What is your act, anyway?"

"I'm a magician."

"Well, if you're any good at all you can disappear."

"You're not bad. You might do on the stage. What's your vocation, anyway?"

"Vocation—what do you mean?"

"I mean, what do you work at?"

"Work?"

"Yes."

"Who? Me? No!"

"I thought I'd like to have you up here on the stage with me."

"What do you pay?"

"Whatever you're worth."

"You don't want me, mister. I'm a detective."

"A detective?"

"Yes. Do you see these heels?"

"Yes."

"Well, I ran them down."

"Give us a waltz, orchestra leader—a Wilson waltz."

"I don't get you."

"One with lots of good notes in it."

McVICKER'S.

Grace De Winters and Dummy:

"Well, what do you want?"

"Lady, I wanta help yer out in singing."

"Help me out in singing? How could you help me out in singing?"

"A Scotch song?"

"Yep."

"Didn't you know that to be able to sing a Scotch song good, you must be Scotch or have a little Scotch in you?"

"Dat's all right, lady, I've got enough Scotch in me, for I just put it in at the corner saloon."

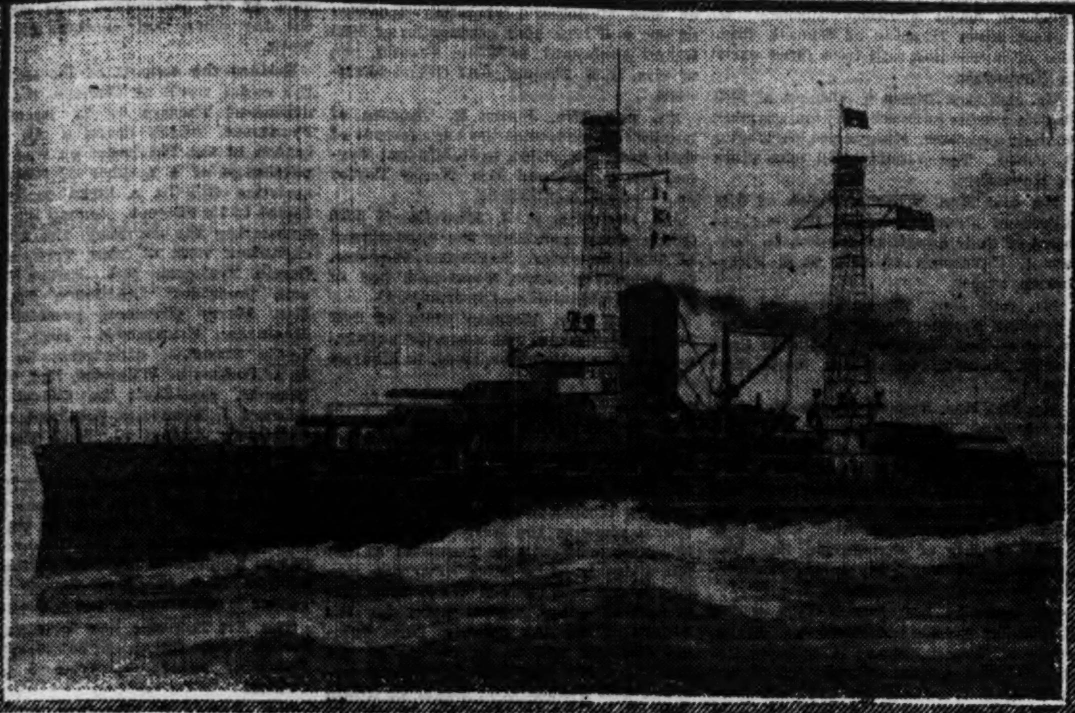
The Selig-Tribune—Semi-Weekly

The World's Greatest News Film.

In the two issues this week are shown:

Number 86



SUPERDREADNOUGHT ARIZONA.

An inspiring sight is the superdreadnought Arizona, sister ship of the Pennsylvania, as she is formally placed in commission. One of the most powerful battleships in the world, her displacement is 31,400 tons, she has twelve 14 inch and twenty-two 5 inch guns, carries a complement of 900 men, and has speed, 22 knots.

"CLOSEUP" OF MRS. AMOS PINCHOT.

Mrs. Amos Pinchot was one of the many prominent women who in New York opened a street stumping campaign in behalf of President Wilson. They threw reserve to the winds and came right out and told interested observers just what they thought.

Number 87

THE WAY OF WOMEN!

San Francisco had an interesting time upon the arrival of the Hughes women's special. The advent of the train alone would have proven interesting, but the Wilson women gave a fillip to the occasion by starting a counter demonstration along the Hughes line of march up Market street.

COLD BLASTS WELCOME SOLDIERS.

Texas was hot all right, but Fort Sheridan felt a little too much the other way to our soldier boys who, with shivering mounts, were greeted by cold breezes from off coquettish Lake Michigan on their arrival.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

irritate rather than enthuse our co-called lowbrows. Which is a pity, seeing that it is the lowbrow, being a numerous class, who is most necessary to the financial success of such a venture.

"Hush!" was written by an English woman, Violet Pearn, and is, in form, much like Bernard Shaw's "Fanny's First Play," which we hope you recall with pleasure either having seen or read, and preferably seen. The witty Irishman, with all his fitness for the library, really writes plays to be acted, and your impression of them is never a true impression until you have seen them acted.

Miss Pearn's play is an arraignment of the whisperers. She has little use for those sisters of such delicacy and refinement, for instance, that they make a mysterious secret of the procreative functions of their sex. Why, says she, be ashamed of a baby?

Her protagonist is an earnest young "daughter of revealment," an attractive little rebel who wears knickers and insists upon her right to discuss freely most all the subjects by which conventionalized society is most easily shocked. Be human, says she; be natural. Abas! the nasty innuendo and the unwholesome snicker.

To emphasize her principles she writes a play which is given as the play within a play. In this the heroine is a fluffy little innocent reared on an island by a plain spoken father. When she marries the son of a rector and goes to live with his people she creates something of a neighborhood sensation.

Anticipating motherhood, she talks of the forthcoming event as freely and proudly and naturally as though that were a common custom. The women folk of her husband's family are terribly ashamed for her. They are forever hushing her up. Babies grow on gooseberry bushes, as everybody should know, and further than that the less said of them the more delicate and refined will be the conversation.

They finally succeed in so frightening the little mother that when her baby is born she is ashamed of it. Whenever any one approaches her she runs into the garden or locks herself in her room with the object of her "shame." When the young father, away on a cruise as a naval officer, writes that he is coming home to have a look at his son she is consumed with embarrassment. Whereupon the gossips of the "mothers' league" begin to question whether or not she had any moral right to have that baby in the first place.

The old family nurse sets the matter right finally by hiding the infant. This so frightens the mother that when it is found she is so happy and so proud that she is willing, even eager, to show it to the whole world. And she settles the nasty gossip of the mothers' league once and for all by insisting that her young husband bare his tummy and prove that he and baby carry the selfsame sort of mole.

An intimate play, more delicate, really, in the playing than in the telling, and one through which both a fine ripple of humor and an incisive vein of satire run. The company is mostly English, a fine acting organization, and the staging more perfect in detail than that of any other play in the current list. Cathleen Nesbitt, once of the Irish players, is the heroine.

We are not much of a prophet as prophets go, but we did predict one condition that has come to pass. Having depended upon the merry little cut-rate ticket to pull them through one period of depression some seasons ago New York's theatrical managers are now finding it a difficult job to reëstablish the old $2 rate of admission to their playhouses.

Even in this year of unexampled prosperity, when everybody save the members of your immediate family seems to be making a fortune in stocks or bonds or the white paper on which newspapers are printed or something, there is more "dollar drama" on Broadway than there has ever been before at this time of year.

BURNS MANTLE.

Ask Me! Ask Me!

Mae Tinee's Answers to Movie Fans will be found every day in "The Daily Tribune."

BY MAE TINEE.

ELSYE R.: Your friend is wrong in thinking that Maurice Costello appeared in "Overalls." The two men playing with Rhea Mitchell were William Stowell and Warren Ellsworth. Billie Burke is about 28 years old. Her honest to goodness name is Ethel. Glad to be of service.

M. R.: Mae Murray is with Lasky company, Los Angeles, Cal.

JUST 14: Send a stamped and self-addressed envelope for the material I have on scenario writing, "Just 14." No trouble at all to mail it to you. Address Kathlyn Williams, care of the Oliver Morosco company, 201 Occidental boulevard, Los Angeles, Cal. She would probably receive you if you went to see her. Be sure and tell her you're coming.

TIFFANY B.: The minute I hear that Mabel Normand is in town I'll notify you. There is no doubt at all that when she learns of your profound devotion she will consent to grant you an audience, at which time you can tell her what a mistake you think it was for her to sever connections with Roscoe Arbuckle. Sure I think she's pretty sure I think she's nice, sure I know you like her, all right, all right, all right.

C. RAY: Don't be a little piggy. When you get the information your friend is anxious to hear break the news to him. In other words, cast your bread upon the waters, you might be hungry yourself some day.

MIKE S.: Surely I'll write you a personal letter if you will send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

HARRY: A letter addressed to Mary Pickford, care of the Artcraft company, 729 West Seventh avenue, New York, will reach her. I wish you would write me a nice long letter some time. It would be a pleasure, not a bother.

CELESTE: Thank you for your words of cheer and good will. My picture was in the "Frame" once long ago. Ach, that was an awful day! No, I have not "got it in" for the gentleman you mentioned. I merely give out information as it is requested. Your rebus was good. Try the next one.

SNOOKS: Mary Miles Minter is with the American Film corporation, Santa Barbara, Cal. She is about 18 years old. Probably some time Marguerite Clarke will appear again on the "legitimate" stage. She is not intending to just at present, however, I believe. Mary Pickford was born on the 8th day of April.

BILLY: Mae Marsh did not appear in "The Thousand Dollar Husband." Blanche Sweet and Tom Forman took the leads.

ROY G.: I am sorry to say that the Essanay studio allows no visitors.

Two Buds of the Season Who Have Made Their Bows to Society.

Miss Helen Hoyne

Miss Elizabeth Goodrich

The two most recently introduced debutantes are Miss Elizabeth Goodrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Goodrich of 920 Lincoln parkway, and Miss Helen Hoyne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Hoyne of Highland Park. Miss Goodrich was introduced at a tea yesterday afternoon given at the home of her parents, and Miss Hoyne made her formal bow to society the Saturday before at her home in Highland Park. Both young women are daughters of old time Chicago families.

Hundreds of Buds Ready to Come Out This Winter.

By Mme. X.

It certainly overwhelms one; it takes away the breath, dazzles the vision, stuns the imagination to be, calmly told by a young and lovely bud that there are 360 Chicago debutantes this season, seventy-eight of whom know each other, at least by name. Are there 360 stalwart youths also on the threshold of life to balance this sizable galaxy of fair maidens? It is to be hoped so.

The official reception and recognition of this annual avalanche of youth is becoming more and more of a national function in this country. In no other land do they make so much of their budding girls and boys as we do. The coming out teas, the balls, dinners, luncheons, and theater parties given for debutantes and their sets are exclusively American in form and intent. The youngest nation on this rapidly contracting globe of ours exalts and worships youth. On the other hand, the oldest nation, the Chinese, our opposites in more than one way, exalt old age and believe in ancestor worship. I'm glad we are so young, so unhampered by a past, so untrammeled by tradition, Aren't you?

The 360 will all be assimilated by Jan. 1 after which date you'll hardly be able to distinguish a debutante from the world weary miss of the vintage of 1915-16, who looks on this year's crop of buds with the superior smile of the old veteran.

* *

Weddings of the Near Future.

There will be some weddings this winter to clear the ground for the oncoming clans of youth. The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Fuller and "Barney" Goodspeed is in the near enough future for the young couple to be making arrangements for setting up their menage in early winter.

Albert Farwell, who made a fine record as a member of Battery C in last summer's military experiment in Texas, will go east as soon as he is mustered out and, if his fiancée, Miss Edith Foster, is "willin'," their marriage will probably take place soon after Christmas. She is a distinguished looking brunette, with much charm and real personality and will be a great addition to Chicago's younger married set.

John McCutcheon and Miss Evelyn Shaw are, we suspect, planning a romantic honeymoon on Treasure island, 'neath those rustling cocoanut palms, late in January.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is giving a large and lively house party in their honor this week end in the big, old Fairbank house on the sloping shores of Lake Geneva, Wis. She has kept this hospitable and roomy residence open ever since she returned in September and filled it with guests over each Sunday. And it's the cream of the year in that region nowadays, with autumn hues painting the landscape and the shrill, thin, bracing autumn breezes tinted with the pungent fragrance of autumn leaves.

The Fairbank house party celebrated its reunion with a gay costume dinner and dance last evening and much singing, with John Carpenter at the piano and "Harry" Harvey and "Jack" Winterbotham leading the choir.

* *

Farewell Party for Miss Pope.

Another lively week end party is that now gathered at Dixon, Ill., under the friendly roof of the Reynolds family, with the two former Misses Reynolds—Mrs. Paul Harvey and Mrs. John Ralston—as hostesses. It is a farewell to Miss Virginia Pope, who, with her mother, Mrs. B. H. Pope, goes to New York on Nov. 13 for the winter.

This house party includes the Van Rensselaer Coxes, Eames MacVeagh, and "Billy" Gamble, and will probably take in a trip on the Rock river, as the Harveys have a beautiful and up to date houseboat, with which they have explored the many and little known waterways of central Illinois.

Both Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Ralston, as well as Miss Pope, spent last summere studying with Mme. Yvette Guilbert at her country home at Interlaken, near Asbury Park.

Mme. Guilbert is beyond compare the greatest artist in the world in her especial line of entertainment—the half reciting, half chanting of songs and dramatic poems. She makes a specialty of ancient French ballads, which she has herself hunted up and had set to music. The French government allows her access to old French manuscripts and records not open to the public. She has been married for thirty years to a Roumanian named Schiller, celebrated among savants as a chemist. The Schillers have had the happiest, most congenial life together.

Mme. Guilbert has taken the Maxine Elliott theater in New York for a year, and there on Nov. 27 Miss Pope will make her debut with the wonderful, incomparable Yvette.

Strange Trick of Fate.

It was certainly a most curious coincidence. He, one of Chicago's best known bachelors, was sitting at a Sunday luncheon, next to one of Chicago's best known social leaders, and was telling her of the little, unknown French child he had adopted, one of the fatherless children of France, for whom Miss Schofield and Miss Fell worked to successfully last year to secure American foster parents. The Chicago bachelor's paternal heart was touched by the reception the day before of a letter and photograph from the widowed mother of the little girl, whose governmental pension his subscription to the special fund for the war orphans had doubled.

"The little girl's name is so and so," he said, "and she lives at such a number in Arras."

"That is an odd coincidence," remarked his neighbor," as the boy I've adopted has the same name and address."

It turned out that Chance, that wonderful agent, had dealt to these two old friends out of the thousands of French war orphans adopted in this country a brother and sister living in Arras. The future of these two faraway fatherless children is practically assured by their American foster parents, who intend to extend their interest beyond the two years pledged for by them.

This American fund for the fatherless children of France has grown to over $400,000. Over 400 children have been adopted in Chicago alone. This means that a subscription to eke out the government pension of half a franc a day has been assured from a year to an indefinite time to thousands of French boys and girls who will thus be enabled to live at home and to gain some sort of education to fit them for the world.

Mrs. George S. Isham has been chiefly instrumental here in raising the $57,000 Chicago has given to this understaking. The president of the University of Paris is the head of the organization in France. Olive Runnells is the local treasurer.

Bazaar Plans Developing.

The allied bazaar is developing steam daily. Like all such big undertakings, it is in the outset made somewhat chaotic by many men of many minds, but out of chaos a concrete, well designed whole is emerging. For one thing, those who are evolving it have abandoned the original scheme of a reproduction of the Arc de Triomphe as a central architectural feature. The present plan is now to have the Coliseum laid out as a big garden or park, with all the articles on sale or to show in little open air booths under gay umbrellas or awnings.

Mrs. George M. Pullman is going to assist Mrs. James T. Harahan in the American ambulance booth—that is, the booth whose profits will be devoted to the great American hospital of this name at Neuilly.

It is worth noting that Mr. Pullman was treasurer of the $973,897 which the various nations of Europe sent to Chicago when our city was nearly destroyed by the historic fire of Oct. 9 to 12 in 1871. Of this sum England sent $765,000 and France $62,000. The latter sum becomes more significant when we realize that it was contributed by a country sore stricken by a powerful and victorious foe who had just levied a war indemnity of $1,000,000,000 on France.

Our present public library was started by 400 volumes sent personally by Queen Victoria immediately after the fire. We may well ponder on our debt to those older countries.

Mrs. Ogden Armour is already organizing a booth to sell French novelties for "La Secour Nationale." She has great executive ability and tremendous energy, and will make this one of the most attractive spots in the bazaar.

Mrs. Samuel Insull is chairman of the committee to take charge of the booth for the benefit of the British-American relief fund.

* *

To Lift a Mortgage.

The Winnetka committee of that appealing enterprise the Ridge farm is giving a combined bridge and dancing party next Saturday at the Winnetka Woman's club to raise a fund "to lift the mortgage on their Ford." It seems almost unnatural for a Ford to have so portentous and heavy a thing as a mortgage, but the Ridge farm flivver has one, and puffs and pants under its pressure.

The farm is one of the most practical and beautifully run philanthropic enterprises that this column knows of. Its object strikes that wise, high note of modern social service, as it aims to prevent, not to cure. It takes the rundown, undernourished, anemic child before serious disease has gripped her and builds her up so that her system is able to resist the many foes to health that lie in wait for the ill protected poor.

Seeking the Bare Facts.

It's an amazing world in which we live. A walk along West Madison street last Wednesday brought within the range of vision a thickly packed line of women a block long. Were they waiting for a sale of marked down hats to open, or for some great speaker on woman's rights to orate? No; they were trying to get into a moving picture theater that advertised a delectable show labeled, "The Only Real Birth Control Picture; Bare Facts Laid Bare." Was it a purely scientific interest that stirred them, or some appeal of the old Malthusian philosophy?

Tomorrow afternoon the Deerfield Parent-Teacher association will hold in Deerfield a reception in honor of Mrs. Lydia J. Hoyt, stepmother of Chicago's well known citizen, William M. Hoyt, to celebrate the ninety-sixth anniversary of her birth.

Mrs. Hoyt has lived through the most momentous period of human history. To touch at one end of an existence the era of Napoleon and at the other the age made great by Edison, the Wright brothers, Marconi, et al., is an amazing experience, and well worthy of celebration. Our congratulations to Mrs. Hoyt and to Deerfield.

Mrs. Hoyt must be a true conservative, as she has never discarded the hoopskirt donned in the days of her presumably frivolous youth.

News of the Chicago Women's Clubs

Lakeview Women Entertain Tuesday with Operalogue.

By Hazel Whitaker.

ORGANIZED over a score of years ago with the avowed purpose of "Knowing the present and doing what it bids," the Lakeview Woman's club has certainly lived up to the theme of its slogan, for ever since its organization it has been a leader in working out problems of the day and in being generally helpful on the north side.

With the increase in membership came the division into departments—economics, art and literature, philanthropy, and educational. The first meeting this season of the educational section will be held on Tuesday afternoon at the clubrooms in Martine hall, 2782 Hampden court. The program, which begins at 12 o'clock, deals with a talk on current events by Mrs. Franklin Hardinge, and "Educational Systems," by Mrs. Louis J. Hotchkiss. A box luncheon precedes the operalogue "Falstaff," which will be given by Havrah [W. L.] Hubbard, accompanied by Claude Gotthelf.

This department aims to give special attention to the schools in the Lakeview district, educational systems, community centers, and child welfare being some of the subjects under consideration.

The first work to be undertaken by this club, whose founder was Mrs. Helen C. Peirce, was the establishment of a kindergarten in a district called at that time the "Clay Holes." It was named the Prescott School Free kindergarten and was the first kindergarten to which the board of education gave its support. To provide its share toward the upkeep of this institution the club donated $500 yearly. Later, at the time of the financial stress that followed the world's fair, the members did practical relief work by taking full charge of the station at 80 Elm street.

In the course of time regular contributions were made toward the Model lodging house; in 1896 a sewing school was started in the kindergarten rooms, entailing an average yearly outlay of $115; school playgrounds were beautified by the planting of trees and flowers, until now the Helen C. Peirce school has a veritable art gallery, the result principally of club donations.

The club contributes annually to the Municipal Art league, the Outdoor league, the Glenwood Manual Training school, the Park Ridge School for Girls, the Drama league, the School of Domestic Arts and Sciences, the Chicago Housewives' club, Beulah home, the Juvenile Protective league, the Bonnie Hame association, Sarah Hackett Stevenson home, the Model lodging house, and the Legal Aid society, besides having an active philanthropy department which gives immediate relief, visits "shut-ins," and devotes a day a week to work in the settlements in this district.

◆

The officers and directors of the club are: President, Mrs. W. M. Hopkins; first vice president, Mrs. B. F. Bullard; second vice president, Mrs. F. E. Hine; recording secretary, Mrs. L. B. Sinclair; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Campbell; treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Fisher; auditor, Mrs. E. B. Whitfield, chairman social committee, Mrs. Adam Schneider; chairman education department, Mrs. Joseph Frank; chairman art and literature department, Mrs. Harry Chamberlain; chairman philanthropy department, Mrs. Willett Cornwell; chairman economics department, Mrs. Alexander McLean.

"What a Satisfaction to See Your Figure Improved Each Day"

ONE of our graduate corsetieres said this to a new customer last summer and we have instructed corsetieres everywhere to say the same thing to every woman who looks at a Gossard.

You lace your corset in a minute each time you put it on. In this minute each day you can gently reduce or mold your figure as you want it. In no other corset is this possible.

If you are short waisted or have a poor back line, you may have a longer waist line and a graceful back line. All you need is the one Gossard designed for your figure type.

Gossards lace in front—we originated the idea 14 years ago.

Ideal Short Waisted and Curved Back Figures

ENID MARKEY, a Triangle Star, whom you see often, never worries about her short waist line. Her Gossard is a special long waist model.

If your back line does not please you, a special straight line model may be selected that will, in a very short time, give you a beautiful, normal back line. Daily, short waists are made longer and curved back lines straighter by special Gossards designed for these figures. Be fitted today. $2.00, $3.50, $5.00, up to $25.00.

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. Y.

Many Obstacles Confront Mothers of Debutantes.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—October is the time of social preparedness. People come back to town, gather themselves together, put their houses and apartments in order, and get their wardrobes for the winter campaign. Nobody sees anybody else and only the astutest of spying brings the word into rival social camps of what the other's winter campaign is to be.

Of course, there are many obstacles and setbacks to be encountered in the large business of getting ready for a New York winter. The mother of one of the most promising of the coming debutantes leased a house in the heart of the social zone. When she secured it she felt that her daughter's winter was an assured success. In the middle of this month she came to town to take possession of it and was told carelessly by the agent over the telephone the morning following her arrival that it had been sold. Of course, the poor woman at that late date had to begin her winter's maneuvering all over again and in much dejection of spirit.

Another of the difficulties encountered by the winter campaigners is the conflict in dates. Of course, there are the big things like the Tuxedo ball, which lauched a myriad of debutantes this week; the Horse show and the Junior League prom, about which there is no conflict, but as for the rest of the afternoons and evenings of the winter, it is a case of every fellow for himself. Of course, there are as many as five entertainments in some afternoons and three or four dances in one evening.

* *

Men Scarce and Unreliable.

But the greatest of all the cares of the mother of the debutante in this era of preparedness is to secure enough men for her daughter's campaign. There are not, as you know, enough of such animals in New York City, and those that are there cannot for one moment be counted upon. They go to the hostess who can give them the best food, whether her invitation is the first or the fifth they have received for that evening. They often go to the dances, and as a rule they go straight to the smoking room, where they remain throughout the evening.

Notwithstanding which, the debutantes seem to be by way of having a wonderful winter indeed. I need not remind you what an invaluable possession to a debutante is an uncle. You still remember the Deering girls and their uncle, Jim, who gave them that most marvelous of balls—was it at the Blackstone when it was new? So many of the debutantes of New York this winter are producing uncles and every uncle is down for an entertainment.

Miss Mary Louise Bond, daughter of Mrs. A. Huidekoper Bond, in addition to her coming out reception, which her mother will give for her on Nov. 25, will be the guest of honor at a large dinner-dance at the Ritz Carlton early in December, which will be given by her uncle, John W. A. Davis. Miss Mary L. Post and Miss Helen A. Hoadley will each have a large dance given in their honor by devoted uncles, Robert Perkins and Louis F. Holbrook Betts, respectively.

But it is not fair to fail to mention that the debutantes are some of them already preparing to take their part in the serious affairs of life. Miss Ethel Harriman, one of the prettiest of the young buds of Washington and New York, is elected president of a charitable organization which will devote itself assiduously this winter to relief work.

Adds to Art Collection.

Mr. Frick goes in for the arts, and besides buying up all the available masterpieces, he has had a $100,000 organ built into this mansion. He has his own private organist, whose job is to play for him every Sunday afternoon and at any other time Mr. Frick may take a fancy to hear him. He pays the man $300 a week for this service, and his wife says (the man's that is, not Mr. Frick's wife) that it is not enough.

But to say a word about his latest art purchase. It cost him $200,000 (quite a little more expensive that, than his musician), and it is Ruben's "Portrait of the Marquis Ambrose de Spinola." It is Mr. Frick's first Rubens, but it will be in good company, for it will hang beside Rembrandt's portrait of himself (not Mr. Frick). The Rembrandt, however, is one of four paintings by that artist in the possession of the millionaire steel man. If Mr. Frick is to greatly enlarge his collection of Dutch masterpieces, however, I am afraid he will have to make friends with the Duke of Westminster. This summer I had an opportunity of seeing a few of the old masters which hang in the dingy London residence of the richest of English dukes. I believe it is the largest private collection in captivity.

Mrs. Frank De Money

Mrs. Frank De Money will be the sun goddess in the Japanese play which will be given by the West End Woman's club on Friday. The play has been arranged by Mrs. Carey Culbertson.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY by MME. Z.

Draper Wedding Brilliant Event at the Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.] — Margaret Draper's wedding was the event of the week. It would have been, from the social point of view, the event of the busiest week of the busiest season Washington has known in the last ten years, and, while things are fairly lively, the week before a presidential election is not likely to be that in the national capital.

Everybody is talking about it; everybody is telling everybody else about it, just as if anybody was there. Really it's funny, when one realizes how few were privileged to see it, how many are intimately acquainted with its most trifling details. From the social point of view it was probably the most brilliant international match that has taken place in Washington for at least ten years, or in any other American city for that matter. And as a spectacle, from all accounts, it must have been well worth while.

Never in its long career as the scene of brilliant entertaining has the dignified old Draper residence been so dressed up as it was last Wednesday for the marriage of the last daughter of the house of Draper to her Italian prince. It was fairly smothered in flowers, with the red, white, and green of Italy as the color scheme in deference to the nationality of Prince Boncompagni.

On entering the hall there were huge banks of American beauty roses and white chrysanthemums against a background of palms and Australian ferns. The stairway to the third floor was twined with asparagus and smilax, relieved, at every available stopping place, with sheafs of the roses and chrysanthemums. To be sure, American beauties are nowhere near close to the red of the Italian flag as the more plebeian red carnations—the carnation President McKinley made famous—but they have the advantage of being infinitely more expensive and oppressively impressive at a social function.

The only place where any other color was allowed to obtrude itself was in the drawing room, where the great mantels were banked high with greenery—adiantum and Farlayense ferns—and studded with the mauve orchids.

The famous tapestried ballroom had been transformed into a chapel for the occasion, and as one entered it the great mantel directly opposite the doorway stared one in the face, banked to the ceiling with ferns, roses, and chrysanthemums. In the southeast corner of the room a great organ had been erected, behind a fern twined lattice. Between the windows a white altar had been set up, borrowed, as were all the other ecclesiastical properties, from St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church. It was described as one of the smaller altars, but at that it was eight feet long; and it was completely draped in a fifteen foot blanket of white roses, on which the great tapers shed their soft radiance.

To the right of the altar the crimson draped cardinal's throne, flanked by great standards of roses, had been set up, and to the left of it a whole fleet of little red and green prie-dieux rather puzzled the first comers, who did not realize that outside of the cardinal, who performed the ceremony, and Monsignor Russell, who repeated the mass, there were to be a dozen or more other church dignitaries, who had apparently only thinking parts but whose wonderful ceremonial vestments certainly added a whole lot of color to the scenery.

The bridal party was a small one, only Eudora Clover, who had been Margaret's playmate and chum, as maid of honor, and her two little nieces, Edith and Minna Blair, daughters of her half sister, Mrs. Montgomery Blair, as bridesmaids, preceding the wonderful white bride, who came down the great stairway on the arm of her former guardian, who is still the trustee of her estate, William King Richardson of Boston, and passed through the great doorway as an American princess to the altar, from which she was to return an Italian princess.

The three attendants were all dressed just alike, in charming frocks of pink satin, with overdresses of brown tulle, edged with fur. They wore picture hats of brown tulle, with pink ostrich tips, and the two younger girls carried the pink ostrich fans which had been the bride's gift to them, while Miss Clover carried a great sheaf of pink roses. Miss Draper's gift to her maid of honor was a beautiful bracelet studded with sapphires and diamonds, while Prince Boncompagni's souvenir to Giuseppe Brambilla, counselor of the Italian embassy, who was his only attendant, was a scarf pin set with similar stones.

Margaret Draper had always hoped when her time came she would be "just the bridiest bride that ever happened." And she was. Her gown was of the softest shimmering white satin, almost entirely covered with rare old point lace, which had belonged to her maternal grandmother, Margaret Preston of Kentucky, for whom Wednesday's bride was named. It had the added association of having figured as part of her mother's bridal gown as well.

The bodice was almost entirely veiled in it, and a wonderful point lace cape hung over the court train of cloth of silver that came in graceful folds from the shoulders. At the bottom of this train was another decoration of the priceless lace, caught at intervals with orange blossoms. Her veil was of tulle, worn over the face, and completely enveloping her. It was held in place by sprays of natural orange blossoms, and more of these, with white orchids, and a few lilies of the valley, made up her bridal bouquet.

None of the prince's family was able to cross the ocean at this time. In fact there were few out of town guests, those few being relatives or old family friends of the bride. Mrs. Preston Davie of New York and Tuxedo, Mrs. Draper's sister; Mrs. George M. Davie of Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dana Osgood of Hopedale, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Thorndike of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Gerry and Miss Mabel Gerry of New York about complete the list.

There were no house guests except Mr. Richardson. It is told that one woman had the temerity to ask Mrs. Draper a couple of weeks before the wedding if Prince Boncompagni was staying with them, seeming unwilling to accept the entirely accurate newspaper statement that he was at the Lafayette, and would be until after the wedding. "No," responded that lady. "I have not invited him, nor do I intend to. I do not recall that my mother asked Gen. Draper to be her guest at the time of our marriage, and I have no intention of asking Margaret's fiancé to be mine just at present." That seems to have been Mrs. Draper's ideal—to arrange her daughter's wedding as much as possible along the same lines as her mother arranged hers.

Is There a Corset That Brings Figure Individuality?
Third Floor—Center

Said a very cleverly dressed woman here a few days ago; a corset that has fashionable lines and is able to preserve the figure individuality, still a corset that will be comfortable. And our corsetieres quickly selected a Warner corset that answered every requirement—and they can readily do the same for you, so comprehensive is the variety of Warner models we show.

If you'll but have your corsets fitted here and note the care our corsetieres use in fitting you and have them explain why they choose a certain Warner model for your figure, you'll understand why so many women would not have their corsets fitted elsewhere; for this fitting service no extra charge is made—the Warner Rust-Proof Corsets are designed to fit the figure at all times with a snug feeling of comfortable support. News of the Religious World

North rn Baptists Have "Five Year Program Day."

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

BAPTISTS of Chicago and of the nation in that portion composing the Baptist northern convention will observe today as "Five Year Program day."

The adoption of the five year program was the principal achievement of the Baptist northern convention which met in Los Angeles one year ago last May. Dean Shailer Mathews of Chicago was at the same time elected president. It was felt by the leaders that in the setting of a goal in the numbers of conversions and the amount of money to be raised for missions and education there would be the highest stimulus to achievement.

It is expected the program in the Sunday schools and the Baptist Young People's union will bear today on the five year program. Where pastors have not already done so, they are requested by the secretary of the five year program committee, the Rev. Dr. John M. Moore of New York, to appoint local committees in their churches to promote the plans. Especial attention will be paid today to the spiritual basis of the movement, for it is asserted that enthusiasm for religion is more important than zeal for money or for numbers.

Beth-El congregation is to have a banquet tonight at 6 o'clock at the Auditorium hotel to celebrate the twenty-fifth year of Dr. Julius Rappaport's services as rabbi at Beth-El temple.

At the Sunday Evening club meeting tonight in Orchestra hall Prof. Francis Greenwood Peabody will speak on "Personal Preparedness." Prof. Peabody has been for thirty-five years connected with Harvard university and, both as a speaker and writer, has won a wide reputation. Among his best known books are "Jesus Christ and the Social Question," "Religion of an Educated Man," and "The Approach to the Social Question." During his stay in the city Prof. Peabody will be the preacher at the University of Chicago.

Wednesday is tag day of the Syrian Aid society for the Armenian and Syrian relief fund. The money collected on that day will be forwarded to the national Armenian and Syrian relief committee through Rufus C. Dawes, chairman of the local committee. Contributions may be sent to Harry A. Wheeler of the Union Trust company.

The Rev. Von Ogden Vogt

The Rev. Von Ogden Voght is the new pastor of the Wellington Avenue Congregational church, Wellington avenue, near Broadway. He succeeds in the pastorate the Rev. William Leslie Sprague. His first sermon in his pastorate was preached the first Sunday of this month. A reception will be given the Rev. and Mrs. Voght at the church next Thursday evening.

Mr. Voght was born in Illinois at Altamont. He came to Chicago in his youth and graduated from the Hyde Park High school as president of his class and presided at the graduating exercises held in the old Central Music hall.

He graduated from Beloit college, Wis., in 1901. For a year and a half he was general secretary for Beloit college and then for five years was general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, with headquarters in Boston. He then studied in Yale and Harvard universities, receiving the degree of master of arts from Yale university in 1909 and the degree of bachelor of divinity from the Yale divinity school in 1911. He crossed the ocean three times in conducting traveling parties, the last time making a tour of the Holy Land. For five years he has been pastor of the Congregational church of Cheshire, Conn.

The Wellington Avenue church is one of the best equipped churches in Chicago for social and club work, as well as for purposes of worship; it has a large parish house containing gymnasium and numerous rooms of various sizes.

Reformation rallies of the general synod congregations of the Lutheran church will be held Tuesday evening. The meetings will be held in eight different churches, groups of from two to four church congregations uniting in each center. Two addresses will be delivered in each church and the combined choirs of the coöperating congregations will sing, the same anthems being used in each of the groups.

The following are the names of the churches in which the rallies will be held, the speakers, and the coöperating congregations:

St. Stephen's church, corner of Fifty-seventh and Sangamon streets, the Rev. G. Fandrey, pastor; The Rev. E. J. Krause and the Rev. A. P. Fors.

Gustavus Adolphus church, 7424 Drexel avenue, the Rev. J. N. Brandelle, pastor: The Rev. S. S. Kauffman and the Rev. C. E. Höffsten.

Bethel church, corner of Humboldt boulevard and Dickens avenue, the Rev. C. E. Tiller, pastor: The Rev. I. R. E. Hunt and the Rev. J. R. Birkelund.

Wicker Park church, corner of Hoyne and Lemoyne avenues, the Rev. A. C. Anda, pastor: The Rev. Joseph Stump and the Rev. C. W. Knudten.

Calvary church, corner of Kesler and Berteau avenues, the Rev. J. M. Bramkamp, pastor: The Rev. Joshua Oden and the Rev. L. Harrisville.

Moreland church, corner of Lawler avenue and Ferdinand street, the Rev. T. C. Thompson, pastor: The Rev. Bruno Lederer an dthe Rev. A. Oefstedal.

Trinity church, corner of Barry and Seminary avenues, the Rev. Gottfred Nelson, pastor: The Rev. H. L. Yarger and the Rev. Peter Peterson.

Rogers Park church, corner of Morse avenue and Paulina street, the Rev. N. J. Hadley, pastor: The Rev. Philip Andreen and the Rev. Luther Hogshead.

The annual home coming day of the La Salle Avenue Baptist church, 1219 North La Salle street, will be observed at the morning services today. Many former members and their friends will be welcomed as they return for the day. The Rev. Joseph B. Rogers is pastor.

The election of a suffragan bishop of the diocese of Chicago of the Protestant Episcopal church will be held at the cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, West Washington boulevard and North Peoria street, on Tuesday. The convention will be called to order at 10 o'clock a. m. Bishop Charles P. Anderson issued the call.

The Avondale Presbyterian church, North Albany avenue and School street, will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization beginning next Sunday and continuing for one week. The Rev. William McClellan Saunders is pastor of the church and Thomas MacLagan is president of the board of trustees. The Avondale church has organized a Sunday Evening club after the model of the Sunday Evening club, which meets in Orchestra hall, and it is planned to have a series of speakers.

The gains in benevolent offerings to the various church boards made by the Disciples of Christ, which were reported in the convention recently held in Des Moines, are as follows:

The Rev. James F. Callaghan, LL. D., pastor of St. Malachy's parish, Chicago, will be the preacher today at the seventy-sixth anniversary of the founding of the St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church at McHenry, Ill. The music of the mass will be rendered by the choir of St. Cyril's church, Chicago. The parish is in the diocese of Rockford, and the Rt. Rev. P. J. Muldoon, bishop of Rockford, will be in charge. The Rev. M. J. McEvoy is pastor. While the seventy-fifth anniversary of last year was passed by without a celebration because local circumstances made it inconvenient, the event today will be celebrated as the diamond jubilee.

The Rev. Joseph Milburn, who recently retired from the ministry to enjoy the wider freedom of the lecture platform, is giving a course of lectures on Sunday afternoons at 3 o'clock in Recital hall, Auditorium. It is stated in the announcement that following each lecture there will be an informal discussion of the subject. At the two lectures already given this feature proved popular. Mr. Milburn answers questions put to him and in closing briefly reviews the points raised in the open discussion. Mr. Milburn is well known in Chicago, having been pastor of Plymouth Congregational church for fifteen years.

Westward the Title Seeking Race Driver Wends His Way.

WITH the running of the Harkness trophy event at Sheepshead Bay yesterday, the 1916 speedway racing season practically closed, and today the drivers who participated in the New York finale are busy getting their cars ready for shipment to California, where on the 16th and 18th of next month the Vanderbilt cup and grand prize classics will be held on the scenic Santa Monica course, perhaps for the last time.

The Vanderbilt cup and the grand prize, which are the first and only road races on the 1916 schedule, are the crucial contests of the season, for they will decide who is the champion driver of the year and how the $13,500 in prize money, given by the Bosch and Goodrich companies, shall be split.

The championship fight has saved both classics from being small time events, limited to native son drivers from the Pacific coast. The purse of $7,000 for each race is not large enough to attract the eastern stars, Dario Resta, Ralph De Palma, Johnny Aitken, and Eddie Rickenbacher, who will be forced to spend almost as much as first place in either the Vanderbilt cup or grand prize is worth—$4,000—to ship their cars across the continent and back again and defray the personal expenses of themselves and their mechanicians. But the struggle for the title and the $13,500 that will go to the speed king of 1916 and his two nearest competitors is so close that points are precious. Moreover, Richard Kennerdell, chairman of the contest board of the American Automobile association, has been generous in awarding points to the Santa Monica events, the winner of the grand prize being credited with 1,000 and the Vanderbilt cup victor receiving 900.

In order to protect themselves each member of the big four—Resta, Aitken, Rickenbacher, and De Palma—has entered both classics and although after the Grand American event at the Chicago speedway the fight for the championship looked to have narrowed down to a last ditch struggle between Resta and Aitken, both Rickenbacher and De Palma have a chance to pass the two leaders provided they duplicate Resta's feat of last year and take both the Vanderbilt cup and the grand prize at Santa Monica next month.

Thus the Vanderbilt cup and grand prize events of 1916 should be the most stubbornly fought and fastest races in the annals of the classics, one of which dates back to 1904 and the other having its inaugural four years later. The course is generally acknowledged to be the fastest in the country, the most skillful and daring drivers have entered the lists, the rivalry is intense. Here are the ingredients of a record smashing contest.

In statistical form the story of these two blue ribbon events, which may pass to the realm of remembered things after November is as follows:

VANDERBILT CUP.

Year.	Win. Driver.	Car.	Dis., mi.	Time.
1904	Heath	Panhard, Fr.	284.40	5:26:45
1905	Hemery	Darracq, Fr.	283.00	4:36:08
1906	Wagner	Darracq, Fr.	297.10	4:50:10 2-5
1908	Robertson	Loc., Am.	258.60	4:00:48 1-5
1909	Grant	Alco, Am.	278.08	4:25:42
1910	Grant	Alco, Am.	278.08	4:15:58
1911	Mulford	Lozier, Am.	291.38	3:56:00 2-8
1912	DePalma	Mer., Ger.	300.00	4:20:31
1914	DePalma	Mer., Ger.	295.00	3:53:41
1915	Resta	Peugeot, Fr.	300.30	4:27:37

No races in 1907 and 1913. First six races held on Long island, 1911 race held at Savannah, 1912 race at Milwaukee, 1914 race at Santa Monica, and 1915 race at San Francisco.

GRAND PRIZE.

1908	Wagner	Fiat, Italy	402.08	6:10:30
1910	Bruce-B.	Benz, Ger.	415.20	6:03:05
1911	Bruce-B.	Fiat, Italy	411.36	5:31:29
1912	Bragg	Fiat, Italy	409.00	5:59:27
1914	Pullen	Mercer, Am.	403.24	5:13:30
1915	Resta	Peugeot, Fr.	400.28	7:07:57

Of the winners of the Vanderbilt cup, only three—Mulford, De Palma, and Resta—will face the starter at Santa Monica. George Heath, the American expatriate who captured the first race, is "somewhere in France"; Victor Hemery and Louis Wagner are minions of Mars in the collossal struggle that is now being waged across the Atlantic; George Robertson has retired from the racing game and is now learning to be a military aviator; and Harry Grant, the first driver to win the cup twice in succession, died from burns suffered in practice for the Astor cup event last fall.

Eddie Pullen and Dario Resta will attempt to win the grand prize for a second time at Santa Monica. Wagner is either fighting the Germans or repairing French war cars; David Bruce-Brown sustained fatal injuries in practice for the Milwaukee speed carnival of 1912; and Caleb Bragg, a millionaire to whom prize money is only spending money, has switched his allegiance from automobiles to aeroplanes and steam yachts.

According to the dopesters, Resta, Aitken, Rickenbacher, and De Palma will be favorites for the Vanderbilt of 1916. Each of them has competed in the classic before. Resta took the cup at San Francisco last season; De Palma equaled Harry Gran't record by winning the silver flagon in two consecutive starts; Rickenbacher made his debut in one of the early races on Long Island, riding as mechanician with Lew Frayer in the Columbus Red Wing; and Aitken took third money in the 1910 contest, finishing only twenty-six seconds behind the victor, Harry Grant, and getting the checkered flag but two seconds after his teammate, Joe Dawson, crossed the line.

The result of the Vanderbilt and grand prize at Santa Monica also will decide who is the road racing champion of 1916 as well as the speed king of this season, as these two events are the only ones to be held on a natural course this year. The driver who makes the best showing in the two classics will be given equal rank with the road racing monarchs of the past. This crown was placed on the head of Bert Dingley in 1909 and awarded to Ralph Mulford in 1910, Harney Herrick in 1911, Ralph De Palma in 1912 and 1914, and Earl Cooper in 1913 and 1915.

In the two races at Santa Monica Barney Oldfield, master driver of the world and the graybeard of the speed fraternity, will sing his swan song, the cigar chewing veteran having decided to retire from the game after competing in the Vanderbilt and grand prize.

Exhaust Echoes

A special course in character analysis for the sales force and executives of the Louis Geyler company, Hudson distributor, was held last week. M. M. Newcomb of Minneapolis, who is related to Dr. Katherine M. H. Blackford, the leading authority on this science in America, came to Chicago at the request of this company and conducted the lessons in this most interesting subject. Mr. Newcomb teaches this year at the University of Minnesota and at the Y. M. C. A. in Minneapolis, besides having one or two other classes of women in the professional and business world, in Minneapolis. This was his first class in Chicago. Psychology, physiology, biology, and anthropology all have a direct bearing on this newest science of character analysis, and those associated with the Louis Geyler company showed their up to dateness by doing exceptionally clever work in this course. Personal analyses of each student were made and then, to put into practice what had been taught, the closing lectures were given over to making analyses of each other under the direction of Mr. Newcomb.

The increasing popularity of special finishes on automobiles has made it imperative for the manufacturers of the motor car of distinctive design to create new color ideas for their exacting class of trade. A number of manufacturers in offering the choice of several finishes as standard production make it necessary for the discriminating buyer to be able to choose his color combinations from samples covering an extraordinary assortment of shades. Foreseeing this condition, the Westcott Motor Car company has arranged with a coach paint producer to prepare for it a large and entirely exclusive selection of colors. Most out of the ordinary color combinations can be chosen from its sample color cards, now in possession of Rowe, Young & Cooley, 2837 Washington boulevard, Chicago distributors for Westcott cars.

"Since the Packard closed car demonstrator arrived last week it hasn't stopped work long enough to come in on the salesroom floor," says President H. M. Allison of the Chicago Packard Motor Car company. "We attribute this popularity of the twin six closed car to the fact that our twelve cylinder motor has made the limousine a year round car not only for city use but for extended travel wherever a touring car can find traction." At any rate, the Packard factory, which has the largest output of high grade coach work in the world, found it necessary last summer greatly to enlarge the capacity of its body building departments. As a result, it is now manufacturing an exceptionally wide line of both open and inclosed bodies for twin six cars, nicely suited to the tests and uses of all buyers.

Will you kindly print in your department of questions and answers what one of the various routes between Milwaukee and Chicago is the best to follow at the present time?

ADOLPH MUELLER, Milwaukee, Wis.

Leave Milwaukee at Grand avenue and Twenty-seventh street and go south in South boulevard, later running into the old Kilbourn road at the state line. Then pick up the Green Bay road and follow it down to Lake Forest, Highland Park, or any of the north shore suburbs and then take Sheridan road into the city. The distance is 95 miles.

I am driving an old style car—that is, one that is not equipped with a starter—and every once in a while, when I try to get it going, the starting crank is jerked out of my hand. What makes it do that, and what should be done to prevent it?

T. J., Monmouth, Ill.

You are lucky not to be carrying your arm in a sling. When you are ready to start the car the spark lever should be placed in the retarded position; that is, pulled down about even, or slightly above the gas lever. When it is advanced an early spark is produced, with the result that the gas in the cylinders is preignited, causing what is known as a back kick. A back kick tends to reverse the crankshaft rotation and brings the starting crank forcibly in contact with the operator's arm or wrist.

What route would you advise for a trip to be started Nov. 1 from Cleveland, O., to Miami, Fla.?

P. L. K., Cleveland, O.

I would advise you to go through Toledo, Dayton, Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville, Huntsville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Macon, and Jacksonville to Miami. The regular route between Nashville and Chattanooga will not be finished until next year, hence the detour of 100 miles via Huntsville.

Is it too late to visit the Indiana dunes and what is the best route to follow in reaching them? J. K. V., Chicago.

The roads are all right, but the dunes are not as attractive now as they were a few weeks ago. We published an article, route, and map on Oct. 1.

Can you inform me if the report that the route of the Lincoln highway between Salt Lake City, Utah, and Fallon, Nev., is to be changed is true. I have been told that some sort of a change is contemplated, but nobody out this ways seems to know anything about it.

FRANK MATTERS, Salt Lake City.

After an exhaustive personal investigation, President Henry B. Joy and other officials of the Lincoln highway have decided to change the routing of the trail in central Nevada. The recommendation is to be made at the annual directors' meeting to be held in November, and the report will be based on a ten days' inspection trip over the section between Salt Lake City and Fallon, long known as the worst stretch of the entire transcontinental route. The proposed change will carry the highway north from the present right of way over what is known as the Stillwater cutoff, thus avoiding the famous, or rather infamous, mud flats thirty miles east of Fallon, on the Carson Sink, and while no longer than the existing route, will provide a more scenic drive on high ground and eliminate the worst section of the route through Nevada. For this work the Willys-Overland company of Toledo has contributed $50,000, which is to be expended with a like sum to be provided by the state of Nevada for the purpose.

Please print in your column the route you consider best between Princeton, Ill., and Brownsville, Tex. Would it be better to go via St. Louis or via Kansas City?

HOWARD MUNSON,
Princeton, Ill.

Brownsville is located in the extreme southeastern edge of Texas, and as I am unable to furnish you with the route all the way through, it will be necessary for you to make inquiry at Laredo. Everything considered, I think the better route is via St. Louis. Go through Tiskilwa and Milo to Peoria, thence through Groveland, Dillon, Delavan, New Holland, and Middletown to Springfield. At this point you will take the International paved way to Laredo, but do not be misled by the name of the route and think it is a boulevard, for it is far from being one. From Springfield go through St. Louis, Cairo, Jonesboro, Forrest City, Little Rock, Hot Springs, Texarkana, Dallas, Fort Worth, Waco, Austin, and San Antonio to Laredo, where you will doubtless be able to procure information regarding the balance of the route to Brownsville. Before starting on your trip I would advise you to provide yourself with a copy of the Automobile Blue Book No. 5, which contains detailed information.

Will you be so kind as to publish next Sunday, if possible, the best route to follow between Keokuk, Ia., and St. Louis, Mo.? B. W. F., Keokuk, Ia.

Go through Wayland, Canton, La Grange, Taylor, Palmyra, Hannibal, 70.8 miles; Oakwood, New London, Frankford, Louisiana, Calumet, Prairieville, Troy, Moscow, Flint, Wentzville, Dardenne, St. Charles, Junction, St. Louis, 188 miles.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

As predicted by some of the experienced men in the trade, it did not take long for the new Jordan car, product of the Jordan Motor Car company of Cleveland, to get formal recognition as one of the country's most fashionable and exclusive types of motor vehicles. Its latest achievement was won a few days ago, when an international jury included it among the first three prize winners at the Automobile Fashion show held in connection with the St. Louis Agricultural fair. The honor was a coveted one, inasmuch as there were about fifty-five entries, including the highest priced cars manufactured in this country and abroad. The Jordan car which attracted so much attention and recognition was driven by Mrs. French Nelson, a prominent society woman. The consuls and foreign visitors on the judging committee were Jose Alvarez of Spain, Sir James Arbuckle of South America, Alessandro Broletti of Italy, Augusta Aguiler of Cuba, Marc Seguin of France, and Dr. Otto von Hubicki of Austria and Germany. Frank W. Taylor Jr. of St. Louis and C. E. West of Colorado Springs, Colo., were the Americans on the committee.

A. J. Banta, for twelve years general manager of the central western territory district for the Locomobile Company of America, has resigned from that position to become vice president of the Premier Motor corporation of Indianapolis, makers of the aluminum six with magnetic gear shift.

G. W. Stratton, local distributor of King automobiles, has formed a new company which bears his name for the purpose of manufacturing winter tops for all types of pleasure cars as well as limousine bodies. The Stratton company has purchased a large factory at Marshall, Mich., comprising a total floor space of 64,000 square feet, to be used as a basis of operation. The finished product of this company may be seen at the King show rooms in Michigan avenue.

C. H. Eichinger of the Motor Car Sales company, distributor of the Briscoe car, has announced the addition of a strong feature in the institution of the coupon service system. With each purchase of a Briscoe car the new owner receives coupons entitling him to fifty half hours of service and the monthly Briscoe inspection, at which time the service department of the Motor Car Sales company goes over the car completely and checks up on oiling and general lubrication.

OWEN MAGNETIC

Combines the Triumph of Science and Coach Maker's Design

¶ The Owen Magnetic is the one car in the world with a smooth flow of power from motor to road, because of its magnetic transmission.

¶ Ease of control, elasticity of power, constant torque, smooth riding at a thousand speeds—others have sought in vain these qualities by multiplying cylinders from 4 to 12.

¶ No other principle than the wonderful MAGNETIC can substitute resistless, elastic tenacity for the jerks and jars of other cars.

¶ And the Owen Magnetic, combining flexibility and true control, substitutes a little finger lever on the steering wheel for the awkward, heavy-working, shifting mechanism of other cars.

¶ The same dependable Magnetic Unit provides for starting, lighting and braking. It affords more mileage from tires and gasoline—longer life to the car, and greater safety under all conditions.

¶ Coach makers have paralleled this triumph of science in a triumph of design distinguished in style and beauty comparable only to the highest priced foreign cars.

Wilson's Day

PRESIDENT WILSON began his administration by surrounding himself with incompetents. Men were selected for cabinet positions for political reasons and to pay pre-election bargains, although they were admittedly unfit for the national responsibilities imposed.

American lives and national honor on land and sea have been unprotected.

He has destroyed a world tradition in diplomacy that America means what it says.

He has alienated from America the good will of most of the nations of Europe.

He has dealt insincerely with foreign questions and has failed to settle finally a single one.

He has waged war in Mexico in a manner that has stamped our people as cowards in the minds of the Mexicans. He demanded a salute to our flag and didn't get it; he went after Villa and didn't get him.

He has allowed Mexican bandits to obtain American arms with which they sacked our towns, killed our soldiers, and murdered our citizens.

He has not kept us out of war, but he has kept us unprepared to keep war out of America.

He promised to reduce the number of federal office holders, and has added thirty thousand to their number.

His promise to protect merit in the Civil Service has been broken, and his insincerity in the protection of the merit system is proved.

In time of peace he filled America with bread lines, and demands re-election because in time of war Europe has filled our factories with orders which it will cease to place the moment peace is declared. Destiny, not Democracy, is alone responsible for present prosperity.

His pledges to reduce the cost of living can be measured today in the light of the highest prices ever known in our history.

He has sown international antagonism which will plague us for generations.

He has fathered a Democratic tariff that threw hundreds of thousands of men out of work in the first months of his administration. The same tariff is still in force, and it will have the same disastrous results after the war.

He has failed to keep the faith.

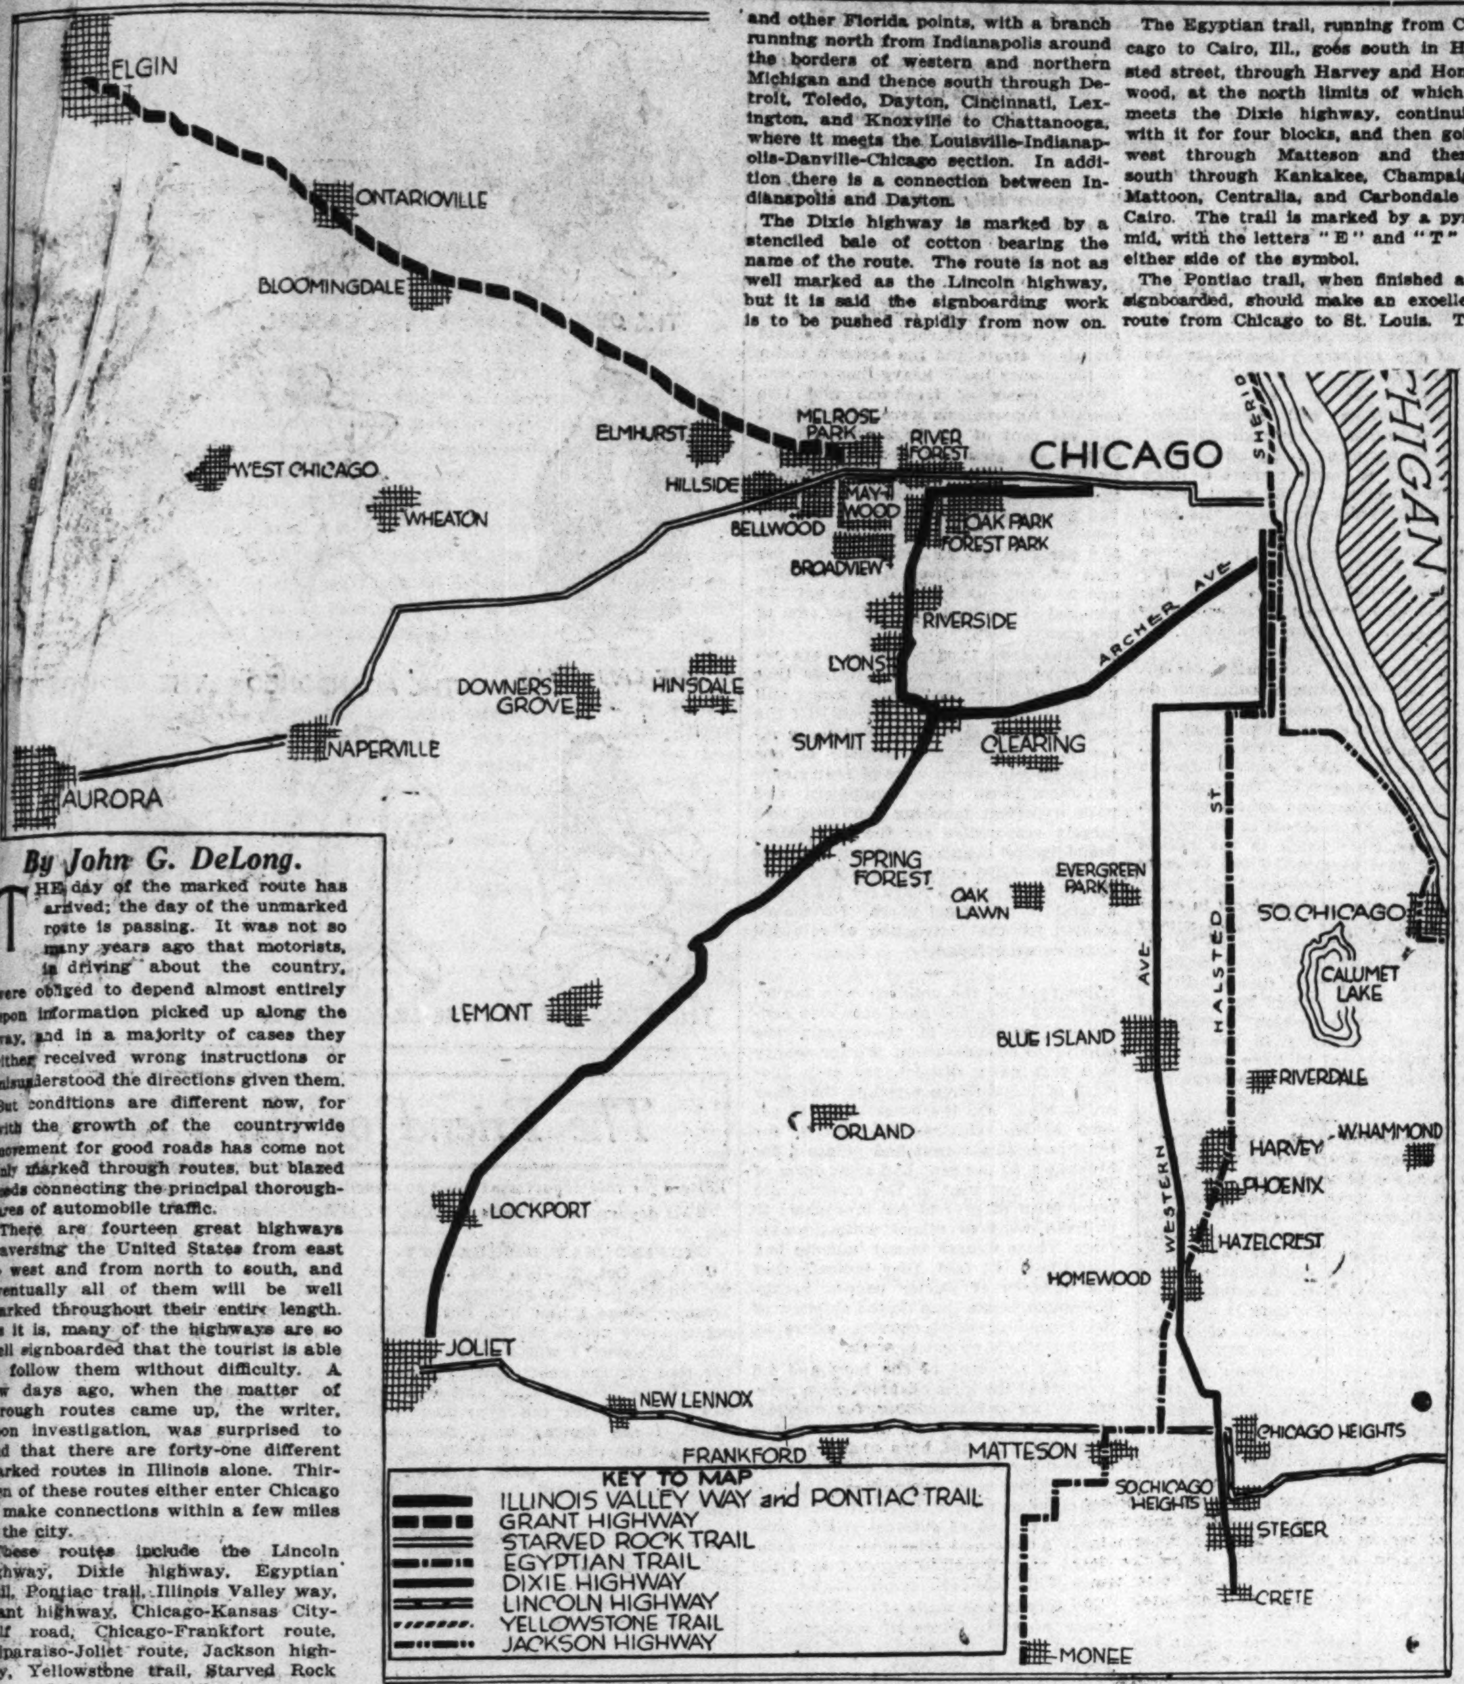
Blazed Trails Make Motoring Easy for the Chicago Auto Tourist.



By John G. DeLong.

THE day of the marked route has arrived; the day of the unmarked route is passing. It was not so many years ago that motorists, in driving about the country, were obliged to depend almost entirely upon information picked up along the way, and in a majority of cases they either received wrong instructions or misunderstood the directions given them. But conditions are different now, for with the growth of the countrywide movement for good roads has come not only marked through routes, but blazed roads connecting the principal thoroughfares of automobile traffic.

There are fourteen great highways traversing the United States from east to west and from north to south, and eventually all of them will be well marked throughout their entire length. As it is, many of the highways are so well signboarded that the tourist is able to follow them without difficulty. A few days ago, when the matter of through routes came up, the writer, upon investigation, was surprised to find that there are forty-one different marked routes in Illinois alone. Thirteen of these routes either enter Chicago or make connections within a few miles of the city.

These routes include the Lincoln highway, Dixie highway, Egyptian trail, Pontiac trail, Illinois Valley way, Grant highway, Chicago-Kansas City-Gulf road, Chicago-Frankfort route, Valparaiso-Joliet route, Jackson highway, Yellowstone trail, Starved Rock trail, and Cannonball trail.

The Lincoln highway, marked with the familiar red, white, and blue bands bearing the letter "L," traverses the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Its nearest point to Chicago is Chicago Heights, from which place it runs to Joliet, Aurora, and Geneva and then goes to the far west. The Dixie highway, as its name indicates, taps the south and runs from Chicago to Miami and other Florida points, with a branch running north from Indianapolis around the borders of western and northern Michigan and thence south through Detroit, Toledo, Dayton, Cincinnati, Lexington, and Knoxville to Chattanooga, where it meets the Louisville-Indianapolis-Danville-Chicago section. In addition there is a connection between Indianapolis and Dayton.

The Dixie highway is marked by a stenciled bale of cotton bearing the name of the route. The route is not as well marked as the Lincoln highway, but it is said the signboarding work is to be pushed rapidly from now on. The Dixie line intersects the Lincoln highway at Chicago Heights and comes into the city through Homewood and Blue Island and up Western avenue to Garfield boulevard and thence to Michigan avenue.

The Egyptian trail, running from Chicago to Cairo, Ill., goes south in Halsted street, through Harvey and Homewood, at the north limits of which it meets the Dixie highway, continuing with it for four blocks, and then going west through Matteson and thence south through Kankakee, Champaign, Mattoon, Centralia, and Carbondale to Cairo. The trail is marked by a pyramid, with the letters "E" and "T" on either side of the symbol.

The Pontiac trail, when finished and signboarded, should make an excellent route from Chicago to St. Louis. The trail was christened in August, 1915, when a mile of guide posts were erected by the Goodrich Tire company. The signs bear the full length image of an Indian holding a map of Illinois. The route runs from Chicago through Summit, Argo, Lockport, Joliet, and on south to St. Louis.

The Illinois Valley way, or the "Ivy," as it has been nicknamed, connects Chicago with Peoria, via Archer avenue, Summit, Spring Forest, Lockport, and Joliet. The temporary routing at present is via Oak Park, Lyons, and Riverside to Summit. It is marked "I-V way." The Grant highway, which also will bear improvement, is marked by two yellow bands with a band of white between. The route runs out of the city via Washington boulevard and Lake street onto the Elgin road through Addison, Bloomingdale, and Ontarioville. From Elgin it goes through Rockford, Freeport, and Galena to Dubuque.

The Starved Rock trail, which is excellently marked, takes the tourist out of Chicago via Washington boulevard to its end at Marengo avenue, where the first telephone pole is marked with yellow and white bands and the inscription, "Ottawa-Starved Rock trail." The route goes through Maywood, Naperville, Aurora, Plano, Sandwich, and Somonauk to Ottawa and historic Starved Rock park.

The Chicago-Kansas City-Gulf road is routed out of Chicago the same as the Starved Rock trail to Maywood, goes to West Chicago, and then follows the Lincoln highway through Geneva, De Kalb, Rochelle, Dixon, and Sterling, after which it dips southwest through Lyndon and Hillsdale to Moline and Rock Island, from which cities the route continues to Kansas City and then on to the gulf. The symbol of this route is a square, with the letters "C-K-C-G" arranged around its four sides.

The Cannon Ball trail follows the Starved Rock trail out of Chicago and as far as Somonauk, where, instead of dropping to the south, it continues west through Earlville, Mendota, and Lemoille, where it turns southwest and runs through Princeton, Kewanee, Galva, Galesburg, Abingdon, Bushnell, and other towns to Quincy. The symbol of the trail is a cannon ball, surmounted by the letter "C."

Another important route is the Yellowstone trail, which comes into Chicago from eastern points, running through Fort Wayne, Plymouth, Gary, and South Chicago. The Yellowstone route leaves the city over Sheridan road, runs through Evanston and other lake shore suburbs to Waukegan, Kenosha, Racine, and Milwaukee and on north through Oshkosh, Eau Claire, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and thence west to Yellowstone national park, Glacier national park, and the coast. The official mark of the trail is a black arrow inside a circle and the name of the route.

The Jackson highway, which connects Chicago with New Orleans, after touching at Lafayette, Indianapolis, Bardstown, Nashville, and Mississippi cities, with a loop running down into Alabama and then west along the gulf coast, to New Orleans, is completely marked out of Chicago with "J-H" in black letters on a white background. The route leaves Chicago via the south park system, South Chicago, Hammond, and on through Crown Point, Thayer, Rensselaer, Montmorenci, Lafayette, and Frankfort to Indianapolis and from there south.

There are two signboarded routes close to Chicago that puzzle some motorists as to just what they are.

One is from Chicago, starting at One Hundred and Nineteenth street and Western avenue, Morgan Park, and follows south in Western avenue to Broadway, in Blue Island, then turns west and south to Frankfort and connects with the Lincoln highway. This route is marked with black letters on a white background with the letters "C-F," meaning Chicago to Frankfort.

This route passes the Midlothian golf grounds, as well as the road that leads into the Cook county poor farm at Oak Forest. Blue Island garage men state this route has been of great help to them, inasmuch as there are five turns in the road within two miles of Blue Island, which would confuse a motorist going to these points or to points farther west.

The second route is marked with black letters on a white background with the letters "V-J," meaning Valparaiso to Joliet. This road and the Lincoln highway are the same for a portion of the way.

A Surprise Demand Which Makers Cannot Meet

1—A New-Type Sedan Top—Removable
2—The Mitchell Springfield Type Sedan
3—Cabriolet—The Mitchell Coupe—Roadster
4—All-Season Limousines and Coupes

Here are some facts which call for prompt consideration if you seek a winter car.

First, there is a dearth of cars this fall fitted for year-'round service. And those are the coming types. There will not be half enough.

Second, in the Mitchell models—the advance designs—there is a very small production. And you'll prefer these models.

A 20-Fold Demand

We suppose the demand for all-season types has increased twenty-fold in a year.

And history shows that when a trend gains that momentum it soon dominates the field.

So this is sure: A large percentage of buyers hereafter will demand one car for all weathers and seasons. That demand is rooted in good sense, so it is bound to flourish.

But it has grown so fast that fine-car makers this fall cannot half-way meet it. There will be an enormous shortage. So folks who seek a car of this sort should decide at once.

Next-Year Models

The Mitchell luxury models—now on exhibit—are designs just completed for the 1917 Shows.

They were all designed under John W. Bate, the famous efficiency expert. And under his motto—"Do everything in the best way that anybody knows."

So our craftsmen first examined all the other fine models built. All the latest—European and American. No attractive feature anywhere has been overlooked.

These new Mitchells, therefore, combine more appealing features than any other single car. You can prove that in five minutes.

But these are advance models. This fall's production is extremely limited, and it is nearly sold. So if you want one of them we must know at once.

Five New Designs

We have a new-type Demountable Top which fits the Mitchell Touring Car. The windows and supports disappear when not wanted, as in the Springfield type.

This doesn't look like an added top. It doesn't overlap. It looks like a Sedan, with electric dome light, curtained windows, gray upholstery, etc. It comes with the Mitchell Touring Car for $300 extra.

The Mitchell Sedan is a Springfield type of all-weather car. A superb Sedan with the windows up, a perfect Touring Car when the windows are out.

In the Mitchell Limousine all windows drop. And so in the Mitchell Coupe. Thus all these five types render year-'round service.

Many Extra Features

In all Mitchell models you will find many extra features. They are paid for by factory savings, due to John W. Bate. His efficiency methods and this model plant give us enormous advantage. Compared with the average car in this class, the Mitchell offers at least 20 per cent extra value.

The Mitchell of today embodies 700 improvements which John W. Bate has made. Most of them mean added strength and endurance.

You will want the Mitchell when you know it. So we urge you to see these luxury models while we can still supply them.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

THE YELLOW GOSPEL OF FEAR.

Every American of perception and understanding knows that abnormal times are to be expected as soon as Europe has fought its way to peace. There is a touch of them already. We do not know what form our difficulties will take and some Americans may be foolish enough to think that there will be no difficulties.

In some form, whatever it may be, the difficulties will come, pressing against every weak spot in the American organization, threatening the comforts and security which the nation has been enjoying, and demanding, if they are to be handled, wise, resolute, and courageous policies.

With this period of danger coming the nation is asked, by the spreaders of the yellow gospel of fear, to prepare itself by panic. It is asked to thank God for Wilson and scurry away from every duty and obligation. It is asked to confess weakness, flabbiness, yellowness, and moral cowardice, to be glad if it can avoid an unpleasant fact at whatever injury to honorable and courageous instincts.

It is asked to sink itself in a mire of abject terror, to forfeit its self-respect, and to confess that a yellow race has been formed where there had been once a self-respecting red race and later a self-respecting white race.

It is asked to make the succession of races in this land red, white, and yellow by adding the yellow to the history as it stands. The woman who went with her husband and sons across the mountains and into the forests and plains and took her part in building the republic is to be succeeded by the woman unwilling that her husband and sons should get out from the protection of her skirts.

The man who cleared a bit of land and had his rifle resting on a stump as he did so is to be succeeded by the man whose greatest act of daring is to fight his way through a crowd of women to get a seat on a street car, whose only experience with a dangerous weapon is when he tries to carve a capon, and whose only ambition is to have a fur overcoat and know a few head waiters by their first names.

A nation lacking a brave and self-sacrificing aristocracy, one forced to courage by caste and the egotism of leadership, and lacking a stolid peasantry, accustomed to obey and suffer, must be a reasoning, resolute democracy if it is to endure.

We have not and do not want a caste aristocracy. We have not and do not want a stolid peasantry. But these are elements of strength and a democracy must find in itself higher elements of strength than them. It cannot be debauched by materialistic selfishness and be strong. It cannot be guided by timorous men and shrinking women and be strong, and if it be not strong it will be imposed upon by some nation to which it presents both wealth and weakness.

We do not say that our national difficulties will take the form of war. There is no reason why they must. We know there is distress ahead of the United States. It can be reduced or magnified. That depends upon how the nation conducts itself.

The nation is large enough to be able to protect itself. It is large enough to assert its policies and carry them through. It is large enough, but it also must be resolute enough. It cannot confess its timidity and find protection in its bulk. If its bulk rests upon a pair of shaking knees its size will only invite aggression.

At the moment when the American people ought to be reconciling themselves to the facts of the real world they are invited into a hysteria of illusion. At the moment when they ought to be composing themselves to meet with all their strength and wisdom whatever problems may come before them they are being scared into a hysteria of fear.

This demoralization is merely a political device to catch votes. The old days of bravado were better. They were deceptive and injurious enough, but they were better than this degeneracy. In the older days the campaigner wrapped the flag about him and went up with the eagle. Now the Democratic campaigner wraps yellow ribbons about him and runs away with the rabbit.

The bravado was injurious to the sober judgment of the nation, but this gospel of fear is injurious to the moral and physical courage of the nation.

At a time when the nation ought to be preparing itself for the shock of abnormal times it is urged and implored to take refuge in cowardice.

Thank God for Wilson. He kept us out of a war which presented no enemies to us. He will make us unfit to meet an enemy when one selects us for the accomplishment of purposes it has in mind.

DEPARTED CAMPAIGN JOYS.

In the evolution of politics the glory of the presidential campaign has departed for the small boy. Within the memory of men not entirely senile from age, the quadrennial contest was a season of joy for the youth of the land. Half a century ago the presidential campaign had picturesqueness and pep which in the contest of today seems sadly lacking. At least it appears so to the graybeard who can remember the fall nights of 1868 and 1872.

Today the campaign is polemical, detached, and sometimes almost impersonal. The candidate, if he makes a personal canvass, travels in a special train, and when he speaks it is in some huge auditorium to enter which one must have a ticket. The physical aspects of the campaign are meager, almost negligible. A few posters may show upon the billboards, and here and there a partisan puts his candidate's picture in the window. Motors carrying a music machine or a brass band playing sad airs from revues pass with signs asking for votes, but these excite only a languid interest. Apathy, inducing yawns, broods over the political scene.

It was different in the olden time. Music reminiscent of the recent war stirred all who heard it, and it was everywhere. There were nightly massmeetings in halls and vacant lots, each preceded by a torchlight procession. Catch words for candidate or cause added vim to the contest. "Wide-Awakes," "Tanners," or what not the adherents of this or that candidate called themselves. Arrayed in waterproof capes and carrying ill-smelling kerosene torches, they marched cheering for miles. And, oh, the joy of the lads who were allowed to carry the swinging flambeaux in order to swell the procession's length! They didn't know what half of it was about, but they marched and cheered with their fathers, or in the opposite party's show. Little gilt buttons containing the candidates' portraits, rosettes, and ribbon badges were treasured in collections, the precursors of the stamp hoards.

Every ward had its marching club and sometimes two or three. The lines of march would tangle themselves up, and some of the Tanners would find themselves marching in a Greeley parade, or two rival processions would clash and there would be broken torches and broken heads, to the great delight of the small boy.

And the spellbinders! Conkling, Blaine, Ben Butler, Bob Ingersoll, Breckenridge, Palmer, Don Cameron, Zach Chandler, Logan, Trumbull, Randall, Hendricks, Horizontal Bill Morrison, Voorhees, the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash, and Vilas of Wisconsin! Around these men of oratory crowded the small boys and the men, deeming each a Demosthenes, and certain that the speech they heard was the final word of the party and that the election was all over but the shouting.

What post-campaign loot the boys of that day accumulated! Piles of soiled capes and once gayly colored caps; stacks of vile smelling torches, hundreds of buttons and badges, and something else. For by their youthful participation in these parades, by their presence at meetings in halls and in vacant spaces, they unconsciously brought away the germs of political knowledge, the beginnings of party loyalty, and the admiration for the leaders whom they heard speak. By these means of personal contact with the campaign they were made to feel an individual interest in it. These joys and advantages seem to be denied to the boys of today.

TO WOMEN.

For the first time in the history of this commonwealth of Illinois its women citizens are to take part directly in the election of a chief executive of the nation.

There are those who believe the women voters will determine whether the twenty-nine electoral votes belonging to this state shall be cast for Mr. Hughes or Mr. Wilson.

However that may be, the responsibility upon the shoulders of these new voters is heavy.

It is, in fact, a double responsibility; one responsibility—it is the highest—to the nation; one responsibility to the cause of woman's effective citizenship. Illinois women may prove their strength and discernment at this election, as we believe they will, or they may enforce the arguments brought against their enfranchisement.

The Democratic campaign for woman's vote is directed to play upon her fears and upon her influence in the criticism of public policies. Women are expected to respond to the appeal "he kept us out of war" more readily than men, not only because of their hatred of violence, but because they are new to political thought and controversy and are less likely than men to realize that a policy of weak opportunism, a policy of shirk, achieves only a false and temporary peace and leads to national degeneration and eventual war.

No American statesman seeks war, and it is unscrupulous demagogy unsupported by a single word or act of his which asserts that "a vote for Hughes is a vote for war." Mr. Hughes will not procrastinate and shift his ground. He will face issues squarely and deal with them conclusively. And that both the instinct and intelligence of women will tell them is the only way to preserve a peace that is tolerable to honorable people.

But the Democratic campaign is also directed at woman's "idealism." No president has been a greater master of plausible rhetoric than Mr. Wilson, and with its shining garment he has arrayed his policies. But there is nothing ideal in the avoidance of responsibilities for the sake of comfort and temporary peace. There is nothing ideal about the raw appeal of the Democratic campaign to the gluttony of war fed prosperity or to the naked fear of any war, however honorable in its purposes.

Idealism that is worth our seeking is the idealism of noble deeds. The whole public—and private—life of Hughes is an expression of the best form of idealism—an idealism made effectual in courageous and public spirited deeds. When Mr. Wilson was a tory theorist, Hughes was fighting for American liberalism, for clean industry, clean finance, and clean politics. He was among the first and foremost of the militant progressives and the whole inspiring movement which has raised American business finance and politics to higher standards received from his leadership in the gas investigation, the insurance investigation, in the labor and social and business legislation of his terms as governor and his enlightened decisions in the Supreme court, contributions which are of the highest value to American progress.

No public man of our time has better claim than Charles Evans Hughes to the approval of those citizens, men and women, who would have the policies of the American republic, whether domestic or international, touched with high and noble purpose. Hughes is no eloquent rhetorician. His deeds are eloquent, and his whole career is guaranty that the policies of the nation in his hands will cease to waver and will again exhibit the clean strength and sound principle which are the best security against disaster.

MUST HAVE PROTECTION.

[From the Manufacturers' Record.]

The foundation of this prosperity is not even as stable as the sand itself. It is true that, while the war lasts, we may be able, as is often done in great structures where the foundation is unstable, to dig down deep enough to build a foundation on which to buttress our prosperity without destroying our prosperity, but he would be a foolish man, guilty of an unpardonable blunder in the study of economics, if he did not recognize that war has created our prosperity, and that when a readjustment of Europe's condition is over our prosperity will end, unless we have safeguarded the situation by the creation of a protective tariff as essential to save us from industrial and commercial destruction as our navy and army may some day be necessary to save us from national destruction. The man who fails to recognize this situation knows little about business conditions and world economic affairs.

ACCORDING to German official reports, the specie reserves of the imperial treasury and of the great banks in Berlin are larger than those of any other nation excepting the United States.

Yet the kaiser's government has made it a criminal offense for any one to hoard gold or silver, or to refrain from turning these precious metals over to the state in return for treasury notes. Even foreigners have to submit to search at the frontier to prevent their carrying any gold or silver out of the country.

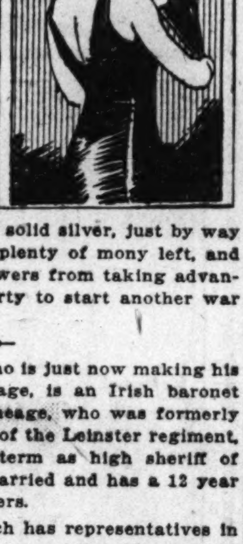
Some time ago a well known banker of Amsterdam and a subject of Queen Wilhelmina, who had paid a business visit to Berlin, was arrested on his return journey at the frontier, taken back by the German police to Aix-la-Chapelle, and sentenced there to a month's imprisonment on a charge of having sought to carry money out of the country, the money consisting of about $150 in gold and silver, which was found in his pockets, and which he pleaded, quite in vain, was needed for his traveling expenses.

On completing his sentence the money's equivalent in German paper was restored to him, the gold and silver remaining in Germany.

And now comes the official announcement that Empress Augusta, who celebrated her fifty-eighth birthday on Sunday last, has given, with the sanction of her consort, orders to the effect that all gold and silver plate, all gold and silver ornaments, in fact, every bit of precious metal that does not possess an exceptional historic or artistic value as unique and irreplaceable, are to be sent to the treasury crucibles and to be melted down for the use of the government.

The empress and the princesses are also taking steps to sell the greater part of their jewels, and everything that can possibly be spared is being sacrificed, the ladies of the court of Berlin as well as those of the kaiser's capital being required to follow suit.

The treasure of gold and silver plate of the Hohenzollerns has been great indeed, amounting in value to many millions of dollars, and presenting a gorgeous spectacle at great court entertainments at Berlin and at Potsdam.



It may be recalled that after the seven years' war, when it was widely published that Frederick the Great had been completely ruined thereby, he caused the heavy balustrade of the gallery running around one of the largest halls of his palace at Potsdam to be constructed of solid silver, just by way of showing that he had plenty of mony left, and to discourage foreign powers from taking advantage of his alleged poverty to start another war with Prussia.

Sir Valentine Grace, who is just now making his debut on the London stage, is an Irish baronet of particulary ancient lineage, who was formerly in the army as a captain of the Leinster regiment, and who has served a term as high sheriff of Queens county. He is married and has a 12 year old boy and three daughters.

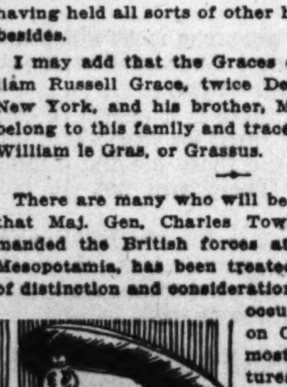
The Grace family, which has representatives in the United States, ranks among the oldest of the Anglo-Norman houses to settle in Ireland, and Sir Valentine is able to trace his descent from William le Gras, or Grassus, Earl of Albemarle, and grandson of Odo, Count of Champagne, a comrade in arms of William the Conqueror.

William le Grassus was seneschal of Normandy in 1203, and his sons accompanied Lord Pembroke to Ireland and received large grants of land. A hundred years later the surname of Grassus had been transformed into Grace, and in the reign of Queen Elizabeth Oliver Grace was Lord of Carney of County Tipperary. Gerald Grace fell in the battle of Kilrush, and his estates, about 20,000 acres, were confiscated by Oliver Cromwell.

The family fortunes were restored in a measure by his grandson, Oliver Grace, who held the lucrative office of chief remembrancer of the exchequer in Ireland. Richard Grace, member of parliament for Queens county, received a baronetcy from George III., and the present baronet is the fifth holder of the title, his father, the late Sir Percy Grace of Grace castle, having been high sheriff of Dublin, commissioner of national education, and having held all sorts of other honors and dignities besides.

I may add that the Graces of New York—William Russell Grace, twice Democratic mayor of New York, and his brother, Michael Grace—both belong to this family and trace their descent from William le Gras, or Grassus.

There are many who will be interested to learn that Maj. Gen. Charles Townshend, who commanded the British forces at Kut-el-Amara, in Mesopotamia, has been treated with a good deal of distinction and consideration by the Turks. He occupies a pretty villa on Chalki, perhaps the most beautiful and picturesque of the so-called Princess islands.



He has his Parisian wife and his daughter living with him, and the American embassy at Constantinople has placed at his disposal, in the name of the English government, a motor boat, in which, with the permission of the Turkish authorities, he is permitted to cruise about among the Princess islands.

The islands are dotted everywhere with the ruins of ancient palaces and temples. One of the smallest islands of the group, Oria, which is uninhabited nowadays, came into public notice a few years ago as the place to which all the dogs of Constantinople had been banished to perish of hunger and of fighting.

Stamboul now is rid, it is true, of those dogs which from time immemorial had been its chief scavengers and which apparently were immune from hydrophobia. But Constantinople now is infested instead with myriads of cats, which serve no useful purpose save to keep under control those waterside rats which are supposed to propagate the bubonic plague and other diseases.

They do no sort of scavenging work and render the romantically beautiful nights of Stamboul appalling and sleepless by their terrific caterwauling. Now everybody is praying either for an invasion of dogs to drive away the cats or else for the deportation of the entire feline popuation of Stamboul, at present the cattiest city of the universe.

HEALTH IN COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

PORTER county is one of the wealthy agricultural communities of the country. Located in the northwestern corner of Indiana and bordering both on the state of Illinois and Lake Michigan it is traversed by railroads and reached by steamships. Its agricultural products find a ready market at high prices in Chicago and the great industrial centers bordering Lake Michigan in northwestern Indiana. The soil is fertile. Furthermore, the people have had an exceptionally good opportunity to learn how to keep healthy, and especially how to keep their school children healthy. For years Dr. Hurty has educated them in hygiene.

Some years ago Valparaiso demonstrated how to control contagion in schools for the benefit of larger and more pretentious cities. Two years ago, on Indiana's disease prevention day, Porter county had a school parade through the streets of Valparaiso in which several thousand school children participated. Each school in the county had one or more floats in the parade and each float exemplified one or more health lessons.

It is well to know these facts in order to apply the results of a school survey of Porter county recently made by the public health service to other counties. The survey has shown that conditions are not what they should be. Some of the very schools which proclaimed health most effectively in the parade in 1914 were found to have some very unhealthful conditions and a large proportion of unhealthy children.

The probability is that conditions in Porter county are a good deal better than in the average county. It is reasonable to suppose that there are few counties in which the average conditions are so good as they are in Porter county. The right attitude for the person who reads of the conditions revealed by this survey is to try to estimate how much worse his own county is.

The estimated population of Porter county in May, 1915, was 21,250. The foreign born white population was 14.5 of the total population. Since there were but eight Negroes in the county the native born white population was 85.5 per cent of the whole. The school population was 3,933, the school enrollment 3,103.

The only city in the county is Valparaiso, which had a population of 6,967 in 1910. The school population of Valparaiso in 1915 was 1,653. As this was to be a survey of rural schools, Valparaiso and Valparaiso schools were omitted.

The average daily attendance at the rural schools was 2,264. In the county there were 2,488 pupils. These reported that in the county there were 5,998 boys and 5,785 girls; 2,488 attended school and the remainder were either above or below school age. The average number of children in a family was 4.8—2.44 boys and 2.36 girls.

Seventy-four children reported the occurrence of tuberculosis at some time or other in their families, 129 reported the death of their fathers, 141 the death of their mothers, and 11 the death of both parents.

These 2,488 children were in seventy-six schools; 75 school buildings and premises were surveyed.

These figures are cited to show that there were enough observations to serve as a basis for the conclusions drawn. The requirements laid down for a rural school were: Ample size to allow sufficient playground space, sanitary privies, healthful location with sufficient elevation to insure good drainage, accessibility to as large a part of the school population as possible, an unobstructed sky view for purposes of natural illumination and sufficient isolation from disturbing noises and other nuisances.

Four of the schools had inside toilets. At Chesterton the toilets were connected with the sewer system; at Flint Lake and Hebron, with cesspools; at Porter, with an incinerator. The latter system was strongly condemned.

Classification of privies: In the rating of privies, a surface privy open at the back is rated at 10; a surface privy closed at the back is rated at 25; a privy with a water tight receptacle is rated at 50; a water tight receptacle privy closed at the back and thoroughly fly proof is rated at 75.

None of the seventy-two school yard privies was scored higher than 50. The average distance from the school privy to the school well was 90.7 feet. The water used in 75 per cent of the schools was from shallow driven wells.

Adjustable desks were found in 9.15 per cent of the classrooms. Window shades adjustable from top and bottom for the regulation of illumination were used in 51.5 per cent of the schoolrooms. Daylight was admitted from a desirable direction in only 42.2 per cent of the classrooms. The average ratio of window glass area to floor space for all schools was 15.5 per cent; the maximum was 20 per cent; the minimum, 8 per cent. The walls were painted too dark in forty-six rooms and too light in twenty.

Closed stoves were used in 41.1 per cent of the rural schools, jacketed stoves in 34.5 per cent, and hot air furnaces in 21.1 per cent. Humidity was always inadequate. In no school was it as high as 40 per cent. The ventilation was usually poor.

This is a brief summary of the more important points in the hygiene of the buildings and grounds. Let us see if these conditions were reflected in the physical condition of the school children.

Inasmuch as 31.2 per cent of the boys and 28.2 per cent of the girls had some defect in their hearing apparatus, and 15 per cent of the boys and 11.3 per cent of the girls had impairment of the hearing, ear trumpets will sell like hot cakes in Porter county forty years from now.

Defects of the visual apparatus were noted in 47.2 per cent of the boys and in 45.5 per cent of the girls. Many of these defects were of minor character. The greater number of these defects were due to errors of refraction. The boys and girls of Porter county either are or should be bespectacled like the cartoons of the German child.

Goiter or simple enlargement of the thyroid gland was noted in 61 per cent of the children. Dr. Clark, one of the surveyors, thought there might be some connection between the nature of the underlying rocks and this great prevalence of goiter, since in another survey made in another district where there was a limestone substratum goiter had been noted as being unduly prevalent. Underneath Porter county there is found Lower Helderburg and Niagara limestone strata and the artesian water of the county has a heavy lime content.

Seven cases of trachoma and two cases of tuberculosis were encountered; 54.5 per cent of the boys and 44.2 per cent of the girls had two or more defective teeth. Very little dental correction had been done in children under 8; 18.3 per cent of the boys and 10.5 per cent of the girls used the toothbrush; 57.8 per cent of the boys and 48.6 per cent of the girls used it occasionally, and its daily use was noted in but 13.9 per cent of the boys and 40.9 per cent of the girls.

Of the girls 16.06 per cent were retarded mentally to such a degree that upon reaching adult life they would still have the mentality of children. Of the boys 1.2 per cent were exceptionally retarded. "The undue number of one room schools, which were of faulty construction, with poor equipment and with imperfect teaching facilities, was largely responsible for the retardation found in the county. The average loss of grade of 193 children was 1.28 years for the girls and 1.5 years for the boys—a total of 269 school years. No special classes for the instruction of retarded children were found.

The food of the children was faulty, especially when the good economic conditions prevailing in the county are taken into consideration. Porter county is a rich dairy district, yet only one-sixth of the children reported that they drank milk. On the other hand, 57 per cent of the children had coffee for breakfast, 37 per cent had potatoes for breakfast, 32 per cent had some form of cereal, 43 per cent of the children ate some form of proteid for breakfast; 29 children went to school withut breakfast. These figures do not indicate bad conditions. In fact, they indicate that the children of Porter county breakfast much better than do the children of the large industrial centers, where so many mothers go out to work.

In 13.2 per cent of the boys and 9.8 per cent of the girls adenoids were present to an extent calling for surgical treatment. Enlarged or diseased tonsils were found in 195 boys and 190 girls, or 15.4 per cent of the children. Of these 7.6 per cent, or practically half of the children with enlarged tonsils, had tonsils in need of surgical relief. Diseased tonsils and adenoids were associated with impaired hearing in 7 per cent of the children examined.

No survey was made of the history of cases of such forms of contagion as scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles, typhoid fever, or smallpox.

The recommendations of Drs. Clark, Collins, and Treadway were as follows:

1. Especial effort should be made to consolidate an additional number of rural schools of the county wherever this may be practicable.

2. In cases where consolidation cannot be accomplished a number of rural schools should be remodeled so as to render them sanitary.

3. Greater attentin should be given to the daylight illumination of a number of classrooms of the county. Windows should be rearranged and the interior decorations selected to meet the requirements of light diffusion most desirable for visual comfort.

4. All of the schools of the county should be provided with sanitary privies for the protection of the school water supply and as an example in personal and public hygiene.

5. Each school in the county unconnected with a general water system should be provided with individual sources of water for drinking purposes. These should be properly protected against surface drainage. Furthermore, the practice of obtaining the water for school purposes from neighboring farmhouses should be discontinued.

6. The heating of classrooms by closed stoves should be prohibited and greater attention given to the upkeep and installation of heating plants.

7. Ventilation by the routine opening of windows should be a requirement, and the installation of protected openings to the outside air should be provided in all classrooms heated and ventilated by the gravity method.

8. Better cloakroom accommodations should be provided in all schools and the use of classroom walls and entrance halls for this purpose prohibited.

9. Greater security against fire in the larger consolidated schools should be obtained through the installation of fire fighting apparatus, properly arranged fire escapes, and the institution of regular fire drills.

10. The duties of medical inspector of schools should be combined with those of local health officer.

11. A full time officer should be required to be appointed for the discharge of these combined duties, thereby preventing the spread of disease in the school and improving health conditions in the county.

12. It would be desirable for the above mentioned officer to be affiliated also with the juvenile courts or other courts having jurisdiction over juvenile delinquents to make mental examinations of such offenders for the purpose of mental classification in the interest of justice.

13. Steps should be taken to secure institutional treatment for the mental defectives in the county.

14. Measures should be taken to secure special classes and individualized instruction for children who are simply retarded and fail to make grade.

DISEASED TONSILS.

F. C. B. writes: "Would like to inquire through your column in regard to diseased tonsils, or white spots in the crypts. Are these caused from an acid stomach or an inactive liver, or is it a disease of the tonsils themselves? Is there any way they can be avoided?"

REPLY.

This is a disease of the tonsils. Some persons can cure this condition by massaging the tonsils with the handle of a teaspoon. In most instances the services of a physician are advised.

COPPER SULPHATE EATS PIPE.

The recirculating pipe in the swimming pool of a prominent institution was noticed to be leaking. An engineer was called in. He found that the copper sulphate used to sterilize the water in the swimming pool was eating out the pipe. He advised that either the use of copper sulphate be discontinued or that bronze or brass pipes be used.

MOVING MAY DISQUALIFY.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I am registered in the precinct where I now live, but am going to move before the November election. However, I will pay the November rent for the apartment in which I am at the present time and will not pay any rent for the apartment into which I am moving until December. Does not the payment of the November rent in my present place make it my legal residence until the first of December? R. A. A.

The payment of rent at an apartment where a person does not actually reside does not make him a resident at that place. If you have actually removed from one precinct into another within thirty days of election you will not be qualified to vote.
DENNIS J. EGAN,
Chief Clerk Board of Election.

WHO WOMEN MAY VOTE FOR.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[To the Friend of the People.]—For what offices may women cast their vote at the coming election? C. R.

DENNIS J. EGAN,
Chief Clerk Board of Election.

COOP WILL BE REMOVED.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please advise if it is permissible for a meat market located on Princeton avenue to keep chicken coops filled with chickens or poultry on edge of sidewalk all day. M. A. T.

A notice for the removal of this coop has been served. The inspector of the district will follow the matter up and see that the nuisance is abated. A. W. MILLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

TIME LIMIT ON ACCIDENT SUIT

A question was asked, "How long a time can a person wait after an accident has occurred before bringing suit?" The answer was, "Five years, unless it is a death case." This answer is a typographical error. The correct answer is two years, unless it is a death case, in which case suit must be brought within one year, and, we might also add, even if the suit is brought on the theory of a contract, under a recent ruling of our Supreme court it must be brought within two years.

LIGHTS IN THE HALL.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I reside in a flat building on Lake Park avenue, consisting of one store and two flats. There are gas jets on the second and third floor landings in the hall which are attached to the meters of the tenants. I have found the landlord's gas bill in my mail box, which shows no registration for four months. By shutting off my meter in the basement the gas jet at the hall landing is extinguished, indicating that I am taxed for the gas consumed on the second floor landing. Is it compulsory to have a hand rail along the stairs? The windows are loose for want of paint, new frames, and broken ropes, being neither wind or water tight. Please inform me if a lease can be broken under these conditions and if the landlord is not responsible for the gas consumed in the halls.
CONSTANT READER.

1. You should hold back from your rent an amount sufficient to cover the cost of your gas which the landlord uses.
2. The landlord is liable for injuries due to his failure to provide proper railing.
3. No.

REMEMBER THE TITANIC.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—When the Titanic sank in 1912, two-thirds of its voyage was completed. Its captain was attempting to make a record. He had been repeatedly warned by wireless of the presence of icebergs in the vicinity. But he did not heed them. Two thousand passengers sat on deck until the fateful minute, oblivious to danger, and with a fake sense of trust in their captain. Sixteen hundred of those 2,000 trustful people died. They didn't have a chance to escape.

The present Democratic administration offers a strikingly appalling parallel. We are furnishing munitions—death—to the Germans. But we are not giving it away, we are selling it. Moreover, we are not selling it at cost, not at a normal profit; but at a holdup man's price. Let every man ponder these thoughts. America may be too dense, too self-centered to lose her self-respect; but she cannot win respect among other nations by these and similarly inexplicable methods. We may have a lawful right to do it, but it will never be popular. It is not popular in any of the belligerent countries. It will be less so when the war is over. You may say that our proceeding is lawful; but you cannot say so with pride.

The war is not yet over. Our icebergs are ahead. We need a captain on the American ship who will know where the icebergs are, and more than that, a man who will provide enough life boats for all. We need a man who will not only listen to facts but a man who will stir up facts.

Then we need a man—not a man too proud to turn the wheel. We need a man of action—not a man to teach us rhetoric in a crisis. The man we need is Charles Evans Hughes, a man accustomed to stirring up facts, to listening to facts, to analysing facts, and then to acting in accordance with facts.

Every man or woman who casts a vote on Nov. 7 has a duty to perform more sacred than at any time since 1862. The highest conception of a nation is that of trustee for posterity. The men who voted for Lincoln in 1860 had such a conception. Are we providing life boats for our children? Have we got enough for ourselves? Remember the Titanic! C.

CLARK STREET AND ITS NAME.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Referring to a letter stating that Clark street was named for a Methodist clergyman of that name, it should be said that Chicago, before she had the benefit of clergy, and when a scant handful of French fur traders constituted her entire voting population, gave the name of six great Americans and one Frenchman to her principal thoroughfares. This happened in 1830 when the canal commissioners filed a plat of the village on Aug. 4, wherein on the north and south streets were named as follows: Dearborn, Clark, La Salle, Wells, Franklin, Market, Canal, Clinton, Jefferson.

It should be noted that on the original canal plat as well as on the early maps of Chicago the name is spelled "Clarke," following the text books of the day. This error arose from the fact that George Rogers Clark's signature ended with a flourish that made so perfect an "e" that it was adopted as such. A contemporary copy of the original canal plat may be seen at the Historical society as well as the compass with which the three-eighths of a square mile were surveyed by James Thompson of St. Louis in 1829-30.

The honor of having a great Chicago street named after him is perhaps the greatest honor that the man who saved the old northwest from the British in 1778 will ever get. Let us not see any confusion to rob him of this nor deprive Chicago school children of the stimulus that such a name gives to interest in history.

PATRIOTIC WOMEN RESENT INSULTS.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have read an article by "D. I. McD.," in which he or she states that "Woodrow Wilson will assuredly be elected by the women votes of Illinois by the political gag, 'He kept us out of war.'"

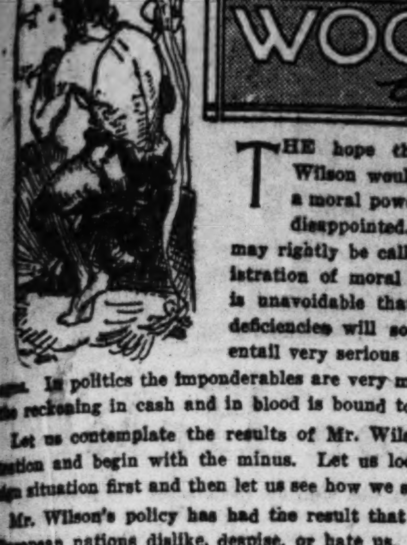
Can you inform us of any nation that was ever going to war with the United States?

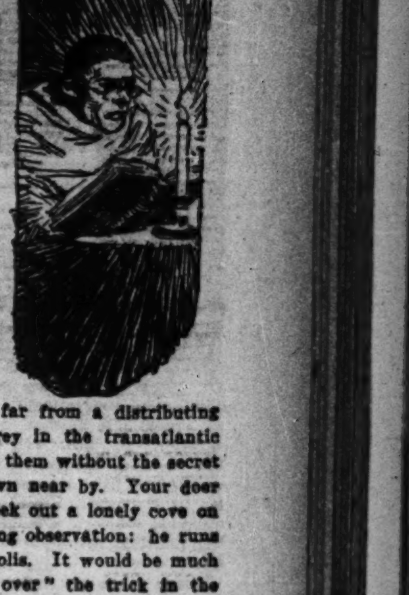
Wilson's Mexican policy was simply a college professor's usual tactics—to punish the whole class for one scholar's disobedience.

Let me say to "D. I. McD." there are over 20,000 patriotic, loyal women in Illinois, wives, mothers, sisters, and daughters of the men of "the war of the rebellion" who know but "one country, one flag."

That flag was insulted on the Mexican border. To my knowledge no apology has ever been made to that insult. On top of this came the insulting remarks of Secretary Baker on our colonial ancestors. Are we, as intelligent, patriotic women, going to stand for such conditions in our country?

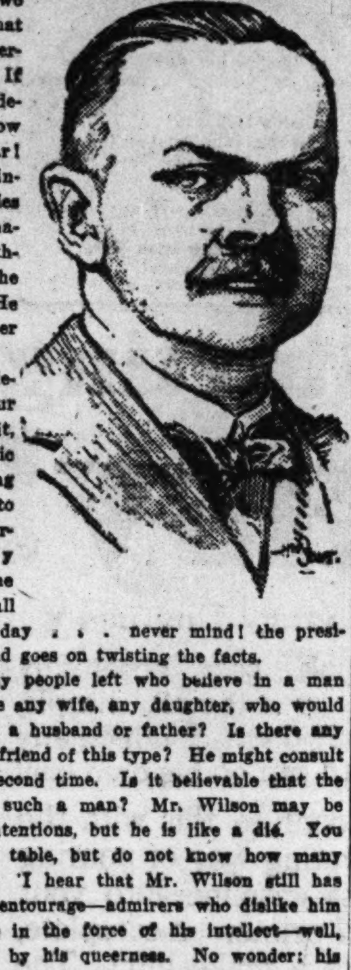
Let us prove our true allegiance to our country and flag by casting our united votes Nov. 7 for Charles E. Hughes.
ELLA V. WORK,
Past Dep't. President Woman's Relief Corps.





WOODROW WILSON

by Edward Goldbeck



THE hope that Woodrow Wilson would prove to be a moral power was cruelly disappointed. His régime may rightly be called the administration of moral losses, and it is unavoidable that these moral deficiencies will sooner or later entail very serious material damages. In politics the imponderables are very momentous and the reckoning in cash and in blood is bound to come.

Let us contemplate the results of Mr. Wilson's administration and begin with the minus. Let us look at the foreign situation first and then let us see how we stand at home.

Mr. Wilson's policy has had the result that all the great European nations dislike, despise, or hate us. There is not one European nation which likes or admires or at least fears this country.

* *

ENGLAND expected us to espouse her cause without any qualification. She expected us to go to war on her side without asking why and without any regard for our own interests. We have no special interests, according to the view of the normal Britisher, or at least we ought not to have any interests, which could separate us from England. The idea that we might antagonize England for national American reasons seems a crime of lese majesty to John Bull.

Mr. Wilson did whatever he could, he bowed to England's decisions, he allowed his mild protests to be ignored for months, and then to be dismissed with a perfunctory semblance of argumentation; he showed in every word and action that his heart was with the allies, but one thing he could not do, and that was the only thing which would have satisfied England: he could not declare war against Germany. As he failed to live up to English expectations in this most important point, everything else was love's labor lost.

The English despise us as a nation of money grabbers which is becoming rich while they are becoming poor; they accuse us of usury and blackmail; they scoff at Mr. Wilson's motto, "Too proud to fight," and there is not the slightest doubt that the war has not fastened but loosened the ties of friendship between the two nations. In Russia and France the feeling is not so intense because these nations could hardly expect the United States to rally to their side, but the prevailing impression, particularly in France, is about the same: the Americans are incapable of generosity, they sell ammunition and foodstuffs to the allies, but if they could they would sell them to Germany, too. They are a nation without ideals; their organism is undermined by the cancer of materialism.

WE can hardly suppose Germany to be enthusiastic about our attitude. The Germans know that but for the unstinted support we gave the allies the war would be over now. Mr. Wilson insulted Germany by calling her policy "inhuman" and "illegal." He threatened to hold her to "strict accountability." He compelled her to conduct the submarine war under conditions which do not allow Germany to use this modern weapon to its full effect. Americans are traveling all the time on ships which carry ammunition. Would we, if we were in Germany's position, allow such a ship to reach the enemy only because some Germans choose to be on her? I doubt it very much, and I hope we would not. No American who has not entirely lost his sense of fairness can blame the Germans if they torpedo a ship which is carrying 18,000 tons of ammunition.

But President Wilson insisted on the right of Americans to travel on ammunition carriers—every patriot will consider the using of this right as a crime because it threatens our country with the most serious complications—and Germany had to give in— . . . temporarily. This was one of Mr. Wilson's triumphs. Under these circumstances the Germans would have to be angels from heaven if they still had a foible for the United States. The "firmness" which Mr. Wilson showed to Germany impressed them as enmity, because they saw the weakness with which he surrendered to England one American right after the other. While announcing again and again that it was his foremost task to preserve international law, the president submitted to English interference with our commerce, to the violation of the mail, to the blacklisting of American firms. If Mr. Wilson had been firm towards both parties, the Germans would have appreciated that and he would have done a real service to humanity, for it is important indeed that not everything which has been stipulated before the war should be thrown aside and disregarded. But the kind of neutrality which Mr. Wilson observed smacked too much of hypocrisy to be swallowed by the Germans.

Result: The great European nations dislike or hate us. None fears us and that is perhaps the worst consequence of Wilsonianism.

The feeling in Mexico is not very different from that in Europe. The Mexicans hate us and we cannot blame them. We interfered with their internal policy without any reason. It was not Mr. Wilson's duty to decide who should be the president of Mexico and the whole trouble started with the president's arrogant order to Huerta to eliminate himself from Mexican politics. When the Democratic era began, the Mexicans felt uneasy about our intentions, but now they hate us bitterly.

This is what may be called the moral losses outside of our frontiers. Now let us look at the internal situation.

* *

MR. WILSON has done more than any other man to mislead the nation in its judgment about the most important issues. He is intellectually unreliable almost to perversity. You never know where he stands today and where he will stand tomorrow. He changes his opinion incessantly, but his followers say that this is rather an advantage and that we need a man who is willing to learn. But between a man who is willing to learn and a weather-cock there is a difference. And the tenure of a president is not a period of theoretical self-development. We expect the highest representative of the nation to have definite ideas about the needs of the present hour and the near future.

Making all sorts of allowances for the difficulties under which the president is laboring, for mistakes of the stenographers, for rhetorical slips and so on, we really can hardly understand how a man of Mr. Wilson's keen and well schooled intellect can so constantly contradict himself. At first he scoffs at those whom the European war makes nervous, then he declares that every day may bring a catastrophe, but he adds in the same breath that there is no immediate danger. After a while he comes out for universal service, but as the author of the "New Freedom" [illegible] the word "compulsory," he calls it voluntary universal service. This philosopher and master of style speaks complete nonsense when he is so pleased.

At first he holds that our navy, as it, will do very well; then he announces that we need the "incomparably greatest navy." One day he says that he stands "for the interests of mankind against the interests of property," and intimates by these words that "mankind" and "property" are irreconcilable contrasts. Two days later he says that civilization and property are inseparable. If my successor, he declaims, does not follow my policy, it is war! As if there were not innumerable possibilities of arranging international difficulties without appealing to the "ultima ratio"! He is a consumate master in muddling issues.

The brotherhoods demand the eight hour day; they must have it, says Wilson, as public opinion is sanctioning it. One proves to him that the brotherhoods demand only more money, that the question is not at all about the eight hour day . . . never mind! the president ignores reality and goes on twisting the facts.

Are there really any people left who believe in a man of this kind? Is there any wife, any daughter, who would like to be led by such a husband or father? Is there any man who would like a friend of this type? He might consult him once, but not a second time. Is it believable that the nation should reëlect such a man? Mr. Wilson may be brimful of the best intentions, but he is like a die. You throw the die on the table, but do not know how many numbers it will show. I hear that Mr. Wilson still has some admirers in his entourage—admirers who dislike him personally, but believe in the force of his intellect—well, even they are puzzled by his queerness. No wonder: his ways are inscrutable. In one thing only he has been as firm as granite: that is his abject humility towards England.

GO out, my friends, he said to the business men, go to foreign countries and work there for the good of this great nation. "But," he ought to have continued, if he wanted his words to accord with his actions—"when you are there, you damned adventurers, don't think that the administration is going to protect your lives or your property. If you ever dare to approach me with such demands I shall send you to . . . Europe, where the governments are still laboring under the absurd idea that those citizens who live in foreign countries are entitled to protection. The 'interests' are behind you, you scoundrels!"

In the antique world it was sufficient to say: "I am a Roman citizen," and nobody dared to touch the man who uttered these magical words. America has no such pretentions. Only don't blame a business man for staying at home under such circumstances. Don't preach initiative when you yourself indulge in cowardice and make cowardice a system! This is another terrible loss. The prestige of a nation is something very valuable. As soon as the other nations become aware of this kind of pusillanimity, they trample you down! Would Japan dare to close the "open door" in China without heeding us in the least if she did not know that we are too proud to fight?

Mr. Wilson has surrendered another right, this time not to foreigners, but to a certain class of our countrymen. We all know that he allowed the brotherhoods to dictate their will to congress. He surrendered the principle of arbitration and he invited all those people who have organized for the betterment of their economic situation to follow the policy of banditry which the brotherhoods adopted with such a stunning success. Those who believe in fairness, in arbitration, in careful investigation and legislation, have buried another illusion and the president has celebrated another triumph. In future years we shall reap what he has sown and we shall be very lucky if it is not a harvest of blood.

THE president has accused the German-Americans of disloyalty. Indiscriminately, without naming anybody or quoting certain cases. The few plots which the hard working detectives discovered did not give him any right to pronounce such an indictment. We felt hurt and we became angry, but we all know that we would have to put aside our personal feelings if we could see in him the providential man who alone would be able to save the nation.

We German-Americans know that we must consult the interest of the entire nation first, and that the attitude a man takes toward us is a minor consideration. This is not a thesis which we had to demonstrate to ourselves like a mathematical problem; we feel it in our hearts, it is wisdom which our love for this country gave us. We object to the reëlection of Mr. Wilson not because he dislikes the German-Americans and has wantonly slandered them but because we are afraid that he might still entangle us in the European war through his deep-rooted infatuation for England.

What are the gains of his administration? We are prosperous. Prosperous through the selling of ammunition, a legally unassailable, morally very contestable, policy. This prosperity will last as long as the war lasts, but the war, gigantic as it is, is only an episode and will have to end. Then there will begin a period of readjustment, for which we ought to prepare now, but Mr. Wilson does not seem to see this necessity, just as he never saw the necessity of military preparedness. The prosperity of the country will be relatively short-lived if we do not protect ourselves against a terrific economic assault.

The second gain is that Wilson kept us out of war, which means that Emperor William kept us out of war. It certainly was not very difficult to keep out of war, as Germany really has too many things on her hands to enter a new war, unless it be absolutely necessary. It is true that President Wilson did everything he could to make it necessary by uncouth language and dictatorial demands. He bluffed and won, but it was a dangerous game, as we all know that through Mr. Wilson's slowness and negligence we have nothing to oppose to the German army and navy but silver bullets. However, the war is not over and it is too early to crown the president with the laurels of pacifism.

There is some minor legislation on his credit side, but it is unimportant compared to the great issues which I have mentioned.

* *

THE German-American Republicans know their way. The German-American Democrats are in an awkward situation. They would like to be loyal to their party, and that is natural and honorable. But the higher duty in this moment is without any doubt that they should be loyal to their country. These are times when it is difficult to find the right decision, but in this case it is not so very hard because in spite of his undeniable qualities—which are the qualities of a rhetorician and an essayist—Mr. Wilson is impossible. He has shown himself to be the most successful destructive statesman of modern times.

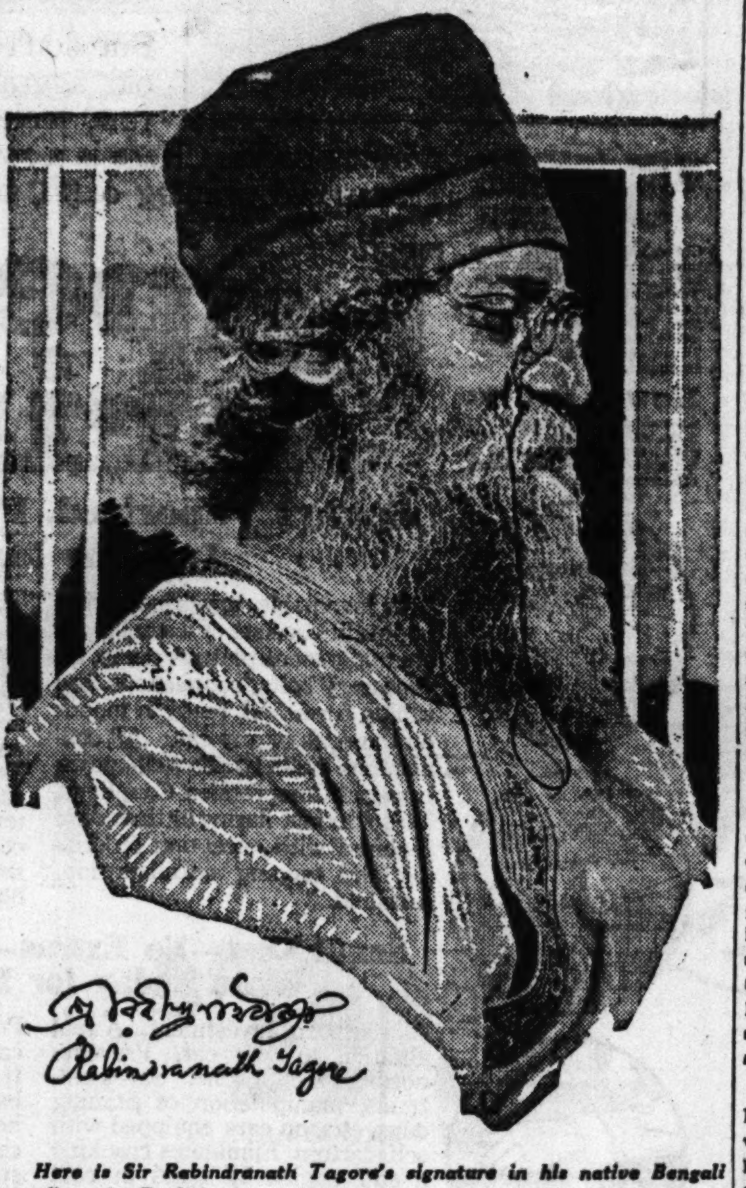
RABINDRANATH TAGORE will always be one of the memorable men of the world to me. I went to see him last week when he was staying with Mrs. William Vaughn Moody, who was, I believe, his first champion here. He held out his hand in greeting, after the occidental fashion, but there was an other-worldness about his gentle how-d'-you-do even though it was spoken in faultless English. It isn't the fact that he looks like the conception of Christ that artists have built up in our minds—although he is startlingly Messianic looking, with a clear olive pearl skin and softly curling hair and beard, and eyes that are at once long suffering and infinitely kind. His other-worldness is something more intensive and inexplicable than the visual impression which he gives. He seemed to me a man who had really found out what life is all about, a man whose ideals had gone through the fire of a long life and had been converted into pure gold by the process.

We talked of American literature, and free verse, and the Bible, and brotherly love. Of American literature he says he knows very little. "I have read in English only the classics. Of modern English and American literature I know almost nothing. I know your classic poets, Emerson and Whitman."



Here is Sir Rabindranath Tagore's signature in his native Bengali as well as in English.

"But most Americans don't accept Walt Whitman exactly as a classic here," I said.

"No? But he is the greatest poet that America has produced."

Many people seem to think that "Gitangeli," his volume of song offerings, is written in free verse. It is a translation into what Tagore himself calls rhythmical English of songs which are actually sung by almost the entire people of India, so beloved is his poetry in his native land.

"I have wondered ever since I read the songs in 'Gitangeli' how much inspiration you have had from the Psalms of David—in the Bible," I added, when he seemed not to understand. They have the same exquisite spiritual beauty.

"The Bible I have never read. I hope I do not pain you," he apologized. "I tried to read. The first two books I tried. They were so—so—violent I could not. I have heard that the Psalms are very beautiful. I must read them."

Then he told me how he hoped that some day there would be a universal brotherhood of man and a true worship of God in men's hearts. I left with a feeling almost of benediction.

A little book of reminiscences of James Whitcomb Riley by Clara E. Laughlin is just the right size to tuck away in the pocket of a fireside chair and just the right sort to discover in that pocket when the logs are crackling and you think of the frost bein' on the punkin. When she was very young in the writing business she got acquainted with that gentle, fun-loving poet, and the tiny volume is the chronicle of years of sincere friendship. Some of the anecdotes she tells of him remind me of the day I met him. Before we had even said good morning he looked at me with that memorable smile of his and said, "You've got a good name for a critic."

One of the rarities of the Deutschland's cargo which has just had its rarity brought to light is "The Vampire of the Continent" (Jackson Press), by Count Ernst Reventlow. It is the three hundredth copy that had been sent to America for publication here. The other two hundred and ninety-nine, mailed on different dates, had each been removed by the British from American mail bags. The count is not only muzzled in his own country, but he is suppressed in England. Accordingly he addresses the fragments of the world that remain neutral through America.

When fragments of it were printed in recent numbers of the Atlantic Monthly it caused much comment, especially here in Chicago, where Katherine Keith—now Mrs. David Adler Jr.—is a member of the beau monde. She took the usual courses of short story writing at the University of Chicago, the w. k. English 5 and 6, with, I think, Mr. Herrick and Mr. Lovett. Part, if not all, of "The Girl" was written while she was at the university.

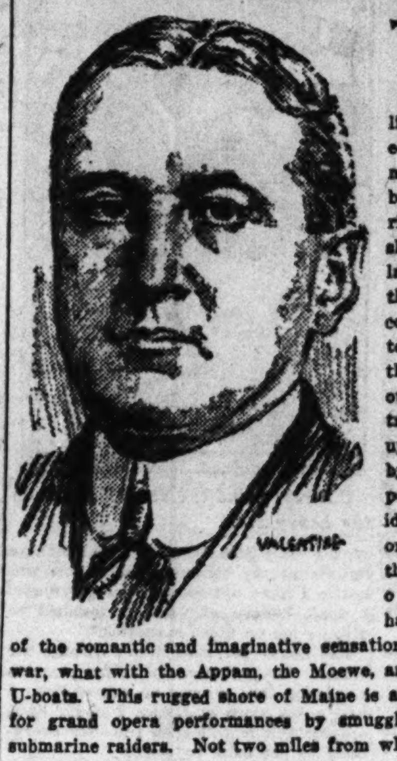
ALARMS

by Robert Herrick



THE performances of the U-53 off the Nantucket lightship has started speculation once more as to a possible German submarine base along the shores of New England. Leaving for the moment the complications of international law that such a use of our fantastic neutrality might bring up, I am fascinated by the romantic possibilities of the idea. Incidentally, one might remark that the "thorough" Germans have provided most of the romantic and imaginative sensations of this dready war, what with the Appam, the Moewe, and the ubiquitous U-boats. This rugged shore of Maine is admirably adapted for grand opera performances by smugglers, pirates, and submarine raiders. Not two miles from where I am writing these words lies a charming little cove called Braveboat harbor, running a mile or so inland into the marshes. Its narrow mouth—not over a hundred yards of clear water in breadth—separates two lonely rocky points. To be sure, a trolley line runs across the marshes on a long trestle, but the cars pass with extreme infrequency and never after dark. Although Braveboat harbor is not over three miles as the birds fly from one of our large navy yards, it is frequented solely by fishermen and "clammers" who have an indifferent reputation. It would offer a fair refuge for submarine supplies.

* *

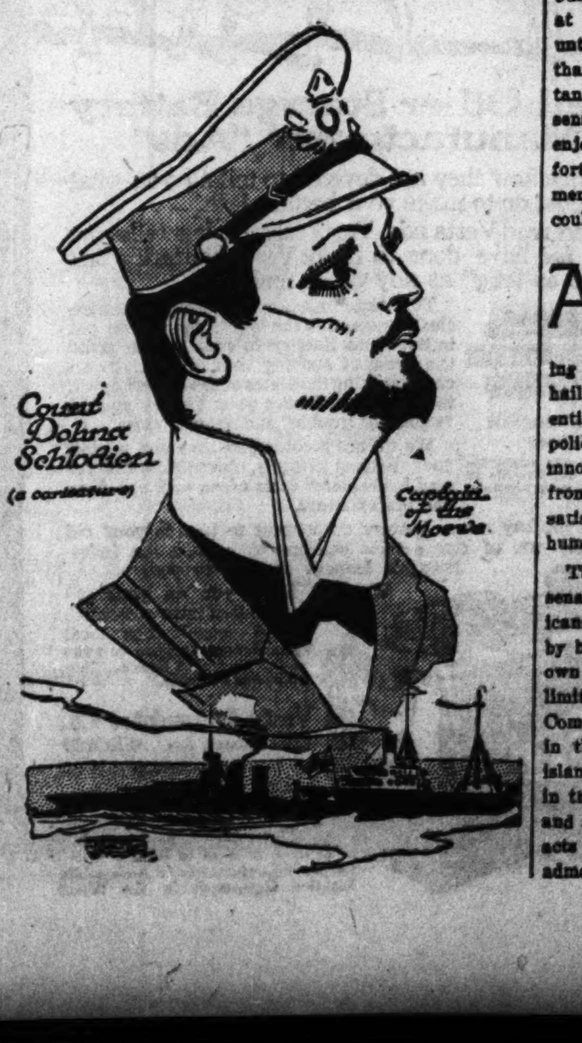
THAT reminds me that for the last two seasons this community has had its German plot. A certain Mr. Smith rented in the spring of 1915 a large pink villa which is perched loftily on a cliff above a strip of shingle beach. From summer to summer other Mr. Smiths have rented the same property, but this Mr. Smith, it was quickly rumored, was German! Nobody seemed to know anything else about him. He did not purchase his supplies at the local markets, which may account for the number and persistence of the stories about his activities. He came and went by motor. He had no dealings with the summer colony. But it was averred at every dinner table that strange signal lights could be seen flashing from the pink villa at night out over the open ocean. Why, no one could explain. He came again this summer and occupied the same pink villa, and less was said about his nefarious deeds. He has gone now, and the house has relapsed into the peace of the summer cottage out of season. I suppose he gave up waiting for the Bremen in despair!

To an unmilitary person like myself it seems a bit odd that a German secret agent should have chosen such a conspicuous spot as the big pink villa in which to carry on his operations, for although it gave an unobstructed view straight out to sea and across to Spain it was equally exposed to the gaze of some hundreds of curious summer visitors. Possibly if I had taken Mr. Smith's presence and activities more seriously, if I had incommoded myself enough to patrol the shingle beach through moonless summer nights I might have seen strange sights—possibly observed the periscope of a giant submarine pop up in the black waters and silently glide shorewards.

I am sure that if I had seen such a thing I should never have had the face to tell it as a fact, though since the war my neighbors are more than commonly credulous. The barn with a substantial concrete foundation for the mounting of naval guns is a possession that no respectable Maine seashore town is without! If the U-53 rises again from the waves and sinks any more ships I shall overcome my dislike to frosty fall nights and, taking my blankets, camp on that shingle beach in the hope of discovering where the submarine gets its supplies.

* *

BUT there are better spots along the coast than this place for a piratical enterprise. We are too near the navy yard, too populous, and too gossipy to be a thoroughly good rendezvous for anything but a lobster boat or an excursion party. Farther down the coast, however, to the eastward there are many wonderful little fir covered islets and headlands, in Casco bay, up the Penobscot, along Frenchman's bay, and still farther east. Often in years gone by when I have been sailing those waters I have landed on these lonely islands and thought how wonderfully they would stage "The Pirates of Penzance." I could tell the Germans of some I know that have ideally concealed harbors far within the shadow of the firs, also bold rocky headlands (for observation), and even rudimentary caves—in fact, all the properties of the operatic scene. Except during a few weeks in summer, when they are disturbed by picnicking parties, they are left quite to themselves in the dark wash of cold sea water with the circling flights of sea gulls.

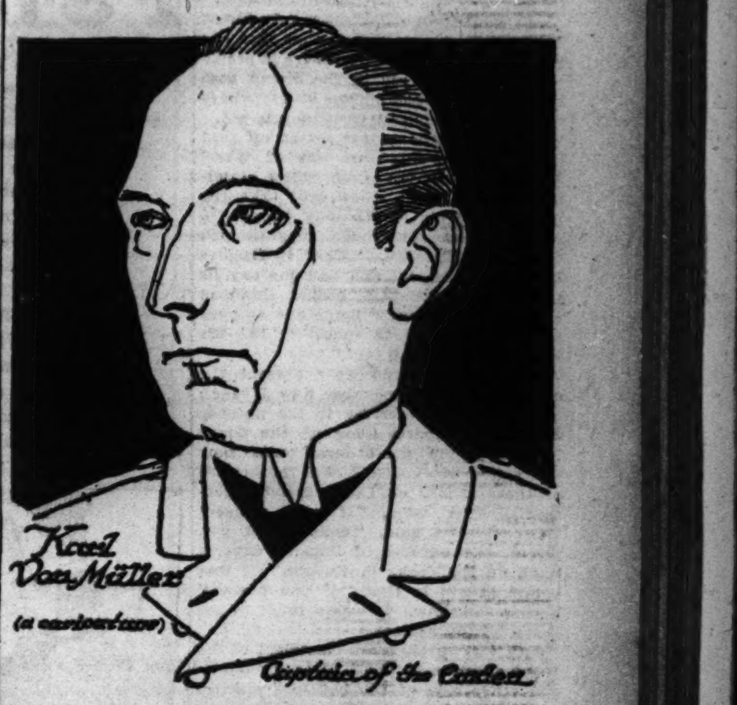


But I do not seriously believe that the taste for rococo romance would lead any German submarine commander to select even the most retired of these islands or coves as a base of supplies. They are too far from a distributing point; too far, also, from their prey in the transatlantic lanes! It would be difficult to stock them without the secret being given away in some little town near by. Your doer of evil deeds these days does not seek out a lonely cove on a rocky shore in the hope of escaping observation: he runs to cover, instead, in a large metropolis. It would be much easier for Teuton agents to "put over" the trick in the harbor of New York than on any Maine island.

Or what, for example, would be better than one of these deep laden, sea going hulks, old dismantled schooners turned into barges, that crawl up and down the coast under tow? Any day one can see a string of these ancient hulks almost awash under their load of lumber or bricks or coal or lime. If I had the job of provisioning secretly a submarine I would hire some of these old scows and a tug and lay in a cargo of cord wood to cover up gasoline barrels and tinned meats, then start out some hazy morning for my destination anywhere off shore! Possibly that is what the U-53 is about as I write.

* *

THE human imagination ordinarily works in conventional forms. The secret cove, the lonely island, the rockbound coast is what literature and grand opera have accustomed us to expect, and we docilely apply these stage properties to an actual situation. They give us a pleasant thrill: I confess to having it myself. Never again shall I wobble across the trolley trestle at Braveboat harbor without wondering if this admirable little nest has not been utilized by some German pirate. And when at sundown I take my afternoon walk past the pink villa I shall look for a bearded mariner cursing in German and rolling a gasoline barrel over the shingle beach. Just as I always look for a dapple deer in the wood road behind my house because local tradition says that one was once seen there!



This is hardly the place for a serious discussion of the submarine raid in its bearing on our relations with Germany and the allies. Yet I cannot refrain from drawing a comparison between the thrill that we are all getting out of the idea of a hidden submarine base in our waters and the uncomfortable sensation of alarm that Washington has received from the reappearance of this sea ghost of the Democratic administration. Just as they are tuning up at the presidential feast, singing in happy unison the familiar hymn, "How I Kept You Out of War," up pops the submarine, which, I fancy, is the one thing President Wilson would most like to forget in all his troubled three years of official life. The kaiser's emissary tosses a letter ashore at Newport for the United States, possibly gives our naval officers a tip that they can see sport and make themselves useful out by Nantucket, then ducks under the ocean waves to reappear a few hours later with torpedo and cannon.

The administration is "conferring" and "gathering information," keeping its "judgment in suspense"—the first reaction to the submarine ghost. So far the impudent stranger seems to have observed the absurd rules of the international game, as laid down by our state department; we can only "look grave" and "view with alarm" this hostile demonstration in our front yard. Tomorrow, perhaps before these words are read, the kaiser, having tested our nerves and stretched the latest Wilson ultimatum to the limit, may try sinking a passenger boat or two. I have always thought that the submarine ghost would walk again before the November election to annoy the president.

Our "settlement" was like any botched task, like a bungled bit of repair on a motor car, sure to rip out again at the most inconvenient moment. Nothing is ever settled until it is settled right. And all the notes and ultimata that the White House can turn out will not erase the Lusitania and the Sussex murders. The Germans have a curious sense of humor, but I credit them with enough irony to enjoy giving President Wilson another scare, a few uncomfortable days before he receives the verdict of his countrymen at the polls. The kaiser may want to vote, too! He could probably cast the deciding vote!

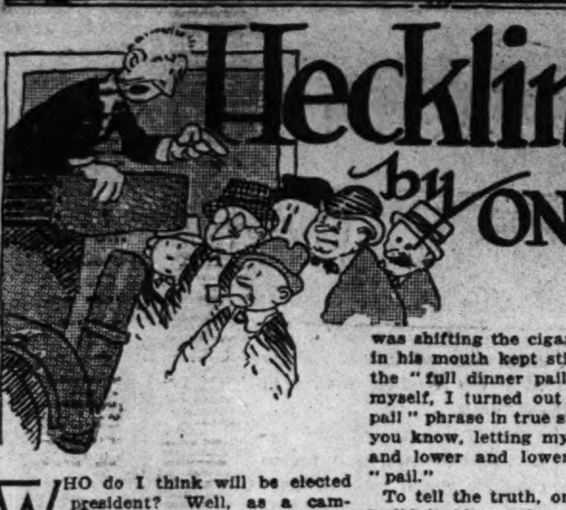
AT any rate, if the German view is less serious than that, if the submarine ghost is merely flirting with us this time, it has succeeded in covering our diplomatic notes and last stands with ridicule. By drowning a few noncombatants not of American citizenship within hail of our own shores it could hold up to the gaze of the entire world the futility of the Wilson "humanitarian" policy. German submarines might sink whole shiploads of innocent—non-American—travelers three and a quarter miles from Sandy Hook light and Washington could sit tight, satisfied with what it had accomplished for—American—humanity!

This is surely the right time for some of our brave senators to clamor again for an embargo on voyaging Americans, to restrain them by force from imperiling this nation by being killed at sea, so that Germany may murder at her own sweet will whom she pleases, outside the three mile limit, without involving the United States in anything. Come to think of it, all the fantasy of imagination is not in the general public, with its piratical coves and hidden islands; some remains with our diplomats and statesmen in their endeavors to determine when a crime is not a crime and how long a "friendly" nation can commit "unfriendly" acts without receiving anything more serious than verbal admonitions.



Heckling the Orator

by ONLY FRED SWEET

WHO do I think will be elected president? Well, as a campaign speaker who has come in close contact with voters, I suppose I am in a position to advance a prediction.

I repeat the phrase, "as a campaign speaker," for how well do I remember the faces in the crowd the other noon when our flag decorated auto whirled up to the curbing and our driver announced through a megaphone that "a big political meeting was about to begin!"

Those faces are before me yet—those upturned faces, those faces that ran the entire gamut of facial expression.

You know campaign speaking has undergone changes like everything else. Before actually going on the stump I somehow pictured a great crowded hall with lithographs of the favored presidential and vice presidential candidates hanging above the flag draped rostrum. I somehow figured that if I was going to be a successful spellbinder I would only appear after a eulogistic introduction. When I should appear I would bow and possibly remove from my hip pocket a handkerchief with which to wipe my face.

I somehow pictured myself as preluding my remarks with the statement "that never before had I looked out upon such an intelligent appearing gathering," and then while waiting for the applause to subside I would perhaps refresh myself from the water pitcher on the speaker's table.

◆

But as I say, campaign speaking has changed like everything else. No doubt there are still campaign orators who are given stage settings such as I held in fancy, but this rapid fire campaigning in the loop district in which I participated the other noon smacked of that sort of thing but little.

You know when you start to address one of these hurry up meetings that has been megaphoned for you there is pretty apt to be somebody in the crowd that has bobbed up from no one knows where who will be inclined to help you out.

Suppose you have just gotten off that line, "Wilson kept us out of war." Just as like as not some fellow standing at your right elbow will take the pipe out of his mouth long enough to ask, "What war?" Or suppose you claim dramatically: "That if Hughes had been president and had the say he would have done the proper thing in the Lusitania case." Some one at your left elbow is apt to echo: "'If'—it's easy enough to say 'if.'"

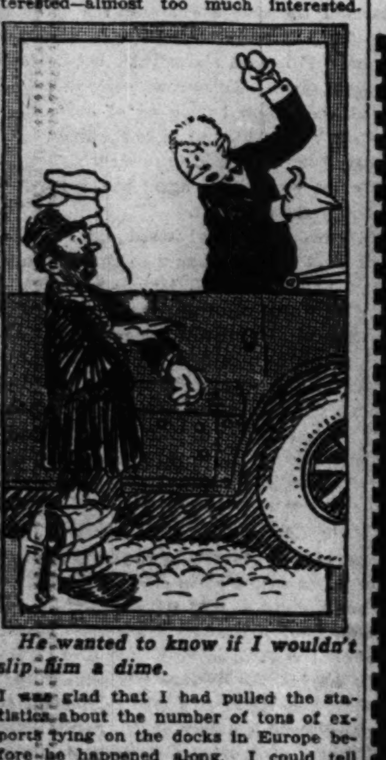
Those of you who were present the other noon will remember how I began my speech by referring to the number of tons of exports lying on the docks in Europe. I don't recall now how many tons of exports I said there were on those docks, but I do remember getting in that term, "if you please." "Consider," I said, "consider, if you please, the number of tons of exports lying on the docks in Europe." I was bound to get in that "if you please" phrase somehow. It was a relief to get it out of my system.

Half way through my treatment of the tariff question a "bo" came around to the other side of the car and touched me by the coat tails. He said he didn't care for any of the campaign buttons we were handing out; that the campaign buttons wouldn't buy him a glass of beer. He wanted to know if I wouldn't slip him a dime.

If the two Italian women with babies in their arms had paused any length of time in passing I might have been further interrupted by a crying baby—the bane of all us orators—but the Italian women, voters though I presume they were, merely glanced my way and continued on down the street, their faces registering blank disinterest. My throat was taxed nevertheless, for there were so many street cars and heavy trucks passing all the time, and every time a truck passed the driver let out a "hurray" for the particular candidate he had already made up his mind to vote for.

◆

I was just shifting from the tariff question to the Mexican situation when a big, heavy set fellow crowded right up close to the edge of the car. I noticed right away that he was much interested—almost too much interested.



He wanted to know if I wouldn't slip him a dime.

I was glad that I had pulled the statistics about the number of tons of exports lying on the docks in Europe before he happened along. I could tell he was the kind of a bird who would have corrected me if I had been off a couple of tons one way or the other in my figures. I had a hunch he was going to break out pretty soon—I could tell by the way he twisted his cigar from one side of his mouth to the other and kept looking back of him every now and then ot size up not "my" audience, but what was soon to be "our" audience.

The old man who kept his hand to his ear I didn't mind; it didn't disturb me in the least when a couple of messenger boys, close in, started to scuffle with each other—I thought the old man was too deaf for me to have any influence on him one way or the other anyhow and I knew the messenger boys weren't old enough to vote. The heavyset man who was shifting the cigar from side to side in his mouth kept still until I spoke of the "full dinner pail." If I do say it myself, I turned out that "full dinner pail" phrase in true silver tongue style—you know, letting my voice drop lower and lower and lower until I came to "pail."

To tell the truth, on thinking it over, I didn't blame the man for resenting my "full dinner pail" line. As he interrupted to explain, you do hardly ever see a dinner pail nowadays. The crowd was made up of workingmen who had just been to lunch, and there wasn't one of them that carried one of those tin dinner pails with a cup on top of it like you see pictured in the cartoons. They had all eaten in cafeterias.

◆

"Do you know," I continued finally. "Do you know that reminds me of a story. The other day I was walking down the street and I saw ——" (as a matter of fact the anecdote I was about to relate hadn't occurred while I was walking down the street the other day at all. I had read the story in a magazine. But for effect I figured it was better to refer to it as something that had happened while I was walking down the street.) "Yes," I said, "it reminds me of a story."

"Never mind the story," broke in the heavy set man, chewing impatiently at his cigar. "Give us some more 'kept us out of war' and 'protective tariff' stuff. What was it you said a while ago about Villa?"

"It isn't Villa," I corrected. "You don't want to give that 'I' sound. The 'll' should have the sound of 'y.' What I said a while ago was that the year preceding Aug. 1, 1914—beginning of the war—we exported articles that could be used as war supplies to the amount of $500,000,000. The first year of the war we increased that more than $1,000,000,000. The export of horses and mules increased the first year of the war $100,000,000. I have these figures at my tongue's end. You will notice I have not referred to any notes. I don't believe any one is inclined to dispute me on these statistics."

"Never mind the story," broke in the heavy man.

The heavy set man didn't dispute me either. He puffed away at his cigar in a manner that showed he was baffled. I had a lot more statistics I could have sprung if it hadn't been time for everybody to get back to work.

Of course there is satisfaction in knowing you have swung this or that pivotal district, but in talking on a street corner you are so apt to have a certain amount of folks swarm up who don't agree with what you say no matter which side you're on and you see you can't have them thrown out of the hall.

Who do I think will be elected president? Hughes—either Hughes or Wilson.

Your attitude is laisser-faire,
You're much too fond of junk;
For one who should be sensible
Your tastes are reprehensible.

When I read you Sammy Weller
Or Victor Hugo's prose
You wrinkle up your smeller
In a most insulting pose,
But smiles suffuse your noodle
When I warble "oodle oodle."

Macaulay gives you colic
And you do not care for Plato,
When I'm waxing apostolic
You can holler like Amato;
And you much prefer a bottle
To old John L. Aristotle.

O, to fill your empty attic
I have read you Schopenhauer,
But it makes you so erratic
And I dread your vocal power
That I drop the highbrow boodle
Just to sing you "oodle oodle."

O, you sit upon my pocket
Just as silent as a mouse
While I shut the door and lock it,
Barricading all the house,
Then I oodle oodle oodle
Till the neighbors dent my noodle.

As a literary idol
You have feet of berthaclay
And you'd rather have a seidel
Than the wine of fair Tokay.
Never mind, though, Tiny Toodles,
You shall have your oodle oodles.

Vesta Indestructible Isolator

This apparently simple device adds an extra life to every Vesta Storage Battery.

The Vesta Indestructible Isolator, our exclusive patent, is the logical feature we put in the Vesta Battery to enable it to stand the strain of starting your engine. By securely locking the plates of the battery apart, these isolators insure your battery against "separator trouble" and short circuits.

We do not recommend that you neglect your battery entirely, but distilled water and hydrometer tests alone will not keep the plates apart.

Before you buy a new battery or consent to turn in your old one, get one of our service stations to explain the Indestructible Isolator feature to you.

We will allow you on your old battery. Out of town customers should consult their local Vesta Service Stations or write us for illustrated booklet, "Batteries Are Different."

ART by Louise James Bargelt

MOURN DEATH OF CHASE.

THE death of William M. Chase last week will cause a country wide grief in the world of art as well as real sorrow to those men and women who knew him personally as co-workers and friends. His death, too, will be brought home particularly to Chicagoans these coming days, as he is to have a fine painting on exhibition in the exhibit of American oil paintings and sculpture which opens at the institute on Thursday.

Mr. Chase was an interesting personality both as an artist and as a man. He was no long haired, velvet coated oddity, but essentially a man of the world in looks and dress, and the struggle which he made to achieve the reputation which enabled him to make a $2,000 painting in a day was hard and bitterly sustained.

He was born with the obsession to become an artist, he had said again and again in published interviews during the latter part of his life. But that tremendous desire did not lessen the necessity of earning his living, and he began his career as a clerk in a shoe store. His entire lack of commercial tendencies, however, shook his father's faith in his likelihood of succeeding as a business man, and accordingly he started his son in studying with B. F. Hays. This was in Indianapolis, where William Chase remained for over a year.

Then he sought out New York, where he attended the National Academy of Design. His first sales along art lines consisted of pictures of flowers and fruit. From New York he went to Munich. His father had failed in business and he was forced to depend on uncertain commissions for his existence. He remained in Munich for two years and a half. His commissions became exhausted, he could not sell his work, and he came to the point where he had to borrow his paints and canvas from friendly students.

◆

Then came the turning point in his life. Carl von Piloty of the Munich academy commissioned him to paint the portraits of the five children of the director. He paid for half of them in advance and Chase was immediately in possession of abundant funds. News of the commission became noised about Munich and his signature became a most saleable asset.

It was in 1878 that he returned to this country, an all around artist of fine training and a reputation for successful work. His brush seemed equally facile in portraits, landscape, and still life. The Art Students' league was then in its infancy in New York and he received an appointment as instructor and lecturer.

His life from that time on was one of almost unbroken success. He had contributed to the professional ranks all over the country. Howard Christy and E. P. Ullman were only two of the many of his pupils whose names are widely known, to say nothing of the thousands who have received instruction from him at the Art Students' league, the Pennsylvania academy, and in his special classes in England, Germany, Holland, Italy, France, and Spain.

◆

His portrait of William M. Evarts, in the state department in Washington; of Seth Low, which was made for the city of Brooklyn; of Dr. Osler, made for the University of Pennsylvania, and of Dr. Angell, made for the University of Michigan, gave him a commanding place as a portrait painter. His portrait of Whistler, painted in London in 1885 and hanging in the Albright Art gallery in Buffalo, is considered among his best. Nor has this reputation detracted from the estimates of his worth in water colors, pastel work, still life, and landscape. He did some excellent fish pictures. The Art institute has one of them hanging on its walls and also a picture of "Alice" by him.

One of the greatest compliments that could be paid an artist was given him by the Italian government when it asked him to paint a portrait of himself to hang in the historic Uffizi palace in Florence, there to hang by the side of the great collection of masters old and modern. Besides that he is represented in Munich in the New Pinakothek and in over a dozen of the different museums of this country.

He was born in Franklin, Ind., in 1849. He was married in the late '30s to a daughter of Julius Gerson and they had eight children, all of whom survive him.

◆

In addition to the American paintings and Sculpture exhibit, in which Chase's "Lights and Shadows" will be on view, there is to be the twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the Atlan Ceramic Art club, opening also on Thursday.

This club is unusual in the extensive influence it has exerted on China decoration. It was many years ago that this club, following the suggestion of the Art institute, inaugurated the use of conventional ornament on porcelain surfaces. It was convinced that this was the correct form of china decoration and it adhered steadily to this belief.

Among those who will exhibit are Mrs. Leroy T. Steward, who will show a meat course set with twelve epochs in historical ornament as the decoration; Mrs. Edward Hutchcraft, Miss Adelaid M. Liebolt, and Mrs. Herbert Hadden.

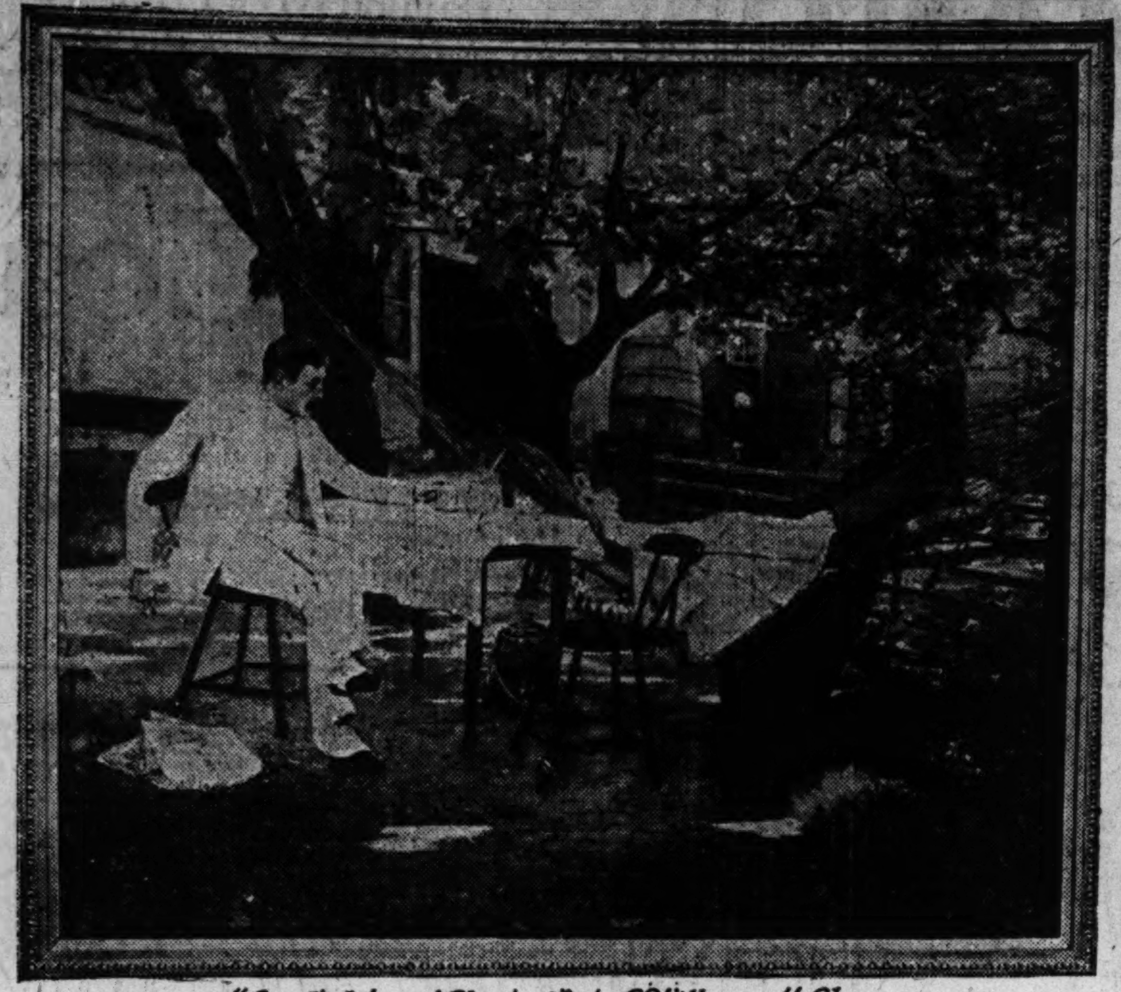
Moulton & Ricketts—Thirty California paintings by George J. Winterburn.



"Sunlight and Shadow" by William M. Chase

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

OCTOBER - NOVEMBER.

November

THE berries of the wild rose are red in the dried patches of bracken and the wild goose flies overhead. Every gust of wind brings down the leaves and there is a red and yellow carpet underfoot.

The cry of the wild goose passing overhead is a call from the sedges and the reed-edged lakes, from where the tamarack and hemlock swamps are odorous in the warm sun; from where the partridge steals out to eat the clover at the edge of the trail.

The Pleiades shimmer in the sky and the chickadees come into the woods. Soon the nuthatch and the downy woodpecker will be pensioners at the feeding box and the homely month, November, stark and sear but full of joviality, will assert the permanence and endurance of human optimism, conquering the distressing change which, having turned the outdoors scarlet, now strips it bare and leaves it exposed to the futility of the human understanding, with all its brave colors gone and its nakedness revealed wonderfully to such as like the overcast sky, the gray day and the threat of snow, the sound of the wind when it intrudes upon perception and the sight of a burning log at the close of day.

November bows in the intensive life. The windows are closed. Life becomes concentrated in its efforts to approximate happiness.

ASTRONOMY by CLIFFORD RAYMOND

DOUBLE CLUSTER OF PERSEUS.

THE star cluster in the constellation of Perseus is located in a field of the sky which may be defined generally as in the vicinity of Capella, the constellation of Cassiopeia and the Pleiades.

Fortunately for the person who wants to devote but a moment to a search for the sight or the location of heavenly phenomena, these three identifying parts are all conspicuous. Cassiopeia stands out near the Pole star as the "W" on its side. The Pleiades have gossamer beauty and conspicuousness and Capella is well up in the east by 8 o'clock.

This star is found by imagining a line about forty-five degrees long. Remember that the distance between the stars in the outer edge of the bowl of the Big Dipper—the measuring stick of the heavens—is five degrees—projected from the Pole star at right angles to the line from the pointers of the pole—the stars referred to in the edge of the Dipper and running in an opposite direction from the handle of the Dipper.

With these three objects identified it will be possible for the observer to find under Cassiopeia and between that constellation and the Pleiades and off to the side of Capella the double star cluster of Perseus, in the densest part of the Milky Way, one of the magnificent objects in the sky.

To the naked eye it is an oblong patch of misty star light. In an opera glass it is a cluster spangled and scintillating with stars. It is primarily an appeal to the beautiful, which leads us to a consideration of this object, but not alone, for it presents to us one of the most curious examples of stellar mechanics.

The seemingly closely packed stars in a cluster are in reality three or four light years apart on an average. The attraction of any star for its nearest neighbor is very feeble and even over long eons of time there is no noticeable falling together. The stars in the cluster move through space in parallel paths and with equal velocities, each star almost stationary in its relation to its neighbors, much like the plums in a pudding that is being carried along.

The cause of the motion is the gravity of the stellar system as a whole. The central portion of our universe is filled with giant and massive sons like Arcturus, Rigel, Denib, and Spica, and it is about these that the distant star clusters rotate. The double cluster of Perseus is unique because each swarm of stars is slowly turning about the other as the cluster rushes through space.

The parallelism of the motion of the stars in a cluster points conclusively to the fact that stars are made first and move afterwards. Each star builds itself up from extensive fields of nebula, star dust, and meteoric particles. The smaller bodies are drawn irresistibly in and are lost. The whirling components of the double stars are equally strong and both live each in the radiance of the other, but the stars in a cluster are nearly independent and they yield only to the general attraction of the whole.

PERSONAL.

PERSONAL—ON SATURDAY, APRIL 1ST, at 11:45 p. m., Arthur Gross was stabbed at the corner of 63d-pl. and Halsted-st. and died twelve days later at Englewood Hospital at 63d and Green-sts. A young man by the name of Sanford Rosenbaum was arrested ten days later and kept in jail for seven months and convicted on October 6th, 1916. From all reports, there were present about one hundred people when this crime was committed, and Rosenbaum, being a crippled boy, could easily be identified if he were the guilty person. We call upon all fair minded people who were present to assist us in preventing an innocent boy from being imprisoned for a crime which we know he never committed. Any information will be thankfully received by Jacob J. Kern, 54 W. Randolph-st. Telephone Randolph 194, or Benedict J. Short, 1016 Ashland Block. Telephone Central 4392.

TRADE SCHOOLS.

THE PRICE YOU PAY FOR AUTO INSTRUCTION.

The Greer College of Motoring is not a "cheap" school. Our courses cost more than some. We do not offer something for nothing—neither does any one else. Cheap courses mean cheap training. Cheap training means low pay and strong competition for a job. The market is flooded with "dubs" and "monkey wrench" mechanics. There is a big demand for first class men—not nearly enough of them.

Which will you be? Why save a few dollars at the beginning and lose hundreds in the end? The cost of material alone for one department is over $15 per student in our school. Get the facts before you enroll.

We train the man who can—knows how because he was taught how along practical scientific lines. Our instruction makes first class Repairmen, Chauffeurs, Truck Drivers, Demonstrators, Salesmen, Garage Owners. Men trained for 18 divisions of the work.

DAY AND EVENING CLASSES.

Complete day courses, $75; other special courses, $25 to $150. Evening courses, $25 to $60. Liberal time payments. Jobs secured without extra charge.

Write or call for free booklet today. We have very important information for you.

A Dixie Estate Will Insure Your Future

WOULD YOU SAVE $10 MONTHLY for a few years if you felt assured it would earn for you an income of $1,500 to $2,000 yearly? This without a stroke of work on your part. You do not have to leave your present business or employment unless you choose.

That is what a Dixie Estate planted to fancy grapefruit, oranges, and avocados should earn after it begins bearing. Past and present prices for these fruits prove this an EXTREMELY CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE.

Picture for yourself a cozy home in balmy Florida, beneath beautiful skies, among flowering shrubs and luxuriant money-producing fruit trees. SUCH IS A DIXIE ESTATE, which awaits you whenever your inclination draws you to it.

YOU ARE PLANTING MONEY RIGHTLY WHEN YOU INVEST IN DIXIE ESTATES.

Citrus fruit avocado trees are long lived. This is not a temporary investment, but one which should bring a permanent income and continue to increase in value yearly. Compare this with any investment you have ever heard of—you will have to admit a similar offer has never before been made.

LOCATION—the best in all Florida, in the vicinity of Tampa—population, including suburbs, 70,000, growing so rapidly that it is destined to become the Los Angeles of the South. Dixie Estates will be near paved boulevards, railroad stations, schools, and churches.

ONE SINGLE AVOCADO TREE HAS PRODUCED $1,500 IN FRUIT ANNUALLY. When you realize what a wonderful fruit the avocado is you will understand why we claim that in Dixie Estates [which will contain 20 per cent avocado, 40 per cent grapefruit and 40 per cent orange trees] you are offered a heretofore unheard of opportunity to derive a splendid YEARLY INCOME FOR A SMALL INVESTMENT. The proof is what you want!!! We have it and will gladly send it to you FREE.

YOUR DIXIE ESTATE receives expert and scientific care and attention for three years. A grove manager then takes charge if you do not wish to look after it personally. He will care for your Dixie Estate—its development and marketing of fruit indefinitely—for a percentage of the profits. You can receive the benefits of this truly marvelous proposition even if you never intend to live in Florida.

Call or write for our illustrated booklet giving detailed information.

FOR SALE—
ST. LUCIE COUNTY IS AGRICULTURALLY FLORIDA'S HIGHEST VALUED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

INDIAN RIVER FARMS AT VIRO is Florida's most highly developed project. The oranges and grapefruit on less than 12 acres in the heart of Indian River Farms just sold on the trees for $7,700. Purchaser picks, packs, and ships at his own expense. This grove pays this year nearly 8% on a valuation of $10,000 per acre. Results are what you are looking for. Can you equal this anywhere?

A FARM is like a factory. If it works 365 days in the year it pays better than if it works only 150 days in the year. Indian River Farms have an ideal 365 day growing climate, where Potatoes, Cabbage, Peppers, Eggplant, Tomatoes, Strawberries, and all other truck crops and citrus fruit crops are produced in midwinter, when the great North is frozen up and the consuming public hungry for these products and willing to pay immense prices for them.

YOU CAN PRODUCE CATTLE, HOGS AND POULTRY to better advantage and at a much lower cost than in the North. You can grow untold varieties of the most highly nutritious forage crops every day in the year.

MORE THAN 1,500 land owners in Indian River Farms located less than 48 hours from the center of the great consuming populace in this land of the Stars and Stripes. Rail and water transportation; marketing organizations all complete. Everything to better your condition.

A PROGRESSIVE COMMUNITY is already established, being made up of men and women from all parts of the United States, the kind who do things. Good schools, churches, water, ideally healthy climate, miles of hard surfaced roads, boating, bathing, fishing, hunting, motoring, cool summers, no winters.

COME, LIVE IN THIS BIG OUTDOORS 365 days in the year and enjoy all its advantages where your health may be bettered and life prolonged.

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED, our beautifully illustrated booklets, "The Winter Garden of America" and "The Potato, Mankind's Greatest Blessing," are free.

Special Citrus Planting Service for Nonresident Florida Land Owners.

Possibly at some time or other you bought some land in Florida. It may be that you have never done anything with this but to pay for it and keep up the taxes. Doubtless it has been your idea to plant and develop an orange or grapefruit grove some time.

Why not now? The growing demand for good Florida citrus fruits, especially of the late varieties, makes their production profitable when properly handled. It is no longer necessary for you to wait until you can move to Florida and give your groves personal supervision in order to have success.

We have a special service for nonresident land owners whose holdings are such that oranges and grapefruit can be successfully grown on them. Write us where your Florida land is located and we will tell you frankly whether it is good for citrus culture.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Don't Fool Yourself

DON'T FOOL YOURSELF into thinking that we are enjoying prosperity at the expense of Europe. One of Chicago's most prominent grocerymen stated in The Chicago Tribune this week that "people in this country are being taxed as heavily as the warring nations, and the cost of most staple foods has increased 100% in the last two years." In many instances prices are as high as during our Civil War. The cost of living will not be reduced as soon as peace comes. We will have to help pay for this World War, not as directly, but just as surely, as the Europeans.

THE QUESTION FOR YOU to decide now is whether or not you will take advantage of present high wages and save a little to become the owner of land which will make you a living after peace comes and our shell and gun factories close down—when we will again be compelled to compete with European labor. You can buy 40 acres of land from me by saving only $7 per month. The amount is so small it seems as if any one could buy.

NEARLY EVERY ONE LOVES nature and loves to see things grow. If you have this instinct, then don't be afraid to go farming. There are no secrets of successful farming from which you are barred. You need but ask and they are given freely from a hundred sources, and especially by the Government. In the Swigart Tract we operate demonstration farms for the instruction of the settlers, and maintain agricultural advisers on the lands. General farming, stock and poultry raising, and fruit growing are all profitable here. Our plan for your gradual acquirement of the land gives most any workingman who is earning wages a chance to surely secure a farm-home. Prices are now $15 to $25 per acre, and terms of $25 to $50 down and $7 to $10 per month on 40 acres, or annual payments if preferred. After a part is paid the purchaser is insured for the balance.

A BIG BOOK illustrated with many photographic views, tells about this Tract. If you are thinking of buying some farm land and going to live on it, there's a good deal you want to learn about it. This book gives lots of valuable information about obtaining good crops of clover, alfalfa, vetch, rye, oats, wheat, corn, beans, hay, potatoes, and all vegetables in our Michigan counties of Manistee, Mason, Lake, and Wexford. We will mail you this book free if you will drop a postal for it, or call if you can and get a large map and see samples of crops now on display in our offices. In our four counties over 90 per cent of the farmers are owners, and that condition means constant improvement of highways, more schools, churches, and continual betterment socially.

COME AND SEE our lands, which are only a short distance from Chicago. Our next Special Excursion leaves our Chicago offices at 11:20 a. m. Tuesday, October 31st. Round trip rate, $12.50, including railroad fare, meals, and lodging. You return to Chicago at 7:20 a. m. the following Friday. Automobiles and guides free. Offices remain open Monday evenings and Saturday afternoons.

A SAFE Investment

A Rebuilt Cadillac Is the Safest Investment It Is Possible to Make.

Rebuilt Cadillacs are superior to any new car at the same price. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined and, if necessary, replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory, the entire car repainted and refinished like new, all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is as good as new in every detail.

We are as interested in the performance of these rebuilt cars as we are in the new Cadillacs. In actual service value these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them. We have a variety of body styles to choose from at the present time.

NOTE NEW PRICES

1916 Victoria coupe	$1,750
1916 7 pass. Touring	1,550
1915 7 pass. Touring with dem. winter top	1,900
1915 7 pass. Touring	1,250
1914 Touring	900
1913 Limousine	1,250
1913 Touring	750
1912 Touring	500

A few Cadillacs which have not been rebuilt but are in good condition will be sold at substantial reductions.

We also have a very select list of miscellaneous makes at attractive prices.

FIFTY DIVORCES GRANTED IN DAY IN COOK COUNTY

Perhaps You Will Be Interested in Letter Henry Received.

Fifty or more cases went through the divorce mill again yesterday. In one a letter from the "affinity" to the husband was introduced in a hearing before Judge Denis Sullivan. The mother held her 3 year old girl in her arms while she handed the judge a photograph of the "affinity" and the letter.

The case was that of Mrs. Violet Pollitz. She testified that Henry said he would "stick to the other woman." The Pollitz family formerly lived in Elmhurst.

This Is What She Said.

The letter follows:

Dear Al: I suppose you waited for that picture long enough. Well, you can have it if you think I can take care of it. But I really would like to have it, honest I would, because she is some kid, believe me. She looks a whole lot like her papa, get it?

Well, how are you. Well and happy, or sick in bed? Let's hope not sick in bed. I am awfully lonesome for just one look at your face. I am almost forgetting what you look like, honest I am. Don't you believe me? That is true.

I would rather wait till you can come to see me, don't you see? It is for your own good. I am getting tired and am going to bed. Will close with best love to you, the best in the world, best I can give.

I remain forever,
CATHERINE PRICE.

Dentist Seeks Solitude.

Angela Marcovici, 916 Sibley street, was given a decree after she interpreted part of a letter received from her husband, Dr. John Marcovici, a dentist. He said he wanted to live alone.

George Pryor of 7225 Vincennes avenue, a postoffice clerk, testified that his wife, Hattie, thought more of missionary service than of him. He was given a divorce.

BUYS FARM OF 80 ACRES.

Perry L. Smithers of the Booth Fisheries has purchased through Paul Schroeder & Co. an eighty acre farm, northwest of Wilmette, known as the Edward J. Lies place, for a reported consideration of $16,000 and will improve with an attractive residence and outbuildings. The price is said to be a record for farm property in that locality.

Edward Seitz of Chicago has purchased through the same brokers the vacant 75x180 feet at the corner of Ashland avenue and Seventh street at the reported rate of $75 a front foot. He will improve with a fine residence, it is said. Schroeder & Co. report other sales in Wilmette.

TWO transactions, the big purchase by Frederick H. Bartlett & Co. of the Pullman tract and adjoining properties with an aggregate of 410 acres, and the sale by James H. McKay to George A. McKinloch and Charles Edward Brown of the Central Electric company of the property at 316-26 South Fifth avenue, made the week's real estate market of an eventful character.

There was little doing in apartment house property of an important character, but outside business property made a good showing, while the north side turned up several important deals in vacant. These, coupled with a large movement of cheap property, always a healthy sign, combined to make the market unusually interesting.

Bartlett Purchase Big Feature.

The Bartlett purchase was of interest for several reasons, one of which is the fact that it is thought to be the largest transaction of the kind in the history of the city, and, coming at this time, will be accepted as a striking evidence of the greatly improved tone of the market. It also has a special interest as marking the final passing of the Pullman tract, which has been held intact for about fifty years. The total consideration for all the properties is $750,000, and their purchase at this time emphasizes the strong confidence which Mr. Bartlett has in the future of this district.

Sale Because of Court Decree.

As is well known, the sale of the Pullman tract was made necessary by the decision of the Illinois Supreme court requiring the company to dispose of all of its holdings except those actually used in connection with the business of the company.

The title for some time has been in the Pullman Land association, and because of its evident availability for subdivision purposes, with the surrounding territory well built up, it has been attracting increasing attention from subdividers, and particularly because of the present great prosperity of the district.

Keen Competition for Tract.

It is understood there has been keen competition for the property, because of its valuable character and size the large sum necessary for its acquirement and development has placed it beyond the reach of all save those with large means.

It is stated that Mr. Bartlett expects to expend in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 in developing the property in connection with placing it upon the market.

In addition to the Pullman tract, Bartlett & Co. acquired a tract of twenty-eight acres for $69,417 from Perkins B. Bass, ten acres from the Louis Werner Saw Mill company for $18,000, ten acres from Jessie Butler and Lucretia L. Houghteling for $18,000, and twenty acres from William K. Young and Edward F. Schelleberger, together with all the lots heretofore sold in the Young subdivision, for $38,350.

All Within City Limits.

The property lies well within the city limits of Chicago, in the Hyde Park district, and has one and a half miles of frontage along the Illinois Central road, with three stations on the property, maintaining a suburban service of over fifty trains daily, with twenty-four to forty minute service. It is the only remaining available tract of high grade subdivision property along the Illinois Central and adjoins the industrial section of Pullman, where are the great Pullman and Illinois Central shops, employing many thousands of men.

The tract will be known as Frederick H. Bartlett's "Greater Chicago" subdivision. The statement is made by Mr. Bartlett that the property will not be placed on the market officially until some time next year, after the work of installing the improvements has been started, such as building sewers, streets, sidewalks, etc. It will be rigidly restricted and high class in every respect.

100 Acre Tract Sold.

Record was made of the acquirement by Ward T. Huston of the tract of 160 acres belonging to the Baltimore and Ohio C. T. R. R. between Ridgeland and Harlem avenues, and between the railroad right of way and Twenty-second street. The property first was conveyed by the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, to Cleveland R. Storey, a nominal consideration being given.

It was then conveyed by Mr. Storey to Mr. Huston, also for a nominal consideration, but subject to an incumbrance of $162,500, five years, at 5 per cent, to the Chicago Title and Trust company. The property is said to have been held at about $2,000 an acre, but it is thought the price was below this. It is said it will be developed in an attractive manner and sold at retail.

The two buildings here shown are types of the better class of business buildings now being erected in the outlying districts. The top building is being erected by G. H. Gottschalk & Co., builders, at the north east corner of Milwaukee and Pensacola avenues, will be of brick, stone, and steel construction and will contain four stores and seventeen apartments of one, two, and three rooms. Each apartment will contain a living room, dining room, in-a-door bed, together with California kitchen cabinet. The building and land will represent an investment of about $80,000. Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company have made a bond issue loan of $45,000. The owner is H. S. Minchin. The lower picture represents the big store and apartment building which Sherman T. Cooper has about completed on the south side of Forty-seventh street between Drexel boulevard and Ingleside avenue, occupying the entire block. It contains fourteen stores, with tile floors, etc., and sixty-eight apartments of two and three rooms with large living rooms, breakfast rooms, kitchenettes and Murphy in-a-door beds. The apartments are being rented furnished. The cost of the building is in the neighborhood of $200,000.

VACANT ACTIVE ON NORTH SIDE

Sheridan Road and Thorndale Avenue Sale for $100,000 Chief Deal.

Valuable north side vacant figured prominently in the week's market, one of the most interesting deals being the sale by Albert G. Wheeler to Mrs. Helen Pearson, wife of W. B. Pearson, president of the Standard Screw company, of the property at the northeast corner of Sheridan road and Thorndale avenue, having a frontage of 244 feet on Sheridan road, with a depth of 269 feet at the breakwater.

A nominal consideration appears in the deed, but it is reported to have been $100,000. It is several blocks south of Mr. Wheeler's residence. It is said the purchase was made as an investment and that no plans are had regarding its improvement. The sale was negotiated by Baird & Warner, who represented both parties to the transaction.

William J. MacDonald, former president of the Edgewater Golf club, appears as the purchaser of two large vacant north side parcels. The properties were acquired from the Chicago Title and Trust company and comprise the property at the northwest corner of Pratt boulevard and Pingree street, 150x179 feet, and the property in Erie street 300 feet west of Lake Shore drive, 100x109 feet, north front, a consideration of $10 being given in the transfer.

Another important transaction covered the property at the northwest corner of Deming place and Lake View avenue, 150x160 feet, which was sold by Anna Clemens to C. W. Martin Koch. A nominal consideration is given, but it is understood the property went in at about $65,000.

HIGH CLASS RESIDENCES FIGURE IN WEEK'S MARKET.

There were three interesting sales of high class residence property during the week, two being north side properties. One was the property at 1412 Astor street, between Schiller street and Burton place, formerly the home of John P. Wilson Jr. It has been sold by William B. Hale to Mrs. Elizabeth P. Purcell, the consideration being withheld. It is thought, however, to have been between $30,000 and $40,000. The lot is 25x110 feet, the house being an exceedingly attractive three story and English basement structure of stone and brick, containing about twelve rooms. The sale was negotiated by J. L. Floyd.

The attractive ten room residence with garage in the rear, on a lot 50x150 feet, at 5250 Sheridan road, near Berwyn avenue, has been sold by B. M. Green to P. J. Hursen, an undertaker, for a reported consideration of $32,000. J. M. Hammer of Speiz & Walson was the broker.

Fred Becklenberg sold to Henry Wurst of Elyria, O., the residence property at 4512 Prairie avenue for a reported consideration of $25,000, the seller taking in exchange a fruit orchard at Grand Junction, Colo. George W. Stewart was the broker.

MONTH A RECORD BREAKER FOR THE TORRENS SYSTEM

This month has proven to be a record breaker for the Torrens system in Cook county, according to an incomplete report given out yesterday by Recorder Joseph F. Connery.

With three days not reported, this month has seen 117 applications for registration filed with the Torrens department, as compared with seventy-four applications in the preceding month. In October, 1915, eighty-three applications were placed on the books. The increase over the registration of October a year ago is nearly 41 per cent, and Mr. Connery is of the opinion the increase will be as high as 50 per cent, as the final three days of October will have to total only eight applications to reach that mark.

The Torrens system received during the week what Mr. Connery considers one of its greatest boosts when the new forest preserve commission filed application to register 400 acres of land under the system. This land constitutes the first purchase by the commission, or rather the first proposed, for it is understood that the title to the property will not be taken until Mr. Connery's Torrens examiners have officially approved it. The tract is part of a 1,200 acre piece located a mile and one-half north of Palatine, on the Dundee road, and about twenty-five miles from the center of the city. The price to be paid is $90 an acre, 25 per cent of which already has been paid, the remainder to be turned over when the commission is satisfied that there are no flaws in the title.

DOWNTOWN SALE LEADS BUSINESS SITES MARKET

$460,000 Deal in Fifth Avenue Feature of Week's Trading in Store Property.

The feature of the week's market in business property was, of course, the purchase by George A. McKinloch and Charles Edward Brown from James R. McKay of the property at 316-26 South Fifth avenue, east front, 175 feet south of Jackson boulevard, for $460,000.

The lot is 137x153 feet, improved with two six story buildings, that on the south eighty-seven feet being of mill construction. It was erected in 1906. That on the north fifty feet is vacant, and will be remodeled at an expense of $50,000.

Mr. McKinloch and Mr. Brown are president and secretary, respectively, of the Central Electric company, which occupies the south building, and will occupy the other when the improvements are completed.

The board of review valued the property at $628,491, of which $136,000 is in the buildings. Frederick T. Goyt is the broker, while the legal details were attended to by William B. McIlvaine for the seller and John L. Shortall for the purchasers. The sale is significant as marking the movement of the retail district south on Fifth avenue and as evidencing the rapid growth of the company, which originally occupied only a store and basement.

$150,000 for Kenwood Avenue Site.

The most important of the outside business deals was the sale by George K. Shoenberger to Thomas J. Kyle of the property at 6615-25 Kenwood avenue for a reported consideration of $150,000, subject to an incumbrance of $75,000. The lot is 182x175 feet and is improved with a four story and basement building containing three stores and seventy-two apartments. The building is said to have a gross annual income of $16,000.

The purchaser gave in part payment 390 feet of vacant on Wrightwood boulevard, between Kilpatrick and Cicero avenues, and eight new two flat buildings on Shubert avenue, between Cicero and Kilpatrick avenues, at a reported consideration of $118,100, subject to $43,100. George W. Stewart was the broker.

Lanskis Purchase Corner.

The property at the southeast corner of Clybourn and Belmont avenues, 150x177 feet, with store, office, and flat improvements, has been conveyed by Emma C. Halsted to Samuel and Israel Lanski, the consideration being nominal, subject to two trust deeds. The actual price, however, is understood to have been $61,000.

In this connection Israel Lanski conveyed to Emil Rosenthal the high grade six apartment building in Michigan avenue, 487 feet north of Garfield boulevard, with 54x161 feet of ground, east front. A nominal consideration is given, subject to an incumbrance of $25,750, but the actual figure is said to have been $50,000.

Oakenwald Avenue Corner Sold.

Record has been made of the sale of the four story store and apartment building at the southeast corner of Forty-third street and Oakenwald avenue and the leasehold interest in the 154x150 feet of ground on which it stands. It was conveyed by William A. Zeman of Sioux City, Ia., to L. Pierpont Morgan of Nella, Fla., a nominal consideration being given. Mr. Zeman acquired the property a short time ago.

The leasehold interest in the property at the southwest corner of Thirty-ninth street and Indiana avenue, and the improvements thereon, have been sold by Milton C. Roe of Princeton, Ill., to Mr. Zeman for a reported consideration of $50,000. The lot is 100x100 feet, and is improved with a three story building containing eleven stores, eleven apartments, and two offices.

The seller, who acquired the property a short time ago, accepted in part payment a highly cultivated farm of 240 acres in Kansas. Giles P. Cory & Co. represented both parties to the transaction.

DR. EMIL G. HIRSCH TO SPEAK

The Rev. Emil G. Hirsch will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Chicago real estate board in the ballroom of the Hotel La Salle next Thursday.

Leases and Loans.

THERE was considerable doing of an important character in leases of store space in the downtown district last week, the showing being decidedly better than for the previous week.

Probably the most important was the one in which E. F. Keebler & Co. leased for Arthur L. Farwell and Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, representing the estate of Katherine S. Isham to the Newark Shoe Stores of Baltimore, Md., the store at 328 South State street for ten years from May 1 next at a term rent of $75,000. The store is 12x100 feet in size, east front, between Jackson boulevard and Van Buren street, and is twenty-five feet north of Jones, Linick & Schaefer's new Rialto Theater building.

Keebler & Co. also have leased for Grommes & Elson to Kahn & Lapp the store at 83 West Randolph street for a term of years from Oct. 15, at an annual rent of $3,000, to be occupied as a retail cigar store. They also leased for the Wormser Hat Stores company of New York to the Houston Oil Bank and Trust company the store at 70 West Van Buren street for a term rent of $18,000.

Another noteworthy lease of store space in the downtown district was reported covering the "L" shaped store in the Textile building at the northeast corner of Adams street and Fifth avenue, which has been leased by James A. Hool of John R. Magill & Co. for J. B. Moos to William H. Snow for a term of years at a term rent of $66,000. The store formerly was occupied by William L. Lomax as a buffet and will be occupied by the new tenant with the same business.

He has also leased for W. L. De Wolf & Co. to the Wells-Fargo Express company the store, basement, and seventh floor, 50x100 feet, in the building at 511-15 South Fifth avenue for a term of years at a term rent of $27,000. It will be used for assorting packages and the claim department.

He also has leased for Albert Pick to Henkel & Best, manufacturers of electric fixtures, the first and second floors, 80x100 feet, of the Walker building at the southeast corner of Austin avenue and Franklin street for a term rent of $18,000.

A large theater lease in the Irving Park district also was one of the interesting features of the week's market news. It was the lease by Ambrosia Race to the Irving Theater company of the theater, together with the foyer, lobbies, entrances, etc., and a part of the basement, at the southwest corner of Irving Park boulevard and Crawford avenue. It is for ten years from Dec. 1, 1916, at an annual rent of $7,500 for the first two years, $10,000 for the next three years, and $11,000 for the remainder of the term.

Record was made of the lease by Benjamin Pomeranc to Soofakes Bros. of the storeroom on first floor of building at 4003 North avenue, to be used as a confectionery store, for ten years from Dec. 1, 1914, at a term rent of $32,100.

Anna B. Wickes has given a trust deed to the Chicago Title and Trust company to secure a loan of $161,130, payable monthly with no interest rate. It is secured by the property at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Eighteenth street. The trust company is also trustee in another loan to her of $47,500, same terms, on the property in Kinzie street, sixty feet east of State street. It is said to be a family affair.

WEST SIDE FACTORY SITE BOUGHT BY VORTEX COMPANY

A noteworthy transaction in west side manufacturing property reported during the week is the purchase by the Vortex company, now located at 420 Orleans street, from Crofts & Reed of the property at the southeast corner of Western and Austin avenues, lot 122x136 feet.

It is improved with a modern new four story and basement heavy mill constructed, sprinkled building, containing 75,000 square feet of floor space. The property is served by a Chicago and Northwestern railway switch.

The consideration is not disclosed, but it is said to have been approximately $135,000. The purchasing company will use the entire plant for manufacturing the Vortex sanitary soda fountain service. J. J. Herrington & Co. were the brokers, representing both parties.

THOMAS J. WEBB TO SPEAK

Thomas J. Webb president of the board of review, will be the speaker at Tuesday's weekly luncheon of the Cook county real estate board at the Hotel Sherman, his subject being: "Taxation and Why We Should Have a Modern Revenue Measure." County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer will act as toastmaster.

We Told You So Four Months Ago

Way back, early in June, we told the coal users of Chicago and the Northwest, through the columns of The Chicago Tribune, about this terrific coal advance which is now sweeping the country.

We asked you to order Tecumseh Coal early, to prepare yourself against high prices and a probable coal shortage.

Thousands of coal users acted on our suggestion and bought the famous Tecumseh Coal, guaranteed to prove out 13,400 B.T.U.'s to the coal pound with 9% ash and 9% moisture. Their Tecumseh Coal is now worth from two to three times the prices they paid.

FLAT PROPERTY IN GOOD DEMAND; BIG DEALS FEW

Galt Avenue Sale for $85,000 Largest Reported—Activity in Cheaper Classes.

The aggregate movement of apartment house property last week compared favorably with that of the previous week, but there was a marked absence of any large transactions where the consideration runs in excess of $100,000.

The largest deal of the week was the sale by James A. Bidderman and wife to Nathan M. Freedman and wife of the two new high grade six apartment buildings, each on 60x127 feet of ground at 924-28 Galt avenue, near Sheridan road, for a total consideration of $85,000, or $42,500 for each, each bearing an incumbrance of $25,000.

In part payment the purchasers convey the manufacturing property at 71[illegible] Mather street, lot front 188½ feet, occupied by Freedman Bros., furniture, at a reported valuation of $60,000, subject to $28,000. Lundstrom, Tonks & Co. were the brokers.

$70,000 Evanston Sale.

Harry Weymouth sold to C. E. Hotle of Oakland, Cal., the new twenty-one apartment building, on a lot 100x130 feet, at the northeast corner of Madison and Sherman avenue, Evanston, for a reported consideration of $70,000, subject to an incumbrance of $55,000.

It is stated that the purchaser, on his own behalf and that of a western syndicate, has made the present and several other recent purchases through Krause, Beak & Co., who represented all parties to the transaction. In part payment for the Evanston apartment building Mr. Hotle conveyed olive land near Oriville, Cal.

An interesting transaction in high grade south side apartment property is the sale by Edward G. Carter to Charles N. Gillett, vice president of the First National bank, and Frank L. Roenitz of an undivided one-third interest in the extra high grade three apartment building at East Fifty-fourth street and Lake Michigan.

The lot is 110x220 feet, and the building, which was constructed as a home for each of the three interested parties, is said to have cost between $75,000 and $100,000. The Carter apartment is at present occupied by Henry W. Gossard of the Gossard Corset company, at an annual rent of $4,000. Oliver & Co. represented all the parties to the transaction.

Pratt Boulevard Sale.

The three apartment building in Pratt boulevard, 241 feet east of Sheridan road, lot 45x130 feet, north front, has been conveyed by F. E. Miller to Anna J. Wile for a reported $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $19,000. In this connection the purchaser conveyed the property in Dover street, 257 feet north of Sunnyside avenue, lot 33x150 feet, east front, a nominal consideration being given. G. T. Williams of W. K. Young & Co. was the broker.

Murray Wolbach has sold to Frank T. Hays the six apartment building at 3115-17 Washington boulevard for a reported consideration of $28,500, subject to an incumbrance of $16,000. Mr. Wolbach took in part payment two three flat buildings at 2710-12 Gladys avenue at a reported valuation of $12,000. John F. Diffenderfer, who was the broker, also sold to Mr. Wolbach the vacant property at the southwest corner of Homan avenue and Congress street, 53x147 feet, which probably will be improved by Mr. Wolbach.

The twelve apartment building on 6[illegible]x125 feet of ground at the southeast corner of Twenty-first street and St. Louis avenue has been sold by Wilder T. Bowes to Emma E. Effers for a reported consideration of $30,000, subject to an incumbrance of $12,000.

FOURTEEN INCH RIFLES ON THE FORWARD DECK OF THE U. S. S. PENNSYLVANIA—These powerful guns, with their range of twenty miles and their arrangement of six fore and six aft, enable the Pennsylvania to fire the most destructive broadside of any war vessel afloat. Though the British vessels of the Queen Elizabeth type carry 15 inch guns, which have a longer range than the 14 inch rifles, they can mount only eight rifles, or at the most ten, under the maximum present tonnage of battleships. This fact gives the heavier broadside and the more destructive direct fire from bow or stern to the Pennsylvania.

Won't Turn Silks Yellow!

Don't think that each time a silk blouse is laundered, it must turn yellower and yellower!

Lux will launder it perfectly—it will launder the daintiest, filmiest materials—chiffon cloth! Georgette crepe! crepe de chine!—and keep them as white as when new.

Why silks turn yellow

Authorities on silk say that the action of Alkali on silk makes it acquire a yellow color. They also say that the fiber itself is affected by Alkali. When the Alkali is combined with hot water, and the fabric rubbed, the fiber is ruined.

Lux will keep any silk blouse white, and without rubbing! Lux has absolutely no free Alkali; cleanses wonderfully with luke warm water, and without rubbing. So thoroughly is Lux dissolved that not a flake of the soap remains in the garment to discolor it, but every particle of it is quickly rinsed out. Lux won't harm anything that pure water alone will not harm.

For silk, always use Lux and luke warm water. Never rub and always rinse in luke warm or cold water. When wet, stretch into original shape and press.

Like nothing you have ever seen before

Lux is not an ordinary soap, nor a chipped soap, or soap powder, but pure essence of soap in transparent flakes. Now on sale at all grocers and department stores. Get a package today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

SNAKE AS MODEL FOR DANCE—Miss Flore Revalles, seen in Chicago last year with the Serge de Diaghileff Ballet Russe, has a pet cobra with which she plays of an early morning at an unfrequented spot in Bronx park, New York. The reptile, she believes, has many graceful movements which are worth copying, and she studies its sinuous glidings for use in her "Cleopatra" dance.

NEWPORT'S PRETTIEST GIRL—Miss Roberta Willard of Newport, R. I., was acclaimed by general consent the most beautiful woman in that society resort during the season just closing. She won first prize for beauty in a charity bazaar, and another prize for the most striking costume at another affair. In the latter she was attired as a Hula-Hula girl, than which there are few that affect more scanty attire.

Pavlowa's purpose to have a school in the United States on a par with the Imperial Marienshy Institute of the Ballet in Russia, where she obtained her early training, and which is maintained by the czar for training children as dancers. Her pupils will have Mlle. Pavlowa's personal instruction.
